The county of Buncombe heads the list this ty of Buncombe heads the list this year with 103 delegates, while Avery takes a position at the bottom of the last with only three. Mecklenburg takes second place with 101, Guilford third with 90, Wake fourth with 79 and Forsyth fifth with 75. Caldwell will have 20, Franklin, 21, Haywood, 32, Warren 16, Pitt 35.

Thursday's convention is expected to draw an unusually large crowd for an "off year," but no "fire works" are anticipated. The primary on June 7th settled all disputes between as-pirants for State offices and in all congressional districts except the Ninth. Following the keynote speech by former Associate Justice L. B. Varser, of Lumberton, will be addres-ses by Josiah W. Bailey, Democratic nominee for United States Senator and nominee for United States Senator and Governor O. Max Gardner. The platform is expected to call for tax reforms, prohibition and the practice of economy in governmental operations. No opposition to the reelection of State Democratic Chairman Odus M. Mull who will relinquish the position of executive counsel to the Governor early in the fall and wage an intensive campaign for the election of all Democratic nominees for State, district and county offices. Party district and county offices. leaders realize that Josiah W. Bailey must poll a larger number of votes this year than were cast for Gover-nor Alfred E. Smith in the State two years ago if he wins the Senatorship over Congressman George Pritchard and no effort will be spared to arouse the Democracy to the "highest pitch of enthusiasm."

Expected promotion has come Paul Kelly, who has been head of the public relations division of the State Department of Conservation and Development for the past four years. Tomorrow Mr. Kelly will become head of the Division of Commerce and Industry succeeding the late Park Mathewson. Bryan W. Sipe, of Cullowhee Jackson county, succeeds Mr Kelly as statistician for the Department. He is a native of Cherryville, Gaston county, and has had experi-ence as a teacher and in newspaper work.

In another well-timed statement to departmental heads Governor Gardner calls attention to the importance of a balanced budget for submission to the next General Assembly. The Governor would present a budget that will be fair to both the departments and institutions of the State and to-the taxpayers from whom the sinews of war" must come and requests departmental and institutional head to aid as far as possible within their resources to balance the budget for the biennium and that they exercise the most rigid economy by the elimination of every unnecessary expense including all travel out of the State, especially to conventions and conferences. While the prospects of a perfectly balanced budget are not en-couraging, the Governor has not aban-doned the idea and all State agencies are expected to cooperate to the full-est extent possible without serious handicap to their respective opera-

The fire loss for the State during the month of May, according to report of the Department of Insurance, was $490,151, an increase of $135,000 for the same month in 1929. 181 fires were reported, the greater number of them from small towns. The loss from ravages of forest fires for the month is placed at $47,287 from 231 fires which covered a total area of 26,814 acres in counties organized for protection. Leading cause of the for-est conflagrations is said to have been negligence of smokers who have 53 to their "discredit." During the week the State Board of Tax Assessment heard an appeal of the Duke Power Company against an increase in the valuation of the Oxford Shoals Dam from $400,000 to one million last year. The dam in question extends across the Catawba River between Alexander and Catawba counties and the power company contends that there was no authority for arsessment officials to raise the valuation last year. Also, that it appealuation last year. Also, that it appeal-ed properly from the increase and filed the objection with authorities of the counties involved, a contention which the counties themselves deny. The filing fees of candidates have probably reimbursed the State for the amount expended in conducting the primary on June 7th in so far as the printing and distribution of bal-lots and report blanks is concerned. lots and report blanks is concerned. Considering the compensation of precinct election officials, the expense exceeds by far the receipts from every source. The entrance fee for nearly all State and district candidates was neglible in comparison with various items of expense in the campaign which followed. Contenders for the Senatorial nomination alone report Senatorial nomination alone report expenses of around $20,000 and this is not anyways near half the story.

No reports of amounts expended by their friends are available and there is little probability of the Senate's

Simmons' reported expenses were $9,947, of which the Senator himself advanced $2,500. Governor Gardner "decrees" that State employees need not return for the usual four hours work next Sat-urday, which happens to be July 5th, but may extend the holiday until Monday morning following. This will al-low time for many of the "boys and low time for many of the "boys and girls" to spend a little while with the home folks. It means only the loss of half a day, anyway, for Saturday is always a half holiday in the State departments. It is a happy hit the Governor has made with the "hired aelp" and the State will never "know the difference." It was also the Governor has made with the "hired aelp" and the State will never "know the difference." It was also the Governor has made with the "boys had been a like the state will never "know the difference."

According to Dr. Chase. O'H. Laugh-

inghouse, State Health Officer, the progress of North Carolina is being tremendously hindered by the fact that pellagra is affecting labor to such an extent that it (labor) is not producing as it should, which is cost ing the State's business and industry hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. Doctor | Laughinghouse modestly suggests that business and social leaders of individual counties get together and stamp it out. He get fogether and stamp it out. He points out that pellagra is a non-infectious disease the treatment of which is purely a matter of diet. During last year the disease took a toll of 981 lives many of which might have been saved had the victims been educated relative to the value of healthful foods.
