Attend ARA Meeting

Franklin County Commissioners; Charles Edwards of Raleigh, N.C. A.R.A. Administrator; Louisburg Mayor, Louis A. Wheless and County Industrial Director, W. J. Benton.

ARA Coordinator Speaks

Mr. Charles Edwards, Field Coordinator for the Area Redevelopment Administration in North Carolina spoke to a group of county and municipal officials in the courthouse Monday night. He explained the various financial assistance programs that were available through his agency for the county, municipalities, and private individuals in Franklin County. Among the programs mentioned were utility extensions and improvements and assistance to private concerns. The meeting was arranged by William J. Benton, Industrial Director for the County.

Louisburg Lions Study Needs Of The County

Lion Warren Smith spoke to the Lions Club Tuesday night on poverty in Franklin County. He was assisted by Dr. J. Bryant Kirkland and Dr. Amos Abrams.

Dr. Kirkland is Dean of the School of Education of North Carolina State College. He is also a member of the Raleigh Lions Club and a candidate for District Governor of District 31G. Dr. Abrams is the editor of the NCEA magazine in Raleigh.

Lion Smith gave some startling facts, which reveal that Franklin County is not growing as it must in its fight against poverty. Industry is desperately needed. Trade schools are needed for those students who cannot or who have no ambition to attend college. Many people feel that school consolidation can improve poverty. Lack of these three, industry, trade schools, and consolidation has also caused an above normal flow of migration from the county.

These facts do not mean that Franklin County is increasing in poverty by any means. Studies are being made in the field of education. For example, even though the number of teachers with Class A certificates is about the same the number of teachers with Master Degrees has doubled in recent years. However, there is a grave problem, to be Speed and Norris W. Collins, along with Moss are expected to make their platforms known in the Candidates Meeting scheduled for tonight in the Louisburg College Auditorium.

In the statement issued by Moss, the Youngsville native, says he favors a lighter

Franklinton Police Call For Tags

Chief Leo Edwards of the Franklinton Police Department issued a final warning today to motorists who have not yet purchased their city tags. Chief Edwards reported that a number of parking violators had been cited, but that the situation has improved.

He said there are around 100 motor vehicle owners listed on the town records that have not purchased their city tags as required by law. Edwards said the tags cost one dollar, and added that this is much less than the $18.20 court costs for violators. He requested that those who do not have their tags, save themselves embarrassment and expense by getting them immediately and displaying them.

teacher load in our schools.

"The greatest need in our public schools is to relieve the overcrowded classrooms," said Moss. He added that, "Additional facilities and a variety of vocational courses would reduce dropouts."

"I shall propose and support legislation which will increase farm income," the announcement said. "Research is needed on tobacco varieties, production problems and mechanization of harvesting," Moss said, "and marketing of food needs to be pushed in order that we may stop the present outward flow of money from our state."

Moss favors the Speaker Ban Law, salary adjustments for state employees and teachers, and business like operation of state government. He is opposed to any tax increase, according to his statement.

"If Franklin County is going to make progress and grow it must have good roads and additional industry. I shall exert every effort to bring these vital elements of progress to our county," Moss stated.

The two-page public statement by Moss is the first of its kind by any local candidate and is expected to bring out other statements on the issues. Moss was second to announce his candidacy for the House seat. Commissioner Norris W. Collins of Franklinton was first to make his announcement. Incumbent James D. Speed announced and filed on the final day. All three have been busy at work traveling the county on a person to person vote getting campaign.

Central Alarm System Installed In County

The Franklin County Firemen's Association is installing the Central Fire Alarm System in departments throughout the county this week. The system, which will make Louisburg the base station for its operation, is expected to be ready in about a week.

The new communications set-up consists of two-way radios in each of the six fire departments in the county. Epsom, Centerville, Bunn, Justice, Youngsville and Franklinton stations will be on the direct hookup. The Louisburg Fire Department is not participating in the project. The main equipment and base station is located in the Louisburg Fire Department building and will be manned by the two full time department employees plus a new man hired under the Central Alarm program. Engineers Joe Perry and Carl Pernel will man the telephone and radio for the county organization, along with Tom Denton, Jr., recently employed. Denton's salary is to be paid by the Firemen's Association through the Town of Louisburg.

The project, which has been in the making for over two years is expected to cost around $10,000. The Board of County Commissioners have appropriated $4,000 a year for the past two years toward this project, from county tax funds. The funds are to be donated to the Firemen's Association for the purpose of installing the system.

The installation of the equipment is being made by Piedmont Communications Company and the equipment was purchased from Motorola Communications and Electronics, Inc. Local telephone company personnel are installing the telephone lines for the project.

When the system is completed, people throughout the county will call one number, to be announced later, in Louisburg. The caller should state clearly who they are, where the fire is located, and never hang up until told to do so by the dispatcher. When a fire call is received, the dispatcher in the Louisburg station will press a button, which will set off the siren or horn alarm at the fire station nearest the location of the fire.

The first fireman to reach the station will call by radio to Louisburg and get instructions. Thereafter, the truck will be in radio contact with his own station and through the base station, will be in radio contact with every other station in the county.

Full instructions will be announced later according to H. D. Mitchell, Chairman of the Communications Committee. Louisburg Fire Department personnel have announced that fire calls for the Louisburg area will be done in the same manner as before. The Louisburg area phone number has not and will not be changed. It remains GY6-3131.

Firemen Comment On New County Central Alarm System

The new Central Fire Alarm System has been met generally with enthusiasm among firemen throughout the county. While many were not available for comment due to their regular duties, several were contacted and asked what they thought of the system. These are their comments: Centerville Fire Chief, L. M. Ward;

"I think it is a fine thing. We've been working for it nearly two years. Asher Johnson, Jr., started it and worked hard for it. While it is not yet in full operation, in one fire a few days ago, I figure it saved our department about twenty man hours and around $37 personal expense among the firemen."

Ward told of a brush fire on Highway 561 which his department was called to and the fact that only a truck and two men were required. "The two-way radio system between the fire house and truck saved having to call out the entire unit. Louisburg Assistant Fire Chief, R. G. Person:

"I think it is a great forward step in fire fighting service in Franklin County. However, I feel the people should know that, while good, it is not fool proof. While the equipment is housed in the Louisburg building and will be manned by paid Louisburg Fire Department personnel, there is the chance that at some given time, one or all Louisburg Fire Department personnel could be called away, leaving the telephone and equipment unattended. While this is unlikely, it could happen. Our department intends to give its full cooperation."

Louisburg Engineer No. 1, Joe Perry: "While not affecting our department, I think it is a fine thing for our county." Perry is one of the three paid firemen whose duty it will be to man the equipment in his on-duty hours. Louisburg has two full-time paid firemen the other being Engineer No. 2, Carl Pernel. Under this county-wide alarm program, another full-time man, Tom Denton, Jr., has been employed. Louisburg Engineer No. 3, Tom Denton, Jr.:

"I agree with Joe (Perry), I think it will be a good thing for our county." Denton has recently been hired and is now being trained as the third man in the department. It is reported that the shifts will now be arranged with a man on 24 hours and one off 24 as in the past, and the one man under the new system will be on 12 and off 12.

Bunn Fire Chief, H. D. Mitchell: "First thing we needed to do, in order to buy this equipment, was to form the Franklin County Firemen's Association. This has brought all the firemen closer together and now with this new system, I feel, there will be even closer cooperation between all fire departments in the county. I believe the new system will save from three to five minutes of valuable time on each call."

Mitchell is Chairman of the Communications Committee and has been in charge of the Central Alarm project. A. E. Hall of Youngsville is President of the Association.

Johnson's Health

Washington, D. C.--In answer to a query concerning the President's health, the White House issued a statement that despite the whirlwind pace he has been keeping, President Johnson's heart is apparently still doing fine. There are indications the President knows how to mix rest and relaxation with his fast-stepping work day.

College Gets Flag

Old Glory is shown flowing in the breeze Wednesday on the campus of Louisburg College. The flag was presented to the college by this year's Sophomore Class. This was the first flag presented by a class in twenty years.
