FEED SHEEP IN CORNFIELDS

Practice Has Proved Satisfactory in Saving Considerable Labor in Many States.

(Prepared by the United States Depart-ment of Agriculture.)
Ordinarily the management of the farm flock of sheep calls for comparatively small demands upon farm labor. The labor cost per dollar's worth of wool or lamb is lower than for any other farm animal product. Yet, while sheep raising does not necessitate expensive equipment or heavy labor, it does require study and continuous attention. However, the effects of the reduced supply of available farm labor, brought about by the drain upon it by the army and war industries, may be counteracted in part by the adop-tion, where possible, of one or more of the following suggestions:

Some labor can be saved on the stock farm by a more general adoption of the practice of feeding sheep in cornfields. This practice has proved very satisfactory in many states. It, of course, necessitates purchases in the fall and marketing in December or January, and is, therefore, adaptable on a large scale only to such farms or sections as are in a position to make a practice of speculative feeding of live stock, as few farms at present raise a sufficient number of lambs to harvest the grain from a large acreage

A larger use of forage crops for fattening meat stock can be adopted with a saving of labor. This plan permits the putting on of large gains with crops which are harvested entirely by the animals themselves.

In many sections fall-sown wheat and rye can be grazed by sheep, thereby making a great saving in winter feed as well as in the labor of feeding. In sections such as Tennessee this practice has become very general, and s found to work exceedingly well in the production of winter wheat.

Self-feeders for the feeding of hay to fatten sheep and lambs can be used to good advantage. Although their use in the feeding of grain to hogs will prove very satisfactory in the saving of labor, it is not recommended that they be used in feeding grain to sheep

In range sections considerable winter labor can be economized and greater safety secured by the distribution of supplies of feed to strategic points on the winter range. Corn, cottonseed cake, or velvet beans can be stored in metal granaries at points which will permit of their ready distribution to the stock in case of storms, which commonly make it impossible to get feed to the stock from the nearest railroad In the event of a very open winter this feed may deteriorate during the following summer. In most however, the clims ficiently dry to allow it to remain in storage for use in good condition during the second winter.

In the past, injury has been done by advocating sheep raising on lands where little or no labor or attention is needed and farms are thereby cleaned of weeds. So far as their appetite for weeds is concerfied, sheep may be regarded to some extent as scavengers. They will eat most weeds and on any farm will reduce greatly the amount of land labor needed to hold weeds in check on the areas of pasture and grain crops. It is a mistake, however, to advocate the raising of sheep where the main interest is in weed control.

While the labor required for sheep production is continuous, it is not heavy, and if properly supervised can well be performed by boys or aged men incapable of other kinds of farm labor, and by girls and women. Sheep management can be learned and understood and the labor performed by anyone who is willing to observe carefully and think and attend to the details as attention is required.

It must be understood, however, that theep raising should not be engaged in with an idea that little attention is required. The wants of sheep are numerous and varied, and frequent attention is required to forestall conditions that will result in ill health or lack of thrift. At lambing time frequent attendance day and night is necessary to avoid losses of ewes and young lambs.
