

World's Fair Millions to See China Clippers

Fast nearing completion on Treasure Island in San Francisco Bay is the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition, as seen in this new picture taken from adjoining Yerba Buena Island. Here in the harbor where sailboats now play, Exposition visitors will see giant Pan-American Clippers arriving and departing on trans-Pacific flights.

Dictator once dependent on charity

YOU may not agree with the principles advanced by Adolf Hitler, or you may be an enthusiastic admirer of his. In either case you will be interested in looking at the man and his life to see what lesson we may learn. Perhaps the greatest inspiration to be drawn from the German dictator's life is a word of encouragement for those whose early lives may seem failures.

Adolf Hitler was born on the Bavarian frontier of Germany in 1889, the son of a customs official who had political ambitions for him. The boy developed a desire to be an artist. His father opposed him, so Adolf refused to study in school. He was the despair of his father and mother. When he was eighteen, he went to Vienna and applied for admission to the Academy of Art. His art was too poor to qualify and they directed him to the architectural school, but his loafing in early grades made it impossible for him to pass entrance requirements there. At nineteen, his mother died, and as his father had died five years before, he was left alone.

For three years he slept in a cheap men's hotel in Vienna, getting his meals at a monastery and occasionally begging from passers-by. In the winter he shoveled snow to make a living. Whenever he earned a few kronen, he stopped work and went to some cheap cafe to deliver political speeches. He painted poor water colors which a friend peddled for him, he painted picture postcards, and when hungry enough was a house painter. During the war he was a corporal.

Here was a man in his thirties who had never shown any real promise in anything he did. Then, Adolf Hitler formed an ideal of government.

Timely Farm Questions

Answered at State College

QUESTION: Will it hurt for me to take my cotton to the gin while it is damp?

ANSWER: Yes. Some gins have driers that remove the undesired moisture, but many do not. When damp lint is run through a gin, the saw teeth cut it up so that the quality is impaired. Gin-cut cotton sells at a lower grade and at a price several dollars lower than could be obtained from undamaged lint. Pick the cotton when it is dry, if you can. If you must pick it damp, spread it out where it can dry before you take it to the gin.

QUESTION: My tobacco quota isn't large enough to cover all my crop. Where can I get more quota poundage?

ANSWER: You may have a neighbor who will have some poundage left on his marketing card after he has sold all his leaf. You can buy his surplus for what ever price you both agree upon. Or you can get your county office or warehouse men to get the card for you. When you deal through them, the price you pay the other grower for his surplus quota will be five cents a pound. If you have tobacco worth more than 10 cents a pound, it will pay you to buy extra poundage at the price fixed by the AAA.

Definite results are now being seen from the 100 pounds of triple superphosphate which G. H. Ashe, Jackson County farmer, used on his pasture. Earlier grass and a thicker sod have resulted.

QUESTION: Can I keep chickens profitably in my back yard?

ANSWER: Many people do, but the birds must be given careful attention. Don't overcrowd them. It is better to have a few thrifty pullets than a larger number of old hens. Pullets are better for eating, and they lay more eggs. Keep the poultry house clean, disinfect it for parasites and disease, treat the birds as often as necessary to keep them free from parasites. Plenty of fresh water at all times, a good laying mash, green feed, and grain are needed. Table scraps are fed by some poultry keepers, but don't try to keep your hens healthy on such scraps and nothing else.

In Africa says an explorer, a lot of men never know their wives until after they marry them. We don't understand why he confined his observation to Africa.

Extension men at State College like the AAA's ever normal granary plan. It will insure enough wheat to take care of all needs even in drought years.

NAVY TO OPEN RECRUITING STATION AT LOUISBURG

Lieutenant A. S. Joyner, Jr., U. S. Navy, in charge of Navy Recruiting Activities in the Carolinas, with headquarters in Raleigh, has announced that a temporary recruiting station will be opened soon in Louisburg, N. C., for the purpose of enlisting colored youths in the Navy as Mess Attendants third class.

This recruiting office will be located in the Post Office building and will be open from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. on August 23rd, 24th and 25th. Those eligible for enlistment are colored young men between the ages of 18 and 26, who are unmarried and have no police or juvenile court records. Applicants must be found mentally, physically and morally qualified as a result of examination and thorough investigation.

The Navy is now enlisting a total of 80 colored boys each month for the duties of Mess Attendant. These duties consist chiefly of cooking, table service and the general care of officers' living spaces. Those found qualified in all respects will be enlisted with the least possible delay and transferred to the Naval Training Station, Norfolk, Va., for recruit training and for assignment to duty on board vessels of the fleet upon completion of training.

Those applicants who are unable to apply for enlistment in Louisburg on the above dates may apply at the Post Office building in Raleigh, Room 412.

Prosperity is not so much a matter of dollars as it is a matter of dollars and sense.

ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

- 1 The GENERAL ELECTRIC Triple-Thrift REFRIGERATOR is a product of the combined research, engineering skill and manufacturing experience of the world's largest electrical manufacturing company. It is thrifty in price, thrifty in current, thrifty in upkeep.
- 2 The all-steel refrigerator cabinet, the sealed-in-steel cold-making mechanism, the 5 year performance protection plan all were originated by GENERAL ELECTRIC.
- 3 Although the sealed-in-steel G-E THRIFT UNIT is now widely imitated it is still years ahead. For G-E's sealed mechanism has long since passed the experimental stage, and is the only one that has been constantly improved for twelve years. OIL COOLING is a GENERAL ELECTRIC development that assures quiet operation, low current cost and long life.
- 4 GENERAL ELECTRIC has built and sold more refrigerators with the popular sealed type of mechanism than any other manufacturer.
- 5 The GENERAL ELECTRIC is recommended to you by millions of satisfied users, and has an unparalleled record for enduring economy.
- 6 GENERAL ELECTRIC new economy models of 1938 climax a smashing 12-year record of ever increasing values. And this first choice of millions is now popularly priced!
