bad spells relieved

"NOTHING can take the place of Theford's Black-Draught with us because we have never found anything at once so mild and so effective," says Mrs. Hugh Nichols, R. F. D. 4, Princeton, Ky. "When the children have spells of indigestion and upset stomachs, I always straighten them out with a dose or two of Black-Draught."

"Several times I have suffered with bad spells of indigestion myself and found I would soon get relief if I took a course of Black-Draught. I was troubled with a bad accumulation of gas and severe pains across my stomach and lower bowels. Now when I feel a spell of this kind coming on, I head it off by taking Black-Draught—a dose every night for a few nights will prevent the trouble and save me much pain and suffering."

"My whole family uses Black-Draught for biliousness and constipation. It is a splendid medicine." Sold everywhere. 25 cents.

We can't blame an automobile for opening its muffler on a hot day.

OUR RALEIGH LETTER

By M. L. Shipman

Raleigh, August 16.—The application for an increase in rates amounting to approximately 30 percent by the Western Union and Postal was the only outstanding event of the past week in Raleigh. The week was quiet in administration circles and the weather continued unusually warm. Word from Wisconsin was to the effect that Governor McLean is enjoying to the utmost his three weeks vacation in the camps of that state and will be in good shape when he returns. The Executive is expected to be back at his desk about the 23rd of the month.

The Corporation Commission heard the application of the two telegraph companies during a two day hearing, and then postponed decision on the matter for several days. The Postal reported that it was experiencing a loss in North Carolina, based on last year, of $9,000 annually. The Western Union reported an annual loss of $75,000 but it was brought out that last year that concern in the entire country had its greatest year and declared large dividends. The contention is that the other states are carrying North Carolina's load. It was frankly admitted that the application for increase is a protest against the state tax on every mile of wire operated by the companies and would not be brought if there were no such tax. The Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce and a number of other commercial bodies are opposing the increase.

Dr. R. H. Lewis, noted physician who died here last week left an estate of $250,000. He had been crippled for the last years of his life and he left a bequest for the entertainment of bedridden crippled children. He also left a bequest toward the establishment of an orthopedic department at the University of North Carolina. The remainder of the estate was left to his four children.

The State Bar Association and the County Commissioners Association joined hands during the week to draw up legislation to present to the General Assembly looking to reforms in county government. At the county commissioners convention during the week at Morehead City, the report of the committee investigating the subject recommended fiscal and other reforms in county government. With this exhaustive report as the basis, committees from the two organizations will draw up suitable legislation to be presented to the General Assembly.

The controversy between the department of public instruction and certain school book companies over the selling of books at a lower rate to Tennessee than to North Carolina is still going on. During the week a hearing took place and the school book people stated they charged slightly more in North Carolina but they had to bear transportation charges. It is probable the matter will be given further consideration this coming week.

R. L. Gay has resigned as director of publicity for the Department of Conservation and Development. His last work before he left to enter journalistic work was a booklet treating of North Carolina's resources. It is done in masterly style. Mr. Gray portrays vividly North Carolina's advantages in many ways. The booklet is being distributed by the Department of Conservation and Development and only a limited supply is on hand.

Great interest was taken here in the stand taken by the North Carolina Federation of Labor on improvements in the election systems and against evolutionary teachings. The reform election machinery is said to be needed. The stand on evolution, while it is a subject of interest in the State, is regretted by many as it brings the Labor Federation into a sphere which hitherto has kept out of and one which is full of controversy. The attack on Governor McLean as unfriendly to labor was somewhat a surprise.

The slump of more than eight millions in the resources of the banks of the State during the past two or three months is not regarded with alarm in official circles. It is considered a seasonable drop and when the crops are in and business conditions experience the fall increase the decrease probably will be wiped out, it is said.

The State is saving $150,000 by making its own highway markers. 5,515 people who died during the year 1924 were unattended by a physician, according to information collected by Dr. M. L. Townsend, director of the division of education of the State Board of Health, or 16.5 percent of the 33,234 deaths occurring within the twelve month period. Approximately 20,000 whites, 13,000 negroes and 3,000 Indians are included in the estimate, which is considered fairly accurate.

Dr. J. M. Parrot, surgeon, Kinston; Dr. John B. Wright, eye and ear specialist, Raleigh; and Dr. William DeB. McNair, of the Medical School of the University of North Carolina, are mentioned as probable successors to the vacancy on the State Board of Health created by the death of Dr. Richard H. Lewis. The appointment will be made by Governor McLean on his return from the "Land O Lakes." The Transportation Advisory Commission, created by the General Assembly of 1925, to make a study of transportation problems, is composed of ten members appointed by Governor McLean. They are: J. Allen Taylor, Wilmington; E. K. Bishop, New-Berne; James A. Gray, Winston-Salem; John W. House, Wilson; George Marsh, Raleigh; T. J. Purdie, Fayetteville; M. O. Blount, Bethel; D. M. Ausley, Statesville; Fred Kent, Asheville; J. Leake Spencer, Charlotte, and Austin Finch, Thomasville. Governor McLean expects to call the Commission together for its first meeting early in September. Farmers merchants and manufacturers make up the membership.

What the State Board of Examiners in Optometry considers "false advertisements regarding the treatment of the eye" are to be suppressed, according to Dr. W. W. Parker, Lumberton, secretary of the board. The optometry board disapproves the practice of the indiscriminate sale of glasses and strongly advises against the purchase of so-called cheap glasses from unscrupulous dealers. Better to be safe than to be sorry is the wholesome advice promulgated by Doctor Parker.

In a ringing address to the State Association of County Commissioners meeting at Morehead City during the week, State Auditor Baxter Durham urged a modern system of auditing county records, suggesting that an up-to-date method of reaching totals would go far towards protecting the credit of the local governments, besides resulting in a saving to tax payers and adding to county resources.

Speaking to the Raleigh Lion's Club on Wednesday Josiah William Bailey, former candidate for the democratic nomination for Governor, paid his respects to North Carolina election methods in rather uncomplimentary terms. The speaker did not mince words, but made plain his opinion that our primary elections are just as rotten as those of Pennsylvania, although less expensive. Mr. Bailey wants the Australian Ballot and voting machines to insure the counting of ballots as they were cast, instead of allowing self-constituted bosses announce results to their own liking. A man who fails to put up the cash has little show in a North Carolina primary, according to Mr. Bailey.

Superintendent A. T. Allen, of the State Department of Education, admits that the school system in North Carolina is not perfect and last week took the State Convention of County Commissioners, in annual session, into his confidence. The State official pointing out that educational machinery functions only in spots and directing attention to the difference in length of terms for city and rural schools, the former average being 177.6 days; the latter only 137.9. Mr. Allen argued for an eight month school term which he believes will greatly modify the total school situation. The Superintendent hopes that the eight month term proposition will receive the approval of the Educational Commission selected by the Governor last March.

The State's fire loss for the first six months of 1926 shows an increase of $737,354; it is now thought that the peach crop this year will exceed that of last, previous estimates to the contrary notwithstanding, the number of cars to leave the state having already reached 1897; Postmaster Duncan informs Raleigh that she must provide a landing field if air mail is to be received here; temporary employees of the Automobile License Bureau are being "let out" as the work slackens; contagious diseases are on the increase in North Carolina over reports for July, 1925; Railroad crossings took a toll of nine lives in North Carolina the past week, and accidents of various kinds fifteen additional; The Salary and Wage Commission will report survey of State institutions later in the year.
