Sell And Eat Sweet Potatoes This Week

Raleigh, N. C. April 18.—The week of April 16 is sweet potato week in North Carolina and agricultural workers of the State College and State Department of Agriculture are endeavoring to help the farmers of the State move their surplus. Gorrell Shumaker of the Division of Markets has written a letter to all produce merchants asking them to stock up and push the sale of potatoes and to reduce their margin of profit for the time being in order that as many consumers as possible may be able to buy.

Director B. W. Kilgore of the Agricultural Extension Service has asked the farm agents to get behind the scheme and try to help their cooperating farmers sell all surplus potatoes. Mrs. Jane S. McKimmon and her force of workers will try to popularize sweet potatoes dishes and hold demonstrations showing how to make the best meals with the potato.

The idea back of the whole movement as outlined by Mr. Shumaker is to relieve the farmers of some of their surplus stocks. Many growers in boll weevil districts and in areas where tobacco wilt was prevalent put in a surplus of potatoes and now find that they have no market for them. It is a patriotic act on the part of North Carolina citizens to help these folks out of their dilemma by buying such stocks as will be needed during this week.

Mr. Shumaker requests and urges all householders in North Carolina, all public institutions, colleges and other organizations to buy sweet potatoes this week and use up the surplus so that the money now tied up in this crop may be released for other farm purposes.

By the fireside still the light is shining,
The children's arms around the parents twining,
From love so sweet, O who would roam?
Be it ever so homely, home is home.
