

MRS. J. M. CRAIG, of Los Angeles, Calif., who says no one can feel more grateful for what Tanlac has done than she does. Has gained twelve pounds and health is better than in years.

"Of all the people who have taken Tanlac I don't believe there is anyone who feels any more grateful to it than I do," said Mrs. J. M. Craig, of 674 1-2 E. 40th Street, Los Angeles, Calif. "I suffered from nervous prostration and was so weak that I could not even sweep the floor and during the day I would have to lie down four or five times. I tried to walk, but found out that half a block was all I could stand before I would give out. Nervous spells came on me often. Finally my husband urged me to try Tanlac and I am indeed glad he did, for it proved to be just what I needed. "The first two bottles did not seem to help me. I guess it was because I was so bad off, but on the third bottle I could tell I was improving and that gave me more hope than ever, of getting well. My improvement from then on was rapid and by the time I had taken five bottles I was better and stronger than I had been in years. "It enabled me to sleep soundly at night and I have gained twelve pounds. That was several months ago and from then until now I have been in as good health as I ever was in my life. I have told all of my friends and relatives what a wonderful medicine Tanlac is. "Tanlac is sold in Louisburg by SCOGIN DRUG CO. Adv.

His Mistake.
A man claiming to be a Russian nobleman was arrested recently in Brooklyn while trying to dispose of a diamond necklace worth fifty thousand pounds. The police admit that if he had posed as a taxi driver or a stevedore his action would never have excited their suspicions.—London Punch.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale
BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE VOICES.
Some of the voices who were shouting out to the boy and the girl as they were adventuring in the woods said that they didn't think anything of Mrs. Wood Elf at all.
And yet the boy and the girl had found her so nice.
"She was so good to us," said the girl to the voices. "Why, she never even asked us to wash up the dishes."
"Well, maybe she isn't so nice after all," said the boy. "She left Mrs. Get-the-Most-Out-of-Life to do them. She came along on a trip with us, which was certainly far more pleasant."
"Certainly," agreed the girl.
"Don't be so conceited," said the second voices they had heard before. "for Mrs. Wood Elf is doing you a favor. You're not the most wonderful creatures who ever lived."
"You're pretty fine," said the first voices. "She isn't so nice as you think."
"Oh," said the second voices, "don't be influenced by those other voices. You must be clever and be able to know which is best. They, the first voices, the wicked ones, are advising you not to like Mrs. Wood Elf, and after all she has done for you, too?"
"Pooh," said the first voices. "What has she done for you? She was glad enough to have you come to see her there in the woods. She has but few friends. She likes company. Gracious! You did her a great favor by going there."
"This is very strange," said the boy. "The voices are so queer. The first voices, the ones which say we couldn't like Mrs. Wood Elf, all talk together, like a great chorus of voices, and so do the second voices. I do wish we could see the creatures who own these voices."
"You can't see us," said the first voices. "for we won't let you. We are doing all we can for you, though, in telling you and warning you not to like Mrs. Wood Elf."
"We can't let you see us," said the second voices, "but we're the Right Voices and the others are the Wrong Voices. We can tell you that much. Can't you see that our advice is really the right advice? You've got to be the ones to decide, and surely you're clever enough to know."
"Ha, ha," said the first voices, laughing in a very queer fashion.

"Good," said Mrs. Wood Elf.
"Mrs. Wood Elf wasn't really so good to us when you think that she lives alone, and must be glad of the company," said the boy.
"And she let us get that fright without coming to tell us that everything was all right," said the girl.
"I don't know that I think so much of her now," said the boy.
"That's right," said the first voices. "And oh, it's getting very dark."
"It's going to storm," said the girl. "It's not going to storm," said the first voices, "but we'll show you that even the sun isn't as bright as you think it is. We can show you how dangerous you can be, and how you can hurt not only your enemies but your friends. For we'd show you that friends weren't so much after all."
"Oh dear," said the girl, "I don't feel very happy. I did like Mrs. Wood Elf."
"You really like her still," said the second voices, now sounding very far away.
"Oh, I believe I do," said the girl. Then the second voices sounded louder and stronger. And the darkness began to change into light once more.

The sun was shining through the trees and the shadows were dancing. "Now I don't hear those first voices," said the boy, "and the second voices sound near."
"Of course we do," said the second voices. "for now you're true and loyal to your good friend and you're not thinking things that aren't so."
"You'll understand all about us from her, if you haven't already, and if you have—let us beg of you never to doubt your friends again."
"We never will," said the boy.
"We never will," said the girl.
"Good," said Mrs. Wood Elf, who now stood before them.

How to Spell Colt.
"What have you learned at school today, Richard?" asked his father.
"I have learned to spell horse," was the reply.
"Very good. How do you spell it?"
"H-o-r-s-e," spelled Richard.
"And now can you spell colt?" inquired his father.
"Yes," was the prompt reply, "you spell it just the same as you do horse only you use smaller letters."

The KITCHEN CABINET

The most selfish man in the world is the most unselfish with his own sorrows. He does not leave a single misery of his untold to you or unsuffered by you. He gives you all of them. The world becomes a syndicate formed to take stock in his private cares, worries and trials.—Jordan.

SOMETHING TO EAT.

A sandwich is a dainty appetizer which is always welcome; here are two or three worth remembering:

Cucumber Sandwiches.—Cut rounds from any variety of bread; spread with butter and cover until ready to serve. Pare, slice and cover with cold water the cucumbers to be used. Have ready French dressing made with a little scraped onion and finely-chopped parsley. Dry the cucumbers on a cloth, stir in the dressing and set a slice between two pieces of prepared bread. Garnish with parsley and serve at once. Thin slices of ripe tomato made good sandwich filling, treating the same as the cucumbers.
Milwaukee Sandwich.—For each sandwich toast two slices of white bread, and one of rye. Set one slice of toast on heart leaves of lettuce. On this set four broiled or fried oysters; cover with the slice of rye bread and on this lay two thin slices of the breast of chicken, two crisp slices of bacon and horseradish sauce; cover with the last piece of toast and arrange on this sliced radishes and sweet pickles. Remove the skin from a small tomato, cut out the hard center and fill with sauce tartare; arrange on a lettuce leaf beside the sandwich.
Pineapple Tapioca Sponge.—Heat one pint of grated pineapple in a double boiler; add half a cupful of boiling water, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt; then stir in one-half cupful of quick-cooking tapioca. Stir occasionally and cook 20 minutes, or until the tapioca is clear; add half a cupful of sugar and the juice of half a lemon, then fold in the whites of two eggs beaten stiff. Serve hot with top milk and sugar.
Caramel Frosting.—Cook one cupful of sugar and three tablespoonfuls of caramel sirup and one-fourth of a cupful of boiling water to a firm ball, pour in a fine stream on the white of one egg beaten stiff, beat until slightly stiffened, then spread on the cake. Decorate with walnut meats.
