

Two Kinds of News

Back in the forties it took months for the thrilling news of California's gold strike to cross the continent. Not long ago the President's son died and the people of California knew it as soon as the people of Washington, D. C. did.

In the early days news spread by word of mouth. Today the telegraph and telephone speed the message into the newspaper office, it is rushed into type, the paper is printed and shortly the news becomes public property.

There are two kinds of news in the paper. One consists of the affairs of other people, their sayings, doings and what they are going to do; things that may happen, have happened or didn't happen.

The other kind of news is your affairs. That's the part you will find in the advertisements. There's a lot of valuable news here about things you want or will want; things that have to do with your personal comfort, convenience and every-day efficiency.

Every advertisement carries a personal message to someone. Many advertisements carry messages of vital interest or value to you.

That's why you can't afford to miss the advertisements.

AS THE EDITOR SEES IT

Johnny Appleseed

In many spots in Ohio may be found monuments erected to the memory of Johnny Appleseed, because he served his fellow men so well and did not seek to profit from his service.

John Appleseed's real name was John Chapman, a Massachusetts man born in 1775, who went to Ohio in 1830 with sacks of apples. Why he went to Ohio or what his motive was in following the path in life he did is not recorded.

He was a missionary of the very finest type. He carried the sacks of seed on the back of his horse, and when he could not sell them, he gave them away.

He not only distributed seeds throughout the countryside, but he often planted orchards for farmers and started them on the road to independence and prosperity. He took great pride in his seeds and he wanted them to grow into fruit-bearing trees.

On account of his earnestness of purpose and his desire to serve, he was a very successful salesman, but he sold on very close margins and gave away all of his profits to customers who did not pay. He didn't need much money for his own use, it is related, because his object in life was not to make money.

But he was in no sense of the word a beggar, because he paid his way many times. He was welcomed by many a lonely homesteader of that early day because of the cheer that he brought.

When he made apple trees grow where no apple trees grew before, and when he left behind ideas that made people live richer lives, he enjoyed all of the pleasures of a man who had achieved and won success.

And now the people whom he befriended have risen up and called him blessed. His work has lived for a century.

The world is still eager for the same kind of service. It stands ready to reward with its richest blessings men who are actuated, not by the desire for profit, but by the wish to serve humanity.

Many such lives are being lived now in every community, some in smaller some in larger degrees of service, depending on the circle in which their lives radiate.

We need more Johnny Appleseeds with the one ambition in life to help others live a richer and fuller life.

Wild-Eyed Driving
"Motorists Kill Three and Injure Two," says a newspaper headline. There's nothing particularly unusual about that. It happens every day in some city or some rural community.

Lives are continually being slaughtered at the altar of the god of speed. People are becoming so accustomed to the daily occurrence that they no longer feel the sense of horror that once accompanied such tragedies.

Willful disregard of laws and safety rules, as well as the rules of common decency, as practiced by a growing number of motorists, is certain to bring into being a flood of "thou-shalt-not" bills in the legislature.

Though public sentiment seems to be asleep, it will flare up some day, when reckless drivers go the limit, and decent drivers will have to suffer in the reaction when the pendulum swings back.

It would be the part of wisdom to attempt to curb wild-eyed driving before they many have to suffer for the sins of the few.

Change of Life

"When change of life began on me," says Mrs. Lewis Lisher, of Lamar, Mo., "I suffered so with womanly weakness, I suffered a great deal of pain in my back and sides. My limbs would cramp. I didn't feel like doing my work, and there are so many steps for a woman to take on a farm. I was very anxious to get better. A friend recommended

PIN MONEY AND OUR WIVES

The term "Pin Money" dates back to the 14th century when pins were first invented.

They, for some unknown reason, were only allowed to be sold on two days each year and being hand made, were high in price. So it became a custom for money to be given to women at their marriage to be used for the purchase of pins.

Today pins are cheap but the custom of giving women small sums for personal expense still exists.

That was the 14th century; this is the 20 century. Today the women are political and social equals of men and should be financial equals as well.

As the head of your household she should own a checking account and not be given just "Jin Money."
