Tests Freedom As A Value

"Freedom, a Value in a Changing Society" was the fifth program in the year's study of "Testing Values in a Changing Society" presented Monday evening at the meeting of the Louisburg Branch of the American Association of University Women which was held in the Faculty Lounge of the A-C Building, Louisburg College.

Introduced by Program Chairman, Mrs. Betty Jean Timberlake of Franklinton, Miss Ruth Merritt of the College Faculty opened the program with a glimpse of the numerous Federal Educational programs which have greatly increased since the 1920's, in spite of the extent of state participation in educational programs and procedures as currently conceived. She then introduced her panelists who spoke on different aspects of educational freedom.

Betsy Dowtin, Louisburg College freshman from Raleigh, spoke on freedom of the human being, stressing individual rights divinely endowed and those humanly granted. Richard Seaton, Louisburg College sophomore from Rocky Mount, explored freedom as related to civil rights, pointing out racial inequalities.

From Franklinton High School, Al Thompson, a junior, related freedom to voting and the draft, voicing the current situation and posing questions for audience consideration while Annette Ball, a senior, described student unrest on college campuses, admitting some just causes yet some cases in which rights and wisdom are questionable.
