CEILING ON BED SPRINGS

Atlanta.—Dollars - and - cents ceiling prices on used metal coil and flat bedsprings, which in some crowded war centers have been selling higher than original cost, will go into effect Wednesday, the region Office of Price Administration announced today.

Limited production of new bedsprings and an unusually large demand for used springs, OPA officials said, brought about the necessity for ceilings, which are established at wholesale and retail. The new regulation applies to five types of springs, and requires retailers to attach a tag to each spring indicating its maximum price. A sale by one person to another comes under the regulation, as do sales at auction.

The five types are listed as link wire fabric, crimp top coil, cable wire and steel band top, single deck coil, and full double deck coil. Wholesale price ceilings on these range from $1.50 for the first type; to $3.00 for the latter, and retail prices are $3.50 to $6.50 depending on the type.

"Reconditioned" bedsprings are identified as those which meet these requirements: properly aligned frame, replacement or repair of missing or damaged parts, secure fastening of all parts, proper alignment of top surface, and complete repainting of bedspring.

Such "reconditioned" spring cannot sell for more than $3.50 - $6.00 at wholesale, or $7.12 at retail, the highest price in each case being for the double deck coil type only.

Use of devices for effecting higher prices without actually raising the dollars-and-cents levels, such as bulk and combination sales, commissions and premiums, is prohibited by the regulation.
