HOW TO RID THE GARDEN OF CUTWORMS

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 31—The cutworms which annoy the gardener by cutting off young plants at or near the surface of the ground are the worms or larvae of various moths, and having passed the winter in a resting or dormant condition gain become active with the return of spring and attack with great voracity any growing plants in their vicinity, says C. S. Brimley of the Division of Entomology, North Carolina Extension Service.

Mr. Brimley states that there are quite a number of these annoying little pests. Some occur in spring only, being single brooded; others are several brooded and occur throughout most of the year, the later broods at least overlapping. Some cut off plants at the roots only, while others climb the stems and eat out the tender buds. All can be destroyed, however, by using the following poisoned and sweetened bait, which has been used very effectively by the Division of Entomology: Bran, one quart; Paris Green, one heaping teaspoonful; Molasses, 1-4 teacupful.

It is advised that the ingredients be mixed together, adding enough water to make a crumbly, not a sloppy, mash. Scatter this thinly between the rows of affected plants or put a little around the base of each plant. Keep away chickens or anything else likely to eat the mash. If eaten in sufficient quantity it will poison other things besides cutworms.

If Paris green is not available, Mr. Brimley states that arsenate of lead or calcium arsenate in about two or three times the amount to the same quantity of bran can be used. Molasses is much better than syrup for the sweetening.

Another precaution advised by Mr. Brimley is to wrap paper around the stems of such plants as tomatoes as this will protect the plants from cutworms. Care should be taken to see that some of the paper is above and some below ground.

Keeping the ground clean of grass and weeds will also greatly aid in keeping down the number of cutworms. This should be attended to in the fall as land with a plentiful crop of grass or weeds in the fall is also apt to have plenty of cutworms in the spring.
