USE THE HOTBED AND HAVE AN EARLY GARDEN

Raleigh, Jan. 3.—The climate of North Carolina makes it possible to have an all-year garden in most sections of the state. To secure the most satisfactory results, however, free use must be made of hotbeds and cold-frames," says Robert Schmidt, assistant Horticulturist for the State College and Department of Agriculture.

"January is the month for preparing hotbeds. They should be located in a sheltered place with a southern exposure where they will be protected from north and west winds, and will receive the maximum amount of sunlight. The frames should be handy to both the house and garden so that they can be given constant attention. The soil in and about the frames should be well drained.

"A hotbed 6 feet by 6 feet in size will be large enough for the average garden and can be constructed rather cheaply. Standard glass hotbed sash are 3 feet by 6 feet and can be bought or made at home.

"Fresh stable manure will furnish sufficient heat. The manure should be turned two or three times before placing in the bed, in order to make it uniform in composition and mechanical condition. An excavation about 18 inches deep is made for the bed and about 15 inches of fresh manure placed in it and well packed. Then a wooden frame is built over the manure about twelve or fourteen inches high on the north side with the south side about four inches lower to give sufficient slope to the sash. Four or five inches of good garden loam is placed on top of the manure and the frame is covered with the glass sash or sometimes with heavy canvas or muslin. The manure will heat rapidly for the first few days and the beds must be ventilated frequently. The seeds must not be planted until the temperature has gone down to 80 or 85 degrees F. After planting close attention should be given to the watering and ventilation of the bed. Moisture is necessary for germination and growth but an excess of moisture must be avoided as it is apt to cause damping-off.

"The cold frame is constructed in much the same way except that no manure is used for heating purposes. It is used to harden off plants grown in hot beds and also to grow certain cool season crops to maturity when some protection is needed on cold nights. Heavy muslin or canvas is commonly used as a cover for cold frames."

"OUR IDEAL MAN"

The following poem was handed the editor of the FRANKLIN TIMES for publication, dedicated to the men of Franklin County:

Backward, turn backward, O Time in thy flight.
Give us a man with shoes not so tight;
With toes made for pencils if one wished to write.
Give us the man with a coat that just fits
Minus fancy pinch backs and up-the-back splits.
Oh give us a man who is liberal with pelf,
Who can talk for an hour and not mention himself.
Oh, give us the man though his shirts like a rag,
Yet does not resemble a Bolshevik flag.
Yes give us a man with a tie not so loud,
That he looks like a comic as he walks through the crowd.
Oh, give us the man who's impartial to drink,
Who don't use "hooch" whiskey to muddle his think.
Yes, give us the man with untainted breath,
Minus filthy tobacco which brings on his death.
Pray give us the man no matter what age;
Who would submit his past unashamed to the stage.
Yes give us the man who can act a man's part,
The man long departed with honor and heart.
Oh, where is the honor which men once did boast?
It expired with knighthood and left not a ghost.
Oh, send us a man who will women protect,
And not stare at them to find some defect.
In their dress, ways, or manners so he may jeer
The down-trodden sex with some cruel sneer.
Give us the man wherever he roams,
Who can think of his mother and sisters at home.
And when he would sneer at some wayward defect
He remembers all women are sisters in sex.
Give us the man without a defect
Yet can see the mistakes of his own wayward sex;
And remedy them and there'll be fewer groans
About how women dress abroad and at home.
Yes backward turn backward, O Time if you can,
Efface all these blackguards and send us—a man.

THE HOME PAPER IN VERSE

Today, so far as appearance goes, the chief difference between the country paper and the city paper is in size. The country paper, being in the main a local paper, does not need the space that the city daily requires for its general news and features. But today the country papers make use of many of the same typographical devices and pictures that the city paper uses. This word is needed to introduce a fine little poem by an unknown writer, who speaks of the older type of country weekly which too often was poorly printed and edited: 'Tisn't filled with cuts and pictures nor the latest news dispatches; And the paper's often dampened and the print is sometimes blurred. There is only one edition, and the eye's glance often catches Traces of a missing letter, or at times a misspelled word. No cablegram or special anywhere the eye engages; The makeup is perhaps a trifle crude and primitive. But an atmosphere of home life fills and permeates the pages Of the little country paper, printed where you used to live. How the heart grows soft and tender while its columns you're perusing. Every item is familiar, every name you know full well. And a flood of recollection passes o'er you while you're musing On the past, and weaves about you an imaginative spell. You can see the old home village once again in fancy, seeming To be clasping hand of neighbor, and of friend and relative; And their faces rise before you as you're idly, fondly dreaming O'er the little country paper printed where you used to live.

There are now fifteen creameries in operation in North Carolina. In 1920 only 989,713 pounds of butter was manufactured; in 1921 this amount had grown to 1,345,628 pounds, in 1922 a total of 1,530,994 pounds was manufactured. This Agricultural activity has been promoted and fostered by the dairy extension specialists of the State College and Department of Agriculture.
