SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

Officers of Franklin County S. S. Association are of the opinion that one of the most interesting and helpful, as well as one of the most largely attended, Sunday School meetings ever held in the County will be the annual County Sunday School Convention at Red-Bud Church, near Castalia, N. C., on Thursday and Friday, September 17 and 18, 1925. Programs of the Convention have been mailed to all pastors and Sunday School superintendents in the county, with special invitations to attend the convention themselves, and requesting that they try to get all of their Sunday School teachers and officers to attend. The Convention program includes addresses and conferences on practically all phases of the work of the modern Sunday School. In arranging the program the small Sunday School was given much attention. During the convention there will be question and discussion periods, when those present will have opportunity to give and get information concerning any Sunday School problem. The Franklin County Sunday School Association is one of the units of the North Carolina Sunday School Association, in which Sunday School workers of all evangelical denominations participate. At this time ninety-eight of the one hundred counties in the State are organized into County Sunday School Associations; many of which are completely organized and doing fine work.

THEY Wanted "IN---" WE OPENED THE BOOK; Over 900 "Signed Up" DISAPPOINTED at the prices they received on the auction floors when the markets in South Carolina opened, hundreds of non-members of the Tobacco Growers Association applied to warehouse managers for the privilege of signing a contract to deliver the 1925 and 1926 crops. The board of directors, acting upon the desire of loyal members, closed the books on July 15 last. More than seven hundred members had voluntarily joined the pool in the six months before while the books were open. Association officials, backed by the expressed sentiment of members in the South Carolina belt declined to reopen the books at first. Ample publicity had been given to the closing date, and it was felt that it would not be quite fair to loyal members to permit a last-minute sign up. Non-members appealed to members when they compared their returns with the Association's first advance in the South Carolina belt. Tenants began to deliver their tobacco under the contract with landlords. Some landlords actually tried to deliver under tenant's contract, and others "boot-legged" tobacco which had not been signed up into Association warehouses. Officials of the Association recognized a critical situation. The attitude of the members softened. They expressed themselves as anxious to share the benefits of orderly marketing with their neighbors who had remained out of the pool. To this appeal the officials answered by opening the books for four days. There was no publicity given to the opening. There was no intensive drive to get new contracts. The attitude of the Association was that it would make it possible for those who were wanting "in" to come in. OVER NINE HUNDRED growers in the South Carolina belt have joined the Association SINCE THE AUCTION FLOORS OPENED. When the books were opened, the independent buyers briefly boosted prices. The boost didn't last. Prices dropped back where the Association advance made a favorable comparison. WAREHOUSES for Orderly Marketing Opened at Twenty-five Points in Eastern North Carolina Tuesday Morning, September 1st. The Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association
