The condition of King George of England, continues to be grave.

Court has dismissed the conspiracy cases against the election officials of Craven county.

The new County officials took over the administration of Franklin County's affairs Monday.

Congress convened Monday and heard the Presidents Message Tuesday. It now remains to be seen what it will do.

The extreme need for more and better fire equipment in Louisburg was very forcibly demonstrated Wednesday morning.

Louisburg is especially proud of its splendid fire department and the personnel of its membership. The work they did at the College Wednesday morning was heroic and showed real zeal.

Judge H. W. Perry, who retired Monday as Vice-Recorder for Franklin County Recorders Court, has made a most enviable record the past two years that he has served in this capacity...

Notwithstanding the fact that Wake Superior Court only found Dr. Albert Anderson guilty on two counts of the fifteen preferred against him by the grand jury and only administered a small fine, without the requirement that he vacate his official position...

JUDGE PALMER

Judge James L. Palmer took over the duties of presiding officer of Franklin County Court Monday and handled the business of the court in an able and efficient manner.

RETIRED OFFICERS

In the passing out of the official life of Franklin county of the members of the old Board of Commissioners the citizens recognize the splendid service given by them and the wise administration they have given the county.

An Appreciation

Fifty years ago before hospitals were in evidence, as they are today when well high every family has made the acquaintance of them, the physician, as he was called then the doctor had to provide his own hospital. In fact in himself he had to be or provide a combination physician, hospital, trained nurse and drug store and being such he was the most indispensable man in the community...

Yes, We Have No Women Governors or Senators, But Seven Congresswomen

THE past election did not make a woman a United States senator or another woman a governor, but it increased the number of congresswomen from four to seven.

Women who will grace the floor of Congress for the first time after March 4, 1929 are: Ruth Hannah McCormick, Republican, of Illinois; Mrs. Ruth Pratt, Republican, of New York City, and Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of William Jennings Bryan, of Florida. The "Ruths" seem to have made it unanimous.

Four Were Re-Elected

The four congresswomen who were re-elected are: Mrs. Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts, Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, Mrs. Katherine Langley of Kentucky and Mrs. Florence P. Kahn of California. All but Mrs. Norton succeeded husbands who died in office.

Two prominent women who campaigned for seats in Congress were defeated in the primaries. Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham was badly defeated in the Texas senatorial primaries and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot was beaten in a Pennsylvania congressional primary. Miss Agnes Hart Wilson, daughter of former Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson, died after winning the Democratic nomination in the sixteenth Pennsylvania district.

No Women Senators

Mrs. Cunningham's defeat left no woman seeking a senatorial or gubernatorial seat. There has been a disposition to be wary of women governors since Mrs. Miriam Ferguson's regime in Texas. Mrs. Felton of Georgia was made a senator by a gallant courtesy appointment, but the only woman who ever received a major party senatorial nomination was Mrs. Anna Dickle Olesen of Minnesota. And a Democratic senatorial nomination doesn't mean much in Minnesota.

Mrs. Pratt seems to have had the hardest fight for election. Having defeated Assemblyman Phelps Phelps in the Republican primary she was pitted against a strong Democratic candidate in the election. Furthermore, the seventeenth New York district was represented by a retiring Democrat. But the district is often Republican in city elections and is known as one of the "blue stocking" districts.

Mrs. Owen's Election Easy

Mrs. Owen's election in Florida was virtually conceded after her nomination. She is regarded as an excellent campaign speaker and this was not her first political try. She was defeated for the Democratic nomination in 1926 by Congressman Sears, whom she defeated for the nomination this year.

Mrs. McCormick, the most seasoned politician of the three Ruths and widow of the late Senator Medill McCormick, won along with the rest of the Republican ticket in Illinois. She is expected to be a prominent figure in the Seventy-first Congress and it is generally supposed that she will run for the senatorial nomination against Senator Deneen in 1930.

The increase in the number of women members of Congress gives the "wets" five champions and the "drys" two. Mrs. Owen and Mrs. McCormick are politically "dry."

Our Trip To West Virginia

Dear Readers of the the Times: We, Gladys Taylor, Douglas, Darrel, and myself, started at four o'clock last Wednesday morning for Buckhannon, W. Va., to spend Thanksgiving with my father, mother and brother, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Abbott and Harold. Gladys and Douglas doing the driving. We had a pleasant and uneventful trip until we were within a few miles of Gorman, W. Va., where we had to make a detour from the main highway, and at this point our troubles began, first muddy roads and later on as we got farther on in the mountains heavy snow. We had hoped to reach Buckhannon by late bed time but about two hours after dark we found ourselves stranded on a snow covered mountain that the car refused to climb.

We descended to the foot again to the little town of Gorman for reinforcements, but decided to go no further until daylight. Next morning with the help of chains and a good portion of the masculine population of Gorman we topped the mountain and got a driver to drive for us until we again reached the highway, taking us at times through snowdrifts as high as the top of the car. The remainder of the trip was a real pleasure and I felt repaid for the unpleasant experience of the night before as I once more beheld the vision of the W. Va. hills, where my girlhood hours were passed. We found the homefolks well and delightfully surprised to see us, spent two happy days and nights there starting on our return trip Saturday noon, coming back by way of Clarkburg, W. Va., Uniontown, Pa., Cumberland, Md., spending the night in this city, then on south, arriving in Louisburg about eleven o'clock Sunday night, tired but happy.

MRS. H. G. PERRY

EDNA ODELL GILLIAM DEAD

On Sunday morning, November 25th 1928, the death angel visited our community and called from Mr. and Mrs. Spence Gilliam their little daughter, Edna Odell, after suffering only one week and two days. Everything was done for her that helping hands could do. But God saw fit to take her. We don't understand why she was taken so early in life. She was only 7 years and 6 months old. She was loved by all that knew her. We regret in peace to know that she is at rest where there are no sorrows nor pain. We all hope to meet her some good day. A great number of friends gathered at Sandy Creek church to pay the last sad tribute of respect to our dear sister. The funeral services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Rock. Several beautiful songs were sung. Then her little body was taken to the burying ground where the remains of our dear sister were laid to rest. She leaves to mourn their loss a mother and father, two sisters and two brothers. The funeral tribute was beautiful. The family has the sympathy of the entire community.

Farmers of Avery county sold 28,000 pounds of cabbage cooperatively and received one-half cent a pound more than was offered before the pool was made.
