Lions Hear Bank Official

Jack Burgess, Development Officer of Boys' Home at Lake Waccamaw, North Carolina, was the guest speaker at the local Lions Club last Tuesday evening. Mr. Burgess showed slides and discussed various aspects of the program.

Burgess explained that Boys Home began with five boys in 1954 and has a present enrollment of 103 boys. The Home is sustained largely through contributions from the Civitans, Lions, Jaycees, Kiwanians, Rotarians, Optimists, and interested individuals. Each organization supports a cottage of at least sixteen boys. These boys, along with a house mother, help to cook and clean. However, the boys are allowed to help other people in order to gain pending money.

He added, as for education there is a seventh and an eighth grade on campus. There is also a special class for the deficient. The idea is for the boy to grow at his own rate because "a boy saved is a man made." There is also emphasis on individual counseling and religious training, although the boys attend church off campus.

Comment On Sports

When Major League owners meet February 4th near Miami they're up against a deadline - they must finally name a new Commissioner. And they should give him enough authority to run the game, making changes if necessary.

There are several candidates for the post William Eckert is relinquishing under pressure. Among those mentioned have been Hubert Humphrey, Governor James Rhodes of Ohio, Vince Lombardi of the Green Bay (Football) Packers, John McHale, Lee MacPhail and Chub Feeney, the latter three with present baseball jobs (Montreal, New York Yankees and San Francisco), and Pete Rozelle.

The new boss of the game must do something to regain an image of modern, fast-moving action of the park. It can be done but when changes are made there are always barriers, an entrenched Old Guard to defeat.

Critics agree too much time is wasted by pitchers, by managers on occasion, and by rain and postponements which seldom afflict football. Stadiums like the astro dome solve the weather problem; the new Commissioner must solve the other delay problems.

Also, critics believe the decline of batting averages and hitters in general, at the expense of stronger pitching, is making the game less exciting. More dramatic home runs, extrabase hits off the good pitchers to win close games and more high-scoring games are desirable.

The homerun, which Babe Ruth used to create so much excitement, and extra-base hits should be seen more often (though some clubs of late have been specializing in homers at the cost of numerous strikeouts) and yet this added hitting should not eliminate the hit-and-run and running game, probably the most dramatic manifestation of strategy in the game.
