RESOLUTIONS
Whereas the Woman's Club stands for a bigger, better and busier Louisburg—Intellectually, economically, industrially, civically, morally and politically—and for every interest which in any way may contribute to the realization of our aims and ideals; and
Whereas we esteem it our good fortune to have for our first President Mrs. M. C. Pleasant a woman whose culture and refinement so admirably qualify her for the position of honor and responsibility which has been accorded her in the unanimous election of her to the position of President in this club, and to membership on the Board of Trustees of the Louisburg Graded School; and
Whereas her untiring devotion and efficient services in these places of trust have pointed the way to a fuller realization to our aims and ideals; and
Whereas certain discordant and uncalled for influences calculated to handicap her in the discharge of her official duties and discredit her usefulness as a member of the School this club and into the meeting of the board; and
Whereas we desire to assure our President and friend of our confidence and the high esteem in which she is held by us and the good people of Louisburg—Therefore, be it resolved:
1. That we as a body and as individuals pledge to her loyal support in her ever undertaking for the carrying out of the purposes of this club.
2. That we look with disfavor on any effort on the part of any person or board who in any way whatever tries to retard her leadership or discredit her usefulness as a member of the board.
3. That a copy of these resolutions be spread on our minutes, a copy be sent the Board of Trustees of the Louisburg Graded School, to the Franklin Times for publication, and that a copy be sent to our President with assurances of our love and esteem.
Mrs. A. M. Hall, Vice Pres.
Mrs. G. M. Beam, Sec.

MAY FORECAST IN SECT OUTBREAKS
Raleigh, N. C. May 16. By means of the insect survey which Franklin Sherman, Chief of the Division of Entomology, is now making in North Carolina, he reports that it may be possible later on to give advance notice of epidemic outbreaks of such pests as the Green Bug, Chinch Bug, Hessian Fly, Grasshoppers, Cotton Leaf Worm, and others. Mr. Sherman is cooperating with the Federal Bureau of Entomology in compiling records of insect outbreaks, the abundance of the insects, and other items of information. These findings go into Washington where they are compared with findings from all other states and the information is then returned to the different states.
Mr. Sherman is now compiling the complaints of insect damage reported to his office from time to time during the past twenty years. He finds from the thousands of complaints received that certain pests are at their worst in definite regions and their injuries confined to certain parts of the year.
To help in this work, Mr. Sherman states that interested farmers and county farm agents could render a distinct service by reporting accurate observations to him, giving about the following information: When was the pest first seen for the season? When does it first become common on the plants that it attacks? Is it more destructive or less destructive than usual? How does it compare with last year?
All of this information, together with specimens of both the old and new insects, will help in making a complete insect survey of the State. A specimen and a record of all insects will give information about which there can be no doubt. He asks farmers and other to cooperate with him in this work.
