

CHARGING RATE OF GENERATORS

Contributed by Mr. C. J. Strickland
Author Strickland's Battery Guide.

The charging rate of the generator should be more for some driver than others, as a driver that takes long drives with few stops and starts will not need a high charging rate, while the driver who drives a few blocks or a short distance and stops, and seldom takes a long drive will need a high charging rate in order to keep the battery charged. Every time the car is started there is a great amount of current taken from the battery and if the car is not driven but a short distance, the generator will not put back as much current as was drawn out. The best way to find out if the generator is charging at the correct rate is to test the battery with a hydrometer. If the gravity is very high at several testings the generator should be set so as to charge a lower rate. Then if the gravity is weak the generator should be set higher in order to keep it up to its right strength.

If the generator is charging at a high rate and the driver is taking long drives, the chances are the battery will become overcharged; that is the current going in on the plates trying to store up electrical energy after the plates are already full will cause them to heat and buckle (see Fig. 11) which will cause the corners to push through the separators and short-circuit the cell. Then it will have to be repaired. This will never happen if the generator is not charging at a high rate or too much for the amount of driving that is being done. Either test the battery or have it tested to prevent this from happening.

THE PAUPERS FUNERAL

He was a very poor man and his only refuge was a resting place at the gate of a rich man's magnificent home. He had no physicians but the dogs and his only food was the crumbs that fell from the rich man's table. No one cared for him. He was only a beggar. He died. But we have no account of his funeral. The pall bearers were few on this side. Not so many as were waiting on the shining shore, and went up with the old man to his Father's house. He was carried by angels to Abraham's bosom. He exchanged his poverty for eternal riches, his rags for a crown, the companionship of the dogs for the society of angels, the sorrows of earth for the joys of heaven.

Lots of people would treat him so today. They are riding up and down the roads, seeking rest and finding none. Why because they are not following Jesus. Still he has paid the fare with his precious blood.

What My Neighbor Says

Is of Interest to Louisburg Folks.

When one has had the misfortune to suffer from backache, headaches, dizziness, urinary disorders and other kidney ills—and has found relief from all this sickness and suffering, that person's advice is of untold value to friends and neighbors. The following case is only one of many thousands, but it is that of a Louisburg resident. Who could ask for a better example?

Mrs. N. L. Moseley, says: "My back hurt badly and when I got down it was an effort to straighten again. Sharp pains often stabbed through my back, and my kidneys acted too freely. It was an effort to do my housework and at times my head swam with dizziness. Doan's Pills, from the Aycock Drug Co., rid me of the misery and I have had no trouble since."
Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Moseley had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

See above referred to.

Excepted from the above tract however is the timber and railway right of way conveyed by C. A. Long and wife to Greenleaf Johnson Lumber Co., by deeds recorded in Book 211 at page 110 et seq and 117 et seq.

This 2nd day of August, 1924.
