

EDWARD BEST HIGH SCHOOL DYNAMO

The County Tournament
The Edward Best boys' basketball team advanced to the semi-finals in the county championship tournament when Epsom failed to send a team to play them on last Tuesday night. The Epsom girls' team defeated the girls from Edward Best by the score of 23 to 22.

In the semi-finals Edward Best will play Bunn, winner over Gold Sand, at Louisburg on Saturday night February 22.

Hard Fight

On Tuesday night, February 18, the girls of E. B. H. S. went to Franklin with light hearts to meet Epsom. It was a tight fight for part of the time Epsom was ahead and then Edward Best. Edward Best was ahead until the last minute when Epsom threw a goal winning the game. The score was 22-23 in favor of Epsom. The winning star throughout the game was Alma Sykes. She led with ten points. The star for Epsom was Aysacue, she led with fourteen points. Both schools showed good spirit until the end. Come on girls! We are proud of you even if you did lose.

Essay Contests

There are several essays being written by some of the boys and girls of Edward Best. One of the essays "Develop a Suitable Woodland Taxation Policy for North Carolina" put on by the Department of Conservation and Development, Raleigh, N. C. is being written by Jessie Wester. The words must not exceed 1500 words. It is due March 17. The first prize is $10, 2nd $5.00 and five $2.50 prizes are given. Another essay is "The Benefits of Diversified Farming" put on by the American Legion. Those entering this contest are Grace Strickland, Hattie Gardner, and Willis Colie. The papers are due April 15. The first prize is a gold medal and the second prize is a $5.00 gold piece, while the third prize is 20 tickets to the new Talking Movie, owned and operated by Mr. R. R. Kiesel at Louisburg.

Another essay is some phase of the "Live-at-Home" idea due about April 15. Those entering this contest are Velma and Effie Moore. The first prize is $25.00, 2nd $15.00 and the 3rd $10.00.

We think those entering either contest show a good spirit because the greater number of entrants we have will add points for our school in the Franklin County League. Too we hope they will win one of the State prizes. You have our best wishes boys and girls.

Each week we set 16 trays of 96 eggs each, which is 1-3 of the total capacity. The eggs are brought in on Wednesdays and chicks are ready for customers on Friday afternoons. Jessie Wester, a ninth grade student, has proven in every way a thoroughly satisfactory manager.

"LIVE-AT-HOME-WEEK" AT PEARCES

"Live-at-Home-Week" was observed in the Pearce School, by chapel programs.

We found the material in the Live at home bulletin helpful as well as information from the newspapers and Radio talks.

Each chapel period was used to explain the meaning and the purpose of "Live-at-Home-Week." Each grade had an active part in carrying out this live at home week in their class rooms.

The first grade worked out a sand table. They talked about the different foods they could raise at home both summer and winter. On the sand table they represented a home, a garden, a pasture and a poultry yard.

Each pupil had something definite to work on when this was completed the pupils wrote stories on "Live-At-Home." The children took an interest in this work and many of the parents came to visit the school.

In the second and third grades, they made a poster. The children brought the pictures to represent the different foods, that can be raised at home. In the center of the poster was the home. On one side they put vegetables to represent the garden, and fruit to represent the orchard. On the other side they posted chickens, eggs poultry houses and little chicks to represent the poultry yard. Then next came the pigs and hogs, the cows and sheep. From discussing this topic many helpful language and health lessons were derived.

The fourth and fifth grades also made a large poster for live at home week. This poster pictured two homes, and the products that should be raised at home. There were days in which the language classes discussed and wrote compositions, about the garden, cows, pigs, and chickens. The pupils brought pictures to class and the best ones selected and posted on the poster. In their health classes they made a list of the foods that could be raised on the farm, both summer and winter. From this list they selected the foods for a well balanced, breakfast, dinner, and supper. The children were very interested, and as a result of the study, decided they wanted a garden this year. The sixth and seventh grades observed live at home week for their project for the week.

This project explained the meaning of "Live-at-Home." The pupils also learned the purpose of "Live-at-Home." In this grade they used the suggested weekly program found in the live at home bulletin. This topic furnished excellent material for work in the English classes. We had oral discussions on the meaning of "Live-at-Home"; and the objectives and purpose of living at home. Then we used these subjects for compositions and themes. The pupils collected pictures and made booklets that carried out the live-at-home idea. In our health classes we discussed the value of "Live-at-Home", from the point of good health. We found that many vegetables can be raised in our summer garden, and canned for winter use, and we can plan to have a winter garden also. We studied the value of balanced meals and the prevention and cure of the dreadful disease of Pellagra. The children were very interested in this "Live-at-Home" idea.
