WOOD DEPARTMENT

the state has assumed a supervision which has stimulated within the leaders in every county a desire to make of their advantages. Among those duties assumed may be mentioned—Teacher training establishing of Normal schools for the eastern and western section; encouraging summer schools, giving credit and increase in salary for attendance; assumed the certification of all teachers, thereby relieving the County Superintendent of many vexing problems; paying teachers according to the state salary schedule; encouraged and emphasized the importance of rural education by consolidation of one or two teacher school; a rural and a high school inspector and a county wide plan of organization in every county. In addition to the above, the state has not been idle remembering the physical condition of its children since it has provided for Tonsill and Adenoid and Dental clinics which has a tendency to enlighten the people as to the necessity of better teeth and as to the retardation to growth—both physical and mental caused by defective tonsils and abnormal adenoids.

It would not be wise to fail to mention that hand in hand with education the system of better roads has meant a great deal as to the greater number of average daily attendance. When we come to consider what our county has and is doing in making the average daily attendance we must not overlook the fact that if we had not at the helm a wide awake and efficient Superintendent, our school system could hardly have reached what it has, for the response with which the ideals of the state educators was met has borne results since during the past ten years, the average daily attendance has doubled. Through the Superintendent, programs have been carried out with the assistance of the County Welfare Officer, Home Demonstration Agent, Moving Picture Shows at Schools, and Farm Demonstration Agent which have enlightened and impressed upon the parents and children, the necessity of lending their assistance to their own school.

Among the things which the administration of the incumbent Superintendent has emphasized may be mentioned consolidation of schools as far as possible, better trained teachers, county wide system of high school and transportation, Teachers meetings—weekly and monthly, Parent Teachers Association, Women's Betterment Association, longer school terms, attractive school grounds, well equipped buildings, comfort of the teachers and pupils, cooperation of Board of Education, Superintendent, School Committee, faculty, parents and pupils.

To the teachers of any county a great part of credit is and will be due—for with a well trained and equipped faculty who have the interest of the school, community, social and religious activities and pupils foremost and teaching as a profession rather than a stepping stone, they will strive to carry out the above plans.

But in order for these people to be effective, the county has not been neglectful in providing a means of remunerating them—since it provides for about 5-6 of the teachers salaries for 6 months school term and a building and incidental fund and repayment of loans.

The goal is not yet reached and will not be in some time but as time progresses and men with foresight and best interest of education foremost at the head of our educational system and competent teachers in every school, there will be great strides made in the next few years providing the financial status of the state remains as it has been in the past few years.
