

Golden Wedding Is Celebrated By Fosters

MR. AND MRS. W.D. FOSTER

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Foster of the Epsom community celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Saturday evening at a reception in the educational building of Liberty Vance United Church of Christ. Some 200 friends and relatives called between the hours of 7:30 and ten o'clock to remember the couple and extend best wishes.

For the occasion, Mrs. Foster was attired in a blue summer knit dress accented by a corsage of yellow roses.

On arrival, guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ben Eaves and Mr. and Mrs. Joe F. Ayscue. Mr. and Mrs. John Foster, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Moss were at the guest registry.

Introducing to the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Newman and Mr. and Mrs. Tollie Smith. In the line were the honored couple, their grandson Danny Rowland; Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Foster, who were wed the same day as the guests of honor; Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Eaves, brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Foster; and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Falkner, who also were celebrating their wedding anniversary.

Miss Margaret Alston and Mrs. Nora Fuller presided at a special table that held in the center a box covered in gold paper in which were placed honor gifts for the building fund of the church. Flanking the box were brass candleholders bearing gold tapers. A white crocheted cloth covered the table.

Overlaid with a white taffeta cloth with net inserts, the serving table featured a centerpiece of mixed summer flowers in hues of gold complemented by twin double crystal holders with gold tapers. On one end was placed a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with bells and gold roses. The punch bowl graced the opposite end. Magnolia foliage and brass candleholders with gold tapers decorated the piano, in the center of which was an appointment of yellow gladioli and chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Harold Ayscue and Miss Susan Booth presided over the punch bowl. Serving the cake was Mrs. E. A. Joyner. Also served were cake squares, party sandwiches, ham biscuits, cheese straws, homemade mints and nuts. F. B. Fuller provided the punch.

Assisting in the serving were Misses Michelle Eaves, Kay Eaves, Brenda Duckworth, Pam Moss, Edith Green, Jacque Foster, Sandra Foster, Mrs. Daniel Ayscue, Mrs. Charles Ayscue, Miss Linda Jo Ayscue, Mrs. Kenneth Harper, Miss Delores Falkner, Mrs. Kermit Hoyle, Mrs. Wesley Pendergrass, Mrs. Harold Renn, Julian Moss, Mrs. Alton Foster, and Mrs.

Talmadge Burgess. Others who assisted in the entertaining were Mrs. Olive Foster and Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Weldon.

On their departure, guests spoke goodbyes to Mr. and Mrs. Macy Rowland and Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Ayscue.

Out-of-town visitors were from Wilson, Mebane, Norfolk, Va., Hampton, Va., Sanford, Raleigh, Greensboro, Durham, Louisburg, Henderson, Clemmons and Kingsport, Tenn.

The reception was directed by Mrs. B. M. Newman.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster are well known and long-time residents of the Epsom community. Both are members of Liberty Vance United Church of Christ where Mrs. Foster has served on the board of deaconesses for two terms and has taught Sunday school for numerous years. She presently teaches the Ladies' Bible class. Also active in community affairs, she is a member of the Epsom Arts and Crafts club and Missionary Society.

A retired farmer, Mr. Foster is currently serving his third term as deacon at Liberty church. For a number of years he was a member of the Franklin A. S. C. community committee.

Motherhood Around The World

New York (NAPS) - Mutter, Madre, Mamushka, Muchin, Emmah, Mater, Mere, Mom. Put them all together - they spell "mother" in eight different languages. For no language alone adequately convey the universal bond between mother and child.

A look at motherhood in different parts of the world points up some of the ways in which the good woman has earned respect and reverence.

Her roles in many cultures vary even more than her name. Some Soviet mothers are awarded silver and even gold medals, and a few achieve the status of "Hero Mother," yet many still swaddle their infants. A Mexican mother needs no babysitter while she works: she carries her tot with her. Italian mothers pin gold charms to their babies' shirts, while many a Chinese mother still solemnly binds her infant daughter's feet.

In ancient history, an Egyptian pharaoh carved into his mother's tomb the words: "One thing along is better and more beautiful than anything under the rays of the Sun God. It is mother." More recently, Abraham Lincoln said: "All that I am or hope to be I owe to my mother."

Remarkably, a town once honored a mother who took care of 53 children at one time by erecting a plaque to her 400 years later. Napoleon echoed the feelings of many children when he said that his mother was "unique among women". But it is difficult to surpass the devotion of a British Lord who sent his mother a letter every day - for fifty years. Today's practice of sending flowers to mother flourished in a different form centuries ago. The Mediterranean and Mideastern pre-Christians had annual showers of flowers in honor of the Mother of Gods.

Under the name of Cybele, she was borrowed from the Phrygians of Asia Minor by Emperor Claudius and incorporated into Rome's March salute to spring - a three-day fiesta that featured wreaths of violets. But expressions of affection for mothers today are not confined to any particular time of the year. Sending flowers almost anywhere on earth is made possible through Florists' Transworld Delivery Association.

Now coming into vogue is a new system which enables you to send a permanent gift to mother along with flowers. Called FTD "Speed-A-Gift," delivery service. It is the first out-of-town flower service that lets you send a bouquet, a greeting and a present over the phone. Some of the gifts are a copper chafing dish, pitcher and bowl, coffee grinder, fondue dish, cup and saucer, drinking mug, watering can, silent butler, tea kettle, silver bowl and ice bucket.

For the average man or woman, such are as eloquent as words. One man who didn't spare the words was the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, who once sent his mother a letter 21,000 words long!

Motherhood, according to Rebecca West, is "neither a duty nor a privilege but simply the way that humanity can satisfy its desire for physical immortality."

Through the ages, reverence for mothers has been expressed in many forms in both mythology and folklore, reflecting religious beliefs on the one hand and human affection on the other. An ancient Hebrew proverb had it that "God couldn't be everywhere at once, so he had to create mothers." Also in a religious vein, Samuel Cole-ridge called mothers "the holiest things alive." And William Thackeray called her "the name for God in the lips and hearts of little children."

In spite of all the words of wisdom, a fallacy still prevails. It is that Mother's Day comes once a year. Mothers know better. Mother's Day comes every time a son or daughter says, "I love you."

Garden Time

By M. E. Gardner

For this column I am using parts of an article which appeared in "The Gardener", a publication of the Men's Garden Clubs of America. It was prepared by Dr. Ralph M. Watkins (MD) of Chapel Hill. Dr. Watkins is a member of the Chapel Hill Men's Garden Club.

"There is a dearth of literature on the specific relationship between health and the growing of garden products. One can only use reason to come to the conclusion that this type of activity does promote physical and mental well-being.

"A medical axiom is to the point that a man should do all the physical work he comfortably can for as long as he can. Exercise up to the tolerance point is a good thing. Beyond that - to the point of straining - it may be harmful. The physical exertion needed in digging, cultivating, mowing and other gardening work promotes the circulation of the blood. This carries a beneficial supply of oxygen to all the body structures secondary to the increased breathing action which necessarily accompanies exertion. Also, it is an aid to digestion elimination. If one carries out such a program conscientiously and is reasonably careful about his diet, he can avoid the problems of obesity, a plague of the older man.

"There apparently are few figures as to the incidence of coronary attacks in men who follow the above practices, but it is safe to say that such attacks are decidedly less frequent. All of us know of friends who have had heart attacks, but if we know them well we find that comparatively few of them were persons who had a program of moderate daily exercise such as they could get in garden work.

"Incidentally, it is hoped that all persons who work with soil keep themselves immunized against tetanus.

"The fisherman, if lucky, can bring home something to see and to eat, while the golfer can bring home a score card. The horticulturist, however, has a tremendous advantage. He can watch something grow. He can harvest fruits and vegetables. He can gather blooms. This contributes greatly to a sense of well-being and satisfaction. He can relax with his plants, forget his business or professional worries and enjoy the outdoor air. Over and above all this is the feeling of a tangible accomplishment. These factors promote psychological relaxation."
