"A Bank That You Will Like"

AN OMEN OF GOOD FOR THE NATION

When such bankers as Andrew J. Frame of Waukesha, one of the most widely known and honored bankers of America; President E. C. Stokes of the Mechanics National Bank of Trenton, former Governor of New Jersey; Charles DeB. Clairborne, Vice-President of the Whitney-Central National Bank of New Orleans, the largest bank in the South; President J. E. Caldwell of the First and Fourth National Bank of Nashville, one of the foremost bankers of that section; Jacob Phinizy president of the Georgia Railroad Bank whose bank has long been known as the Gibraltar of Georgia; Joel Hurt, a leading banker of Atlanta, and many others of equal standing were unshaken in their condemnation of the methods of the Federal Reserve Board under the control of Mr. W. P. G. Harding, the country should long ago have realized that there was something radically wrong or men of that stamp would not have dared to openly antagonize the Reserve Board and its methods. They knew full well that the methods adopted by the Federal Reserve management were destructive of the business interests of the country and were endangering the very existence of the Federal Reserve system. They had the vision to see and the moral courage to fight in the open.

President Harding fully realized this situation, notwithstanding the tremendous effort made by the leading financial interests of the East to continue Mr. W. P. G. Harding in power, which would have enabled them, in all probability, to continue their general domination of the whole Federal Reserve System.

The change has come. From the day when Mr. W. P. G. Harding was eliminated from the Federal Reserve System there came renewed confidence because the public saw that different methods were to prevail; and almost from that day the price of agricultural products began to rise, lifting an enormous burden of indebtedness from the farmers and giving them an increase in their income of $2,000,000,000 for 1922 crops as compared with 1921.

The fight which the Manufacturers Record unceasingly made for three years to bring about a change in the methods of the Federal Reserve System, its fight against drastic deflation, and against the immorality of the efforts which the Federal Reserve System was making to break down state banks which did not yield to its domination in the par clearance system, has at last won. Under the men who have now been appointed to the Board we are quite sure that there will be no effort to break, by the immoral methods adopted, state banks, whether they yield to the par clearance system or not; and we do not think that any member of the Board will again dare to declare in open session, as one did, "If this plan means the failure of the small state banks, that need not stop it; in fact, if we can't get rid of the small state banks by any other method, it might be as well to get rid of them that way."

That spirit, we are quite sure, will no longer prevail; and that was the spirit which dominated the Reserve System under its former Governor. We congratulate the country upon the change. It is an omen of good; an indication that we shall go forward to a broader and wiser management of our great financial interests.—Manufacturers Record.

All of the repairs on Shoes at our shop is done in a most intelligent and workmanlike manner. The stitches are removed from the old shoes by hand and the new work sewed in the original holes. This of course necessitates more labor, and gives greater life to your shoes by not having the leather cut to pieces by new holes every time they are repaired. However our prices are not any higher on this class of good work than is prevailing on cheaper workmanship.
