

Charming Simplicity In Cotton

NOWHERE is the evidence of creative styling and designing more apparent than in many of the new cotton fabrics which are coming from the looms these days in preparation for a new season's fashions. Charming things have been accomplished with such familiar old standbys as calico, but the calico of 1930 is as modern in its spirit as the newest designs and weaves in brand new cotton dress fabrics.

In the accompanying photograph at the left is one of the new cottons—a sheer chambray—in male tone with eyelid embroidery in brown. The fabric is ideal and strikingly appropriate for this simple though charming afternoon frock.

The other model presents a smart interpretation of a new trend in styled cottons, a youthful frock of black and white calico. There is nothing here essentially old except the name. A white broadcloth collar and green, black and white bands of trimming provide a note of contrast.
