AYCOCK-ISLEY

Announcement as follows has been made:

Mr. Gaston Lake Aycock announces the marriage of his daughter, Lillie May, to Robert Walden Isley, to take place on February ninth, nineteen hundred and twenty-four, at six-thirty o'clock in the Baptist Church at Louisburg.

The bride is one of Louisburg's most accomplished and popular young ladies. For the past several years she has been doing Home Demonstration work in Greene County and has made for herself the enviable reputation of being one of the best agents in the service. She is deservedly popular among a host of friends.

The groom is a prominent young man of Yanceyville, and holds the responsible position of Superintendent of Schools in Caswell County.

TWO FIRES

The peace and quiet of Louisburg was disturbed on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week by the sound of the fire alarm.

On Tuesday the fire was at Hudsons Garage and was caused by one of the machinists handling gasoline too close to the stove that contained fire. As soon as the fumes spread the blaze covered the building, and the bucket containing the gasoline being kicked out the back door where greasy trash had accumulated caused the blaze to take on big proportions. The quick use of fire extinguishers on hand got control of the fire by the time the Fire Company arrived. No damage other than a few burns on the hands of some of those fighting the blaze, occurred. There was no insurance on the building or contents.

The fire on Wednesday was at the town's oil pump on the side of the Seaboard Air Line Railway. The fire department answered promptly and soon extinguished the blaze with no appreciable damage.

LONG STAPLE SETTLEMENT

Raleigh, Jan. 29.—Over a quarter of a million dollars have gone out from the Raleigh headquarters of the North Carolina Cotton Growers' Cooperative Association to members of that organization who delivered long staple cotton according to officials of the organization here. This was the final payment on long staple cotton and closes the business of the association in the matter of the 1922 crop.

The cooperative association received 10,565 bales of long staple cotton of the crop of 1922. Prior to this final settlement the members had been advanced on this type of cotton on a basis of 19 cents a pound middingling staple 7-8 to 1 inch. On this basis the advance ranged from 25 to 28 cents a pound. The association found that during the season there were many times when it was impossible to sell the long staple cotton for a satisfactory price and rather than let it go under what was believed to be a proper price sales were not made. Finally all of the cotton was sold and the final settlement with the members followed.

Members of the association received a final settlement on the 1922 short staple cotton last October but at that time all of the long staple had not been sold. The checks that went into the mail go to over 22,000 members and total a little more than $275,000.

The Cotton Cooperative Association has advanced members of the organization over eleven million dollars on the cotton of the 1923 crop. Deliveries during the past few months have been fairly satisfactory, and in fact more of the 1923 crop has been delivered to the association than was delivered of the 1922 crop.
