The Modern Idea in WATCHES

THE modern idea in watches is FIRST a good "Time Piece". After that comes refinements of manufacture and design. Time has made clear to us, for example, that when a father buys a watch, he wants it to last more than his OWN life. He wants to give it to his son, in turn.

This store has always specialized in "Time Pieces". As the minutes tick off, we care less about adornment than accuracy. Here you will find the dependable makes—proud acquisitions for the generations to come. And there are the daintiest, prettiest watches for women, too—new models, new designs. It will be worth your while to come and see them.

We wish to call your attention to the W. W. W. line of Guaranteed Pearls, just in. Never were such pearls offered at this price and with such a guarantee. Then there are the new White Gold 18-K diamond rings, engagement rings, wedding rings—and mountings we can make for you, if your present rings are frankly "out of style".

GOOD RECEIPTS

Raleigh, Oct. 31.—Ten thousand bales of cotton received at warehouses of the North Carolina Cotton Growers' Cooperative Association the first three days of this week, is the record, according to a statement issued from headquarters last night. This beats any three day record previously. Members of the Association are delivering rapidly and taking advantage of the advance of $70 a bale now being made by the Association. Cotton is of better grade, indicating care in picking and ginning.

Raleigh, Oct. 31.—Announcement is made that an address will be delivered by General Sales Manager C. B. Howard of the Cooperative Cotton Exchange on the program of November 7, at radio station W. L. S. Chicago. This address will go broadcast at 8:15 Central Standard time.

ENCOURAGING THE CHILDREN

Now that the children are back in school again, what are we doing to encourage them? Or are we doing anything at all?

Possibly the children, irresponsible in their youth, do not expect anything from us, but that does not excuse us in the least.

They are entitled to our moral and spoken encouragement in their efforts to secure an education that will fit them for successful stations in life. A few years hence they will be able to understand what we do or do not do to aid them today.

Will they consider what we did, or that we didn't?

Erosion ruins hundreds of acres each year because landowners will not take the trouble to stop or prevent it.

His Last Letter

(By W. C. Perry)

Mr. L. C. Brooks was lying on his bed and knew that he could not live two weeks longer so he called one of his servants that had been with him for twenty years and had been very faithful. His name was Mose.

Mr. Brooks told Mose to bring him his pen and paper and then he wrote a very short letter and put it in an envelope and sealed it, then wrote on the envelope "Fortune," and told Mose to keep this letter for a whole year and then give it to his son that did more work in that year.

Mr. Brooks had three sons named James, Frank and Henry Brooks who were all trying to be inventors just as their father had been.

Frank had been in the next room and had heard what his father had said so he went to his other two brothers and told them what he had heard and they all decided to invent something together.

The next morning they all went to their father and told them that they were going to invent something together but their father said that he didn't reckon he could live to see them complete it, so they all left the room together while he ate his breakfast.

Frank loved his father more than his other two brothers and he came back to see him in an hour but when he opened the door his father did not move then he went to his bed and found out he was dead.

Mr. Brooks was buried the next day and after the funeral the three Brooks brothers came back to their shop and were planning for their invention and finally decided to try to invent an engine to make gasoline.

Ten months had passed and Mose was still working with the Brooks brothers and had still kept this letter a secret.

One morning when Mose came to the shop he did not find anybody there but Frank, he asked what was the matter and Frank told him that James and Henry had sold them their share in the engine, so from now on Mose and Frank worked on their engine alone.

Within three weeks they had completed their invention and sold it for seven million dollars and then Mose gave Frank the letter which was a check from his father for four million dollars.

Frank Brooks was now worth eleven million dollars so he gave Mose a million, James a million, Henry a million and his mother three million and kept five million for himself.

Mother Against Daughter

(By Mary Maxwell Allen)

Billie Cator had set out to get Kerry Haven not that she was crazy about him but his twelve million dollars appealed to her. She was small and dainty and looked just like she was in her teens but in reality she was forty, since her husband Phil Cator had died she had spent all her money and that of her child which had been left them and she had also made numerous debts. She always spoke of her child as "My little girl" but her little girl was nearly twenty years old. She had spoken of her little girl to Kerry many times and of course he thought she was a child of four or six, none of her friends had seen Prim for Billie had sent her to a convent after Phil's death and now she was

My side hurt less and I began to mend in health. I took four bottles in all during the last ten months. Cardui acted as a fine tonic. I am well now. I have gained ten pounds and am still gaining. My sides do not trouble me at all and my... are quite regular. I know that Cardui will help others suffering from the same trouble. Take Cardui.

Just as Billie thought she had Kerry on the point of proposing one afternoon at tea in walked her daughter Prim.

Prim had glorious red hair and green eyes and was perfectly beautiful. Although Prim was dressed in a plain black cotton dress, black cotton hose and tennis shoes (as was the style of the convent) she outshone her mother and several other ladies who were dressed in silks. She attracted everyone's attention.

All the ladies got their men away as quickly as possible and Billie saw that her cause was lost for Kerry was attracted by her daughter.
