The Adventures of a Demobilized Officer Who Found Peace Dull

The document was still lying on the table, when Hugh produced his revolver. He knew there was foul play about, and the madness of what he had suddenly made up his mind to do never struck him; being that manner of fool, he was made that way. But he breathed a pious prayer that he would shoot straight—and then he held his breath. The crack of the shot and the bursting of the only electric light bulb in the room were almost simultaneous, and the next second, with a roar of "Come on, boys," he burst through the window. At an immense advantage over the others, who could see nothing for the moment, he blundered round the room. He timed the blow at Lakington to a nicety; he hit him straight on the point of the jaw and he felt the man go down like a log. Then he grabbed at the paper on the table, which tore in his hand, and picking the dazed signer up bodily, he rushed through the window onto the lawn. There was not an instant to be lost; only the impossibility of seeing when suddenly plunged into darkness, had enabled him to pull the thing off so far. And before that advantage disappeared he had to be back at The Larches with his burden, no light weight for even a man of his strength to carry.

But there seemed to be no pursuit, no hue and cry. As he reached the little gate he paused and looked back, and he fancied he saw outside the window a gleam of white, such as a shirt-front. He lingered for an instant, peering into the darkness and recovering his breath, when with a vicious phut something buried itself in the tree beside him. Drummond lingered no more; long years of experience left no doubt in his mind as to what that something was.

"Compressed air rifle or electric," he muttered to himself, stumbling on, and half dragging, half carrying his dazed companion.

He was not very clear in his own mind what to do next, but the matter was settled for him unexpectedly. Barely had he got into the drawing-room, when the door opened and the girl rushed in.

"Get him away at once," she cried. "In your car. . . Don't waste a second. I've started her up."

"Good girl," he cried enthusiastically. "But what about you?"

She stamped her foot impatiently. "I'm all right—absolutely all right. Get him away—that's all that matters."

Drummond grinned. "The humorous thing is that I haven't an idea who the bird is—except that—" man's left thumb. The top joint was crushed into a red, shapeless pulp, and suddenly the meaning of the instrument Lakington had produced from his pocket became clear. Also the reason of that dreadful cry at dinner.

"By God!" whispered Drummond half to himself, while his jaws set like a steel vise. "A thumb-screw. The devils . . . the swine . . ."

"Oh! quick, quick," the girl urged in an agony. "They may be here at any moment." She dragged him to the door, and together they forced

Why the New Perfection is so successful for cooking

THE present New Perfection Oil Cook Stove owes its success to its design and the care with which it is built. Early types of "oil stoves" cannot compare with it in convenience, economy and durability.

The New Perfection burner produces the hottest kind of a flame—white-tipped. This and the long blue chimney are responsible for the splendid results obtained by New Perfection users everywhere.

The chimney is made long for a distinct purpose. It assures the burning of every last drop of kerosene used. There is no fuel wasted in the form of soot on the bottom of utensils. Then, too, it drives the clean heat of the white-tipped flame forcibly against the pan or kettle. No flame is ever as hot as the area just a little above it.

There's no stooping over to the oven when you use a New Perfection. It is tip where you can reach it easily. The New Perfection oven has a three-point locking device that keeps the door closed tightly and prevents the escape and waste of heat. You can look into it at all times through the glass door.

The large four-burner size with warming cabinet is most popular. There are also, however, five, three, two and one-burner sizes. Use Aladdin Security Oil regularly to obtain the best possible results. Always pure and clean—it's all heat.

New Perfection Oil Cook Stoves are sold by most hardware, furniture and department stores. STANDARD OIL COMPANY (NEW JERSEY)
