NEWS FROM FRANKLINTON

The following news items from our sister town of Franklinton, have been clipped from the Franklinton News, and are given to our readers:

Master John Felix Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Green, has recovered nicely, from a tonsil operation performed at a hospital in Raleigh one day last week.

W. L. Lumpkins has resigned his position as assistant cashier of the Commercial Bank and Trust Co., and will devote all of his time to the practice of law. As soon as someone else is elected to take his place he will fit up an office over the Citizens Bank.

Mr. J. B. Cheatham, who spent his vacation here has returned to Jacksonville, Fla., to resume his duties as district manager of the Western Union Offices. Mr. Walter J. Ballard, who has accepted a position with the Western Union, accompanied him. Mr. Ballard will have headquarters in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Miss Nell Joyner was hostess to the "Entre Nous" club at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Ballard, on Wednesday afternoon. The home was made beautiful in cut flowers, which made a pretty setting for the attractive set of young ladies who played five tables of progressive rook. The high score prize was divided between Miss Clair Kearney and Miss Mary Exum Rose, Miss Kearney winning in the cut. Delicious ice cream and cake were served.

The revival meeting at Popes church, about three miles from town, closed on Wednesday night, August 6.

The meeting was conducted by the Federation from Creedmore, with Kenneth Morris as leader, and it was attended by large crowds. The Rev. Dr. D. A. Long and the Rev. E. H. Davis did the preaching, but the services consisted for the most part of singing, praying and testimony.

HOW TO SAVE TOMATO SEED AT HOME

Raleigh, Aug. 18.—"It is often desirable and profitable for tomato growers to save their own seed. This is a simple operation and does not require a great deal of time, and at the same time, if done intelligently, it insures the quality of the stock," says Robert Schmidt, Assistant Horticulturist for the State College.

"When selecting for seed," says Mr. Schmidt, "the entire plant and not the individual fruit must be taken into consideration. The most perfect fruit of the entire field may be produced on a low-yielding and undesirable plant. Select only from vigorous, disease free, high-yielding plants producing fruit of desirable shape, color, size and quality."

"When well ripened, pick the tomatoes and dump them into a wooded vessel—preferably an oak barrel. They should be thoroughly crushed, a little water added to cover the pulp and

She gave her heart to her Saviour in the days of her youth, and remained faithful to the end.

A lovely christian mother of highly esteemed children and grandchildren is now more than mother—she is now a ministering angel between a land of tears and that beautiful home to which happy pilgrims are going every day.

then allowed to ferment until the gelatinous material about the seeds has disappeared. The time required for fermentation varies but usually takes from two to three days. Care must be taken not to allow excessive fermentation or the vitality of the seed may be injured. When fermentation is complete water should be added and the mixture stirred slowly. The seeds will settle to the bottom and the pulp will rise to the top where it can be poured off. When the seed have been separated from the pulp they can be transferred to a smaller vessel and thoroughly washed. The water is poured off and the seed placed upon a cheese cloth to dry. Drying should be rapid in order to prevent sprouting. When thoroughly dry the seed should be put in a cloth bag and stored away in a dry cool place.

According to Mr. Schmidt, one bushel of tomatoes will produce from 3 to 4 ounces of seed and one ounce of seed should produce enough plants to set an acre.
