THREE PRETTY MAIDS—Cathy Muirhead (center), 19-year-old sophomore at Texas Woman's University, Denton, is the nation's new Maid of Cotton. The hazel-eyed brunette was chosen as the cotton industry's 1969 fashion and grand will ambassador at finals in Memphis, Tenn., on January 3. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Muirhead, Jr., Denton, Texas. Named first alternate was 20-year-old Cynthia Vincent (left), Martin, Tenn., who is a junior at the University of Mississippi. Second alternate is Eileen Arnold, 20, El Paso, a junior at Rice University. The new Maid will open her international tour in Canada late in January. She will visit 33 cities in North America before touring a number of countries in the Far East.

COLORFUL—Patterned in paisley and richly colored in navy, maroon, orange, and white is this long graceful cotton gown created by Bill Blass for Maurice Rentner. Thin straps looped around brass rings hold the deep-dipping bodice which is underscored by a belt and bow.

LC Presents The Platters In Concert

The Louisburg College Concert Series presents the Platters Wednesday, January 29, 1969, at 8 p.m. in the College Auditorium. The concert date was originally scheduled for February 4.

Chiefly responsible for the Platters' 14 years of success, since their origin in Los Angeles, has been their discoverer, founder, and arranger, Buck Ram. He has written or arranged more than 500 songs, and 13 of them have become gold records. The program here will include the old standard favorites, as "The Great Pretender," "Magic Touch," "Twilight Time," "My Prayer," and "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes," and many new blues and jazz numbers.

Admission is by season ticket only.

Health And Beauty

This is a chat about the most important members of the human family, the children. There are parents who really love their little children, yet are so unwise and selfish that they are ruining them for time and eternity.

When people assume the responsibility of becoming parents, they take upon themselves very grave and solemn obligations.

It is, needless to say that the meals should be regular and nourishing, and that children should not be allowed to nibble upon dainties and knickknacks between meals. If the children are properly fed, get sufficient exercise and enough sleep, they can build sound bodies, provided their surroundings are congenial and happy.

Little children should be in bed at an early hour; and if parents drag them about at night, or permit them to be up until late hours, they are undermining their health.

Children should be secure and happy. When they are very young they should be made to realize that their parents love them. No partiality should be shown.

The hearts of the very young are sensitive and feelings are easily and deeply hurt. Many a young heart has been wounded by real or apparent partiality shown by a parent to one child over another.

To a little child, the father and mother are ideal, their models, which they unconsciously copy. Beware of setting your child a bad example.

When your children grow up, you want to be proud of them. Do not give them cause to be ashamed of you now.

We often hear people remark that their temperature usually runs a little low or a little high rather than consistently within the normal range of 98 to 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. This generally is a misconception and may often contribute toward negligence for proper attention to a potentially serious condition.

A daily elevation of temperature, particularly in the afternoon, has a very significant meaning for the consideration of many different types of infections.

Foremost among these are tuberculosis, undulant fever, various forms of typhoid fever; infectious mononucleosis or glandular fever, sarcoidosis and countless other minor low-grade infections.

Many serious systemic diseases such as malignancies of the blood cells and glandular system, cancer in general, excessive thyroid gland activity and rheumatic fever are initially recognized by the persistence of a slightly elevated temperature.

In most people, and with very few exceptions, the body temperature is a result of a very sensitive regulatory mechanism involving a complex chain of metabolic reactions and an extremely vital temperature control center within the central nervous system.

This balance very rarely results in a physiological body temperature consistently above 98.6 degrees. Consequently, temperature elevation affords an excellent means for everyone to recognize an insidious development of a disease which might otherwise go unaccounted for a dangerous period of time.

COZY—Cone's giant wale cotton corduroy gives luxury treatment to this fashionable robe for at-home wear. Styled with long, flowing lines, it's accentuated with two gold buttons at the neck. Designed by Stella Fagin.

No Insect

There had been a rear-end collision. One of the drivers climbed out in a fit of temper and strode up to a man standing on the sidewalk, thinking him to be the other driver.

"Say, where's your tail light?" he roared.

The innocent bystander looked up at him. "What do you think I am a blooming lightning bug?"

Baptist Men's Day Observed

Youngville - Baptist Men's Day was observed in the Youngville Church Sunday morning at the worship hour. A two part message on "A Christian Looks at the Space Program" was presented by two laymen.

L. A. Woodlief spoke on the subject of "Should we continue the space probe?" and W. M. DeMent's topic was "What effect will our space findings have on ones belief in God?"

Mr. R. M. Cooper had the invocation and scripture reading was by R. E. Cheatham. Prayers were by W. R. Evans, Maryland Holmes and Church Minister L. J. Phillips. Mark Woodlief was pianist for the service.

At the evening worship hour a program of music on the works of Charles Wesley was presented. Special music was by a trio including Mrs. L. J. Phillips, Mrs. T. E. Lindsey and Mrs. Betty Jean Holmes; and a solo "My Task" as sung by Rhonda Strickland. Pianist was Janet Pearce.

Presenting speeches were Brenda Sanders on "How to Sing In Church Worship"; Harriet Pearce on "The Life of Charles Wesley"; Carol Mitchell on "Music As A Witnessing Action"; Church Minister L. J. Phillips on "Music: A Definition."

The Youth Activities Committee of the church held a business meeting on Sunday afternoon in the Young People's Room of the church. The Junior Fellowship Group enjoyed a social meeting at the church following the evening worship service.

Care For Fruit Trees

If you want good home grown fruit you must care for plants that are to produce it. Many of us plant a couple of apple trees, a grape vine or two and wait for our harvest. This is idle dreaming.

You must know what needs doing to your fruit trees and when to do it. This is even more important when growing fruit than with vegetable farming. If you make a mistake with vegetables, you start all over the next year anyway. Fruit trees are bought and planted to give pleasure year after year.

Inform yourself before you plant your fruit trees. The best source of information is your state agricultural experiment station. Here you can learn the varieties best adapted to your particular locality, the spray schedule to follow and any kind of information you may need.

Almost all fruits grow well on fertile, loamy soil that is well drained. They need plenty of sunlight.

Make sure you get vigorous healthy, planting stock of desirable age to plant. Never buy older stock. This older stock does not pay.

Unpack plant shipments as soon as they arrive from the nursery. If the plants are at all dry, soak the roots in water for a few hours before planting.

Prepare the ground thoroughly for planting. The holes should be of ample size to permit spreading the roots without cramping. Set plants at the recommended depth. It is necessary to stake most fruit trees for a time after planting.

It is excusable to get tired when you work hard but the trouble with the average person is a tendency to get tired before working.
