EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE CLOSED FRIDAY

The closing session of the Epworth League Conference of the North Carolina Methodist Conference was held on last Friday night. The following resolutions was adopted:

Whereas, a farmer has learned to build a house without lightning rods, we believe a set of resolutions can be drawn without "whereas," "wherefore," and "be it resolved." Therefore be it resolved that this set of resolutions be so written:

Your committee is unanimous in feeling that the conference of 1926 is the best in recent years. We are particular to limit this comparison to recent years because our youthfulness keeps us from having a knowledge of the conferences very far back.

One of the things that we appreciate most is the fact that the instructors who have so interestingly and effectively given us the classroom and platform work came to us on the first request and have willingly given of their time.

Our officers and faculty have so conducted the business of the assembly that there has been non friction at any point and the relations between officers and teachers and students have been most pleasant.

The college management has been of such a nature that no one has any suggestions to offer for next year. This is the breaking of one more precedent not only in the South but in the world.

It has been a matter of especial satisfaction that we have slept in the rooms to which we were assigned without having to throw out baggage and placing furniture against the doors to keep out angry claimants.

The men and boys have felt princely in their promotion from the art building to the comforts of plastered walls. Some of them have expressed the hope that another building will be half finished next year as they have never thought they might be permitted to sleep in a real house.

We recognize the wisdom of our president in his persistence to have Dr Patterson as our platform speaker. His work has in every respect justified that determination. One very definite thing that Dr. Patterson has accomplished is that he has eliminated any possible disinclination on the part of the delegates to take lecture notes. This we know because we have seen whole note books filled with his jokes.

The people of Louisburg have demonstrated a lovely an interest in the assembly that we could not overlook no fail to appreciate it.

The merchants have been generous in many ways, especially in contributing prizes for field day. Everyone we have met has been courteous and friendly.

The use of the high school building and grounds of the Methodist church have contributed to the efficient carrying on of our program.

The Louisburg Daily Dope is to be commended for space given the assembly. Full accounts of everything that has happened and not happened have been carried with faithful illustrations of the more celebrated members of the assembly. This has been one of the best features of the week.

The recreation and singing under Mr. Pim and Mr. Covington have been interesting and inspirational.

A summing up would find us going away with the feeling that we are taking home with us this year more than ever before and are more eager to come again next year.

W. Z. CORBETT, Chairman,
