FALL FABRICS

Autumn will make her official debut at our store with a vivid display of lustrous materials, in brilliant colorings, that will play a vital part in determining the mode for Fall costumes. Materials subtly adapted to the return of the flounces, tiers, pleats, tuckings and shirrings that Dame Fashion has decreed for Autumn and Winter, 1926-27. It therefore behooves the Fashion-wise woman to make an early selection.

BUY MATERIALS FOR THAT NEW DRESS

The soft lustrous texture, the durable quality, and the lovely colors recommend these fabrics for early additions to your Fall wardrobe. Included are silk georgettes, lustrous crepe satin, flat crepe, crepe back satin, Canton crepe, crepe de chine, chiffons and many other materials. All the new shades are here, too, as well as standard colors. Span, a raisin, jule green, basaricum shair, tawny brown, and black are just a few of the popular shades.

BEAUTIFUL LINENS

Low Priced

This table linen will gleam none the less brightly because their prices have been considerably reduced for immediate selling! It has the same snowy whiteness of the higher price. Below are just a few of the many bargains to be had.

ONE SALE MARKET THE BEST

The editor of the Times was present in a crowd of people who know tobacco business recently when they were discussing markets.

"Speaking of markets with double sales," said one of the crowd, "it is the most costly at all for the farmer." He was asked why by one near by and replied:

"You see on a market that conducts double sales each company has two buyers and the tobacco bought by both is delivered to the same storage house, where comparisons can be made, and are, made of the cost of each pile of tobacco. Naturally the comment turns to the one buying the tobacco for the different grades the cheapest. And as each buyer wants to show his company that he is a good buyer it develops into a contest between the buyers as to who can buy the cheapest, with the result that the farmers lose in price."

"That's a new angle on the question," spoke another of the crowd, "so you would advise selling on the one sale markets?"

"You bet I would the buyers have nobody to compare with to see who is buying the cheapest. You know," he continued, "I was on a neighboring market the past week and a ware houseman was trying to convince me he was selling tobacco higher than Louisburg. Stepping over to a pile I asked him what he sold that tobacco for and he said $34. I told him I could buy tobacco on his floor and sell it in Louisburg and make money, that we sell that tobacco for $40 to $45."

Inasmuch as it was tobacco men talking this conversation might serve as a hint to some people that will save them money. There is at least a lot of logic and common sense reasoning in his opinion of the double sale market.

WORKERS WIN PRIZES IN DAIRY CONTEST

Raleigh, Oct. 4.—C. W. Olison of Sylva, in Jackson county won first prize among the county agents in the campaign for placing pure bred dairy sires with farmers this year and was given a free trip to the National Dairy Show held in Detroit, October 6 to 13. John W. Goodman, district agent of Asheville, in whose territory the highest scores were made by county agents won first prize for district agents and was also given a free trip to the show.

Second and third prizes among the county agents were won by C. M. Erickhouse of Kinston, Lenoir county, and W. R. Anderson of Hayesville, Clay county. These two men will receive three-fourths and one-half of their expenses to the show. E. S. Millsaps of Statesville, district agent of the piedmont district, and E. W. Gaither of Wilmington, district agent of the southeastern district, won second and third prizes respectively for the district supervisors. Mr. Arey states that in addition to these six men, twelve other county agents who made good scores in the work will have a part of their expenses paid to the dairy show.

The campaign for more pure bred dairy sires which closed on August 31, has been characterized as the greatest effort of its kind in the South to improve the existing herds of dairy cattle. A total of 313 pure bred registered bulls were placed and 223 scrub bulls were replaced. Thirty-six county agents took an active part in the campaign and they were given much assistance by dairy extension specialists and supervising agents of State College. Many commercial organizations also lent the services of trained workers to help in the cause. John A. Arey, under whose direction the campaign was conducted, states that the educational value of the campaign cannot be over-estimated. He states that a total of over 400 bulls were placed if all the work done by the agents were counted.

WANDERS FROM HOME, FEARED LOST IN WILDERNESS

The Honorable President of Punksin Centre, who was supposed to have important business in Louisburg today, has not been heard from, and his friends who know of his strict method of keeping engagements, fear he has become temporarily unbalanced, mentally, to have failed to keep his engagement. The country side, especially all branches, are being searched in hopes of finding the president. The whole country mourn his condition. It is feared also, that his arch enemy, Spanish Monkey, who was seen to take a drink with him, may know something of the president's disappearance and Spanish Monkey was taken in custody by Sheriff Tanlac but made his escape by throwing deadly well water on the Sheriff.
