PERSONALLY

As you read this, three large busses will be speeding 75 farmers from Franklin, Vance, Granville and Wake unties on the tour through Virginia the National Capital and return. This week's tour cannot be valued in dollars and cents. It is a veritable school of agriculture and entertain-ment for grown-ups with plenty of joy riding thrown in. It has the field of life for its laboratory and many will be the lessons that will be long remembered by those who take it. The organizers are to be twice congratulated for the tireless energy they have expended to make it the renowned success it is. Those leaders are Hugh Harris, county agent of your own Franklin county and John C. Anthony, county agent of Vance county. John Anderson, county agent of Wake county, and F. E. Boyd, of Raleigh, were among those panied them on the trip.

Of course, they want Franklin county to bring back the silver loving cup for attendance in honor of the president of the State Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs, Mrs. T. H. Dickens of White Level. Personally, I should like to see them not only run the mountain callers a close race for the prize but actually call home the bacon.

The cotton flea has appeared in North Carolina. This jumping insect is the one which has been causing so much damage this season to the cotton crop of the lower South. It, with other insect damage is thought to be the cause of the recent advance in the price of cotton. The insect sucks the juice of the square stem, causing the square to fall off. Let us hope it does not add to the poor ondition of this year's crop by making an inroad here.
