Several of our young people attended the Second annual B. Y. P. U. meeting at Wakefield Baptist church, Sunday August 24th. It was a wonderful meeting and I am sure all who went will be better for going.

We have a great lesson for next Sunday night. The study of the life of another one of our great missionaries, Alexander Mackay. We are learning more and more of the missionaries who gave their lives in service for the Master's cause long years ago. It should make us more willing to help support the missionaries who are on the foreign fields today. Lets do our best to pay our pledges and so help to spread the Gospel of Christ.

Pay by the month if you must. Pay by the week if you can; If you find it a task to do either. Try the pay-every-day plan.

Lets not put it off until April. And make it a last minute affair; But honor our Lord by looking ahead. For we're sure of His love and His care.

CRIME IN THE PRESS

The judicial hearing of the evidence of Robert Franks in Chicago by Nathan Leopold Jr., and Richard Loeb has revived the oft discussed question of whether newspapers should publish crime news.

The Detroit News made an exhaustive survey of leading papers throughout the United States and found that less than ten per cent of the news space was devoted to crime.

Taking into consideration the many crimes committed, this is a very small percent of the newspaper space given to the subject.

It should give pause to the reformers whose business would be destroyed if crime disappeared.

Publicity is a greater deterrent agency than all of the reforms ever conceived in the mind of man. It stays the hand of the criminal when fear of the consequences of the law would not.

Newspapers would be recreant to their trust if they did not publish crime news. Suppressing crime news would be placing a premium upon crime. The American newspaper reader does not subscribe to such a policy.

Many read of crimes because of the thrill that it provides, but the lesson is not lost, no matter what he might in reading might be.

Newspapers will continue to fulfill their mission so long as they ferret out crime and draw conclusions as to the lesson taught.
