

Varsity Baseball Prospectus--1939

Wake Forest, March 14.—Take away nine lettermen, (seven of whom were regulars), from a varsity college baseball squad, and you'd have most any coach singing the blues. That is what happened to Coach John Caddell's Wake Forest nine after the 1938 campaign—nine of his boys graduated and seven are back for the 1939 race.

Although such a heavy player loss may seem discouraging, Coach Caddell doesn't seem to be losing a great deal of sleep over prospects for the coming season. This may be because of the fact that he's got a likely bunch of sophomores with which to make replacements. And, too, there are enough old boys back to form a nucleus for the Deacons nine.

Here are the boys who are missing: Pitchers, Joe Talley, Hal Farley, Forest Glass and George Wirtz; Virgil Payne and Fred Hoyle, centerfielder and rightfielder; Smoot Aderholt, second sacker; and utility players, Walt Clayton and Boots Munford. Talley was the team's leading hurler, although the others saw their share of duty. Wirtz hurled a no-hitter for the Deacs last year. Payne, Hoyle, and Aderholt were three of the club's heaviest hitters.

Forgetting about those who are gone, we find that Captain Irvin Dickens is again in the harness, and after two years of varsity participation, is ready for another great year. Tallie Dupree, third baseman, and Dave Fuller, first baseman in 1938, are back for their jobs. Dupree appears a certainty to repeat for the hot corner, but Fuller will have plenty of competition from Soph Paul Weavers for the initial sock. Aderholt's vacant keystone post will probably fall to the lot of Soph Pete Nelson, though H. O. Barnes, a reserve, may push in for the No. 1 spot.

The outfield positions are wide open. Billy Euster, 1938 first stringer, Tony Gallovich, of football fame, Dick Hoyle, brother to Fred, Jack Williams, and Fred Eason, sophomores, will just have to fight it out for the first string berths. The four soph were all members of the 1938 freshmen state championship outfit. Gallovich and Hoyle were infielders on that club, but the presence of old heads for their positions on the varsity caused their conversion to outfielders.

Behind the plate, Bill Sweet has the leading spot well under control. His relief men are Chub Peele, who did a great deal of the receiving along with Sweet last year, and Tony Gallionis, a sophomore. Sweet isn't such a good hitter, but his arm is just about all that could be asked for—very seldom will a man steal when he's catching.

The only returning moundsman is Jim Denning. But he's going to have plenty of assistance from Sophomore Tommy Byrne, a southpaw, and Rae Scarborough, a righthander who is reported to have plenty of stuff. The hurling corps of uncertainties will include John Pennington, a sophomore who will all so serve as pinch hitter, Ben Shuford, and Ben Weathers, seniors of untried quality.

Coach Caddell has been working his hurlers since the middle of February indoors, and they should be ready to open up when the Deacons begin their campaign. March 24th against Springfield College (Mass.) here on Groves Baseball Field. March 24 has been designated "Monogram Club Day" here and diamond contest will be the highlight of the activities, as many old Wake Forest grads return to the campus.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT OLD-AGE INSURANCE

QUESTION: I am a farmer. I own my land and my sock. I manage to make a living for my family and to send my children to school. It is not so easy to carry the load at all times but none of us would be willing to accept charity. Now, I want to know what good Social Security Act can ever be to me?

ANSWER: Under provisions of the Social Security Act, several million dollars have come into this State from the Federal Government within the past three years. That money helped maintain the buying power in the State and perhaps helped in providing a market for your farm crops. In the second place, whether or not you ever hold a job that will enable you to claim old-age insurance or unemployment compensation under the Social Security Act, it is quite possible that your sons or daughters will some day have jobs in commerce or industry and will be very glad to take advantage of this financial protection.

QUESTION: I operate a lunch room and have three helpers. About two months ago, I sent in my old-age insurance tax. Last week, I got a notice saying that I must give the name and account number of each of my employees on my tax return. Why is that necessary?

ANSWER: Unless the Social Security Board knows the name and account number of each of your employees they might not receive credit on the records of the Social Security Board for the wages they earned in your service. You are required to give the account number of each employee in making your tax return to the Collector of Internal Revenue. Then the Social Security Board obtains that information from the Bureau of Internal Revenue and enters it on the wage records. Every employer who deducts taxes from the wages of his employees and who matches the amounts deducted should be interested in making sure that his employees are credited with the proper amount of wages. If the account number of each employee is shown on your quarterly report, you may be certain that the proper credits will be made.

QUESTION: Two years ago when I was working for a plumber in Delaware, I got a Social Security Account Number. In 1938, I bought a little repair shop of my own and did not need an account number. Now, I have closed out the business, moved to another state and I am looking for a job. Will I be allowed to use the same Social Security account number that I got in Delaware?

ANSWER: Yes. You should never have but one account number. The number you obtained in Delaware in 1937 is good in any state at any time. Wages paid to you in the plumbing job were credited to your account on the records of the Social Security Board. A ledger sheet showing your name and account number and the wages you received while employed in the shop, factory, store or any other line of industry or commerce your employer will report your wages quarterly to the Government; and the amount of your wages will later be transferred to the records of the Social Security Board. Finally, when you claim payment of your old-age insurance, your benefits will be based upon the sum total of all wages shown on your record. That is why you should have one account number and only one. Otherwise, you may lose some of the benefits to which your wage earnings will entitle you.
