THIS WEEK'S CROSS WORD PUZZLE

This cross-word puzzle was arranged by Mrs. Ethel Gibbs and Claude Welch, so it ought to be a good one. Every one knows that two heads are better than one. We don't believe we can say anything new about it. It is short, snappy, and very interesting, and should be completed in less than fifteen minutes—that is, if you are as good at cross-word puzzles as you should be after working all that we have published. Are you?

"PARIS"

There was a time when the name of Paris, center of fashions, was literally "mud." The Romans called Paris "Lutetia Parisiorum," the mud-town of the Parisii. Eventually the name Lutetia was dropped and the present name came into use. The original city was situated on the island upon which Notre Dame cathedral now stands.

One boy in a school room is worth a half dozen in a pool room.

Father Sage Says:

Florida land, once a drug on the market, is now on the boom. This shows that alligators, as well as dogs, have their day!
