Farm Terracing

Some Leading Franklin County Farmers Interested in Soil Erosion Work

Among the many farmers in Franklin County interested in soil erosion conservation are the following who have and are having their farms terraced:

J. R. Woodlief
Mr. Woodlief owns a farm located four miles East of Youngsville just off the Tarboro road, containing 100 cultivated acres. He purchased this farm and made enough off of it to pay for it in three years. His chief money crop is tobacco. He produces about 1000 pounds to the acre. He produces enough corn and hay for livestock and some cotton and has made a reputation at making good sweet potatoes. He has signed a Soil Conservation agreement with the S. C. S. The Franklin County Soil Erosion Club terraced his farm and built driveways for him. He will welcome visitors and will be glad to show them the work done on his farm.

J. D. Alford
J. D. Alford owns a 50 acre farm, adjoining Mr. Woodlief. He produces tobacco, cotton, corn and sweet potatoes. Mr. Alford said that he had been trying for several years to control erosion on his farm, but had failed. He is now cooperating with the S. C. S. His terraces were built by the Franklin County Terracing outfit recently.

J. G. Winston
Mr. Winston is a dairy farmer living on the Old Raleigh Road about three and one-half miles S. East of Franklinton. Mr. Winston is a World War Veteran and a good farmer, and good at everything else he goes at. He has cooperated with the A. A. A. as he produces cotton and tobacco along with his dairy products. His cotton produced nearly a bale an acre this year. As a Township Committeeman, he has helped much and received splendid cooperation from his fellow farmers. He grows a lot of lespedeza for hay and soil improvement. He was the first farmer cooperating with the S. C. S. to have part of his farm terraced by the Franklin County Soil Erosion equipment.

J. D. Morris
J. D. Morris owns a store at Harris' Cross Road, and a large tract of land near by. Mr. Morris produces cotton and tobacco, and is cooperating with the A. A. A. He also produces much hay and corn. He is cooperating with the S. C. S., and has had part of his farm terraced by the Franklin County Terracing outfit. He is a public spirited citizen and is a member of the Board of Education of Franklin County.

J. H. Fuller
J. H. Fuller owns a large tract of land located three and one-half miles south of Louisburg on the old Stage road to Raleigh. He produced a bale of cotton to the acre, 1000 pounds of tobacco, and has produced as high as nineteen barrels of corn to the acre. He had his first terracing done by the Franklin County terracing outfit last spring. Since then he has had the same equipment back to his farm twice. He said that the equipment built better terraces on his farm the second time than the first time, and better terraces the third time than the second. The outfit has been to his farm more times than to anyone else's in the County. He is cooperating with the S. C. S.

T. W. Boone
T. W. Boone, Chairman of the County Board of Commissioners, owns a farm located on the road between Edward Best School and Justice. He produces good tobacco and cotton, and is cooperating with the A. A. A. for these crops. He also produces lespedeza, wheat hay and corn. His son, William Boone produced the largest yield of corn per acre of any of the 54 4-H Club members competing. His yield was 62.4 bushels per acre. He is cooperating with the S. C. S. and the Franklin County Soil Erosion Equipment is now waiting on his farm for the land to get in order for building terraces.
