Davis Flays Republican Administration for Its Corruption and Failure

resources of the country. "Grateful care" to the "veterans of our wars, especially to those who were stricken and wounded in the country's service and whose confidence has been so cruelly and corruptly abused."

Free From Pledge
Finally, Mr. Davis said he entered the campaign free from pledge or promise to any man and would "hold it so to the end." Also he declared that when it became necessary to raise funds for the conduct of the campaign they would be contributed "with this understanding" and this only: that neither the Democratic party nor I as its leader have any favors for sale.

Expressing in general terms his approval of the proposals contained in the platform adopted by the convention which nominated him, the candidate said he could NOT be expected at this moment to discuss them in detail or to outline the methods by which they are to be carried into effect.

"There will be time enough for that," he said.

Much of his address was given over to a measured attack upon the record of the Republican party during the past four years. Recounting what he termed "the multiplied scandals of these melancholy years," Mr. Davis assailed the Executive Branch of government for "hurried efforts to suppress testimony, to discourage witnesses, to spy upon investigators and, finally, by trumped up indictment, to frighten and deter" the investigators from their pursuit.

Attacks Tariff

He charged that in the enactment of the present tariff law there was "an unblushing return to the evil days of rewarding party support and political contributions with legislative favors." Also he charged inability of the administration to function due to disagreement between the President and the Republican majority in Congress to agree on public questions.

Declaring that it was NOT in domestic matters alone that "the symptoms of this creeping paralysis" have appeared, Mr. Davis said that NOT only have executive recommendations for adherence to the World Court been "flouted and ignored, but NO evidence is in sight that the Republican party as now constituted can frame and carry to its conclusions any definite and consistent foreign policy."

"With the reconstruction of Europe weighing heavily on the world," he said; "with American economic life dwarfed and stunted by the interruption of world commerce; with the agricultural regions of the West sinking into bankruptcy because of the loss of their foreign markets; we have stood by as powerless spectators, offering to the world nothing but private charity and individual advice."

Religious Freedom

Moving from his attack on the opposition to a discussion of other issues, Mr. Davis saved to the last his utterances on the subject which was the basis of a bitter fight in the New York Convention—religious freedom. Without referring by name to any organizations, the nominee said he wished to "denounce bigotry, intolerance and race prejudice as alien to the spirit of America" and promised that when elected, he would "set up NO standard of religious faith or racial origin" as a qualification for any of the thousands of offices he would be called upon to fill.

Aid of Farmer

For the aid of the farmer, Mr. Davis said the Democrats proposed to see to it that the discriminations which the tariff makes against him shall be removed; that this government by doing its share toward a European settlement shall help to revive and enlarge his foreign markets; that the forces of government shall be put actively to work to lend assistance to endeavors for extending the principle of co-operative marketing; that when widespread distress has overtaken him, every power which the government enjoys under the Constitution shall be exerted in his aid.

"He is entitled, too, to demand an adequate service of transportation at reasonable rates," the candidate said. "In spite of the failures and shortcomings of existing laws, this is an ideal which I cannot believe to be beyond the reach of attainment."

Turning to the field of foreign affairs, Mr. Davis told his audience that the Democratic party favored the World Court "in sincerity and NOT merely for campaign purposes" regarding it as a real advance toward the peaceful settlement of international disputes.

As to League

As to the League of Nations, the candidate declared that "we do NOT and can NOT accept the dictum unauthorized by an expression of popular will that the League of Nations is a closed incident so far as we are concerned." Adding that at NO time had he believed that the entrance of America into the League could occur, would occur or should occur until the common judgment of the American people was ready for the step, he said he was "serenely confident, that a day would come when the voice of public approval would find means to make itself heard."

Promising that if he became President of the United States America would sit as "an equal among equals whenever she sits at all at international gatherings, Mr. Davis said he could NOT reconcile it with his ideas of the dignity of a great nation to be represented at such gatherings only "under the poor pretense of 'unofficial observers.'"

IN MEMORY OF MR. HENRY MAY OF LYNCHBURG VA.

Louisburg, Aug. 11.—Mr. Henry May died on the morning of July 28th at the home of his nephew, J. O. May, ten miles east of Louisburg, where he had been visiting. The funeral was conducted the day following by Rev. Mr. Dowd, pastor of the Methodist church of Louisburg. He was laid to rest with all the Masonic honors and rites by a large number of Masons of different lodges of Franklin County. He was buried beside his brother, John J. May, and sister, Mrs. Celester Hayes at the old May burying ground.

There was a very large attendance of his relatives and acquaintances who gathered to pay their last tribute of respect. The large number of floral designs attested the love and esteem in which he was held. Mr. May was born in Granville County, May 15, 1836, having served all four years in the civil war, and many were the times he spoke on his bed of affection of his surgical work during this war and old comrades and their experiences. Mr. May was married to Mrs. Thomas W. Joyner, nee Annie V. Wellons, of Suffolk, Va., February 1878, being a sister to the Honorable Dr. James W. Wellons, of Elon College, who is now in his ninety-ninth year. She died January 12, 1892. Since her death Mr. May had remarried a widow and had no children.

Sometime in the eighties, Mr. May and his wife moved to Lynchburg, Va., where he accumulated some property and had remained there ever since. In their earlier days they both were members of the Christian church, of Popes, near Franklinton. After moving to Lynchburg there was no Christian church there so they united with the Cenepary Methodist church where they remained consistent members until their death.

When young entering mercantile life, he soon showed ability and developed talent as a merchant, to this business he added manufacturing. Interested in everything that tended to advance the interests of his town, county, state and nation he became widely known, loved and honored. "See it thou a man diligent in his business? He shall stand before Kings." His will was found in Lynchburg, leaving his entire estate to his niece's and nephews to be equally divided, and appointing D. H. Howard, of Lynchburg, Va., and J. O. May, of Louisburg, his executors.

SHENANDOAH PROVES ITS UNLIMITED RANGE

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 10.—Following the successful test of a mooring mast on the U. S. S. Patoka in Narragansett Bay, which proved, according to Commander Zachary Lansdowne, that the dirigible has an "unlimited cruising range," the Shenandoah returned to the naval air station here at 5:36 a. m. today, after an all night cruise.

The Shenandoah flew to Newport Friday, and rode at the Patoka's mast until the middle of Saturday afternoon. She then cast free, and although it first was believed she would spend another night attached to the mother ship, the dirigible strated back to its base. On its return the ship went a hundred miles at sea to escape a storm according to Commander Lansdowne. He said there had been no mishap in connection with the test and that the trial had been prolonged sufficiently to prove the feasibility of using a floating base.
