Rotary Tar Heel League Round-up

With but two weeks remaining for League play, Bunn is nestled at the top of the Little League standings with only First Citizens considered as an outside threat to their security. However, First Citizens needs some help to unseat the champions as they only play Bunn once more this season. It was they, behind the strong arm of Herlie Horton, who handed Bunn its only defeat of the year. Anything is possible in Little League though; so, don't go away. Come on out to the ballpark and root for your favorite.

Harris Pharmacy, of the Junior League Division, appears to be the team to beat as they hold first place by one and one-half games. Warren Wrenn, unable to play because of an early season injury during the first two games, has compiled a healthy 4-0 pitching record with strong defensive suppot and powerful hitting sticks from his fellow Redwings to lead them to their first place status. Here again, anything is possible and Harris Pharmacy must continue its present pace to emerge as Conference Champions. Any team in this division is considered a challenger

As the regular season

draws to a successful close, another begins - All-Star competition. Coaches are surveying the field of candidates critically to select the 15 boys from each division who will best afford the Louisburg Rotary Tar Heel League an opportunity to claim the state crown. And there are rumblings in the background

Junior League Play

In limited action during the past holiday-week Creedmoor was victor over Bunn, Nash Farms suffered two de feats, a forfeit to Camp Butner and a tingler to Bunn.

Smart Computer

Wichita, Kan. -- When a resident received a bill made out by a computer from a large department store show ing he owned $00.00, he ignored it. The next month he got a bill for the same amount with the notation past due. Later he received another bill with a stern no-tice. This time he sent a check for $00.00.

Eddie Wrenn, Route 2, Louisburg, is shown above with a 614 pound bass landed recently in a private pond. Wrenn reports he used a jitter bug on a spinner as bait.
