DR. J. H. MOORE COMING TO LOUISBURG

On the third Sunday in this month, Dr. John H. Moore, of Durham, will begin a series of revival meetings at South Main Street Baptist Church, colored. Dr. Moore is the Religious Educational Secretary and one of the best pulpites in the race. Each afternoon will be given to Biblical exposition and evening to evangelistic appeals. Every one is invited to attend these services.

A bank at Salisbury in Rowan county is financing the purchase of considerable sweet clover seed this spring in an effort to help county agent W. G. Yeager promote the growth of this valuable legume.

Bees have wintered well in North Carolina and the outlook for a good honey crop this season is very good.

Demonstrations conducted with dolomitic limestone in Surry county last year indicate that this material is valuable under both tobacco and clover.

The farmer who increases his acreage to cotton and tobacco and does not provide some food for his family and some feed for his livestock will be out of luck this fall, says Tom Tarheel.
