Agricultural Extension News

Effective July 28, the Commissioner of Agriculture has found it necessary to place a quarantine on the movement of swine other than immediate slaughter, according to L. D. Baldwin, Agricultural Extension Agent. The reason for the quarantine is because of an upsurge in the number of hog cholera outbreaks. Earlier in the year, hog cholera outbreaks were traced to assembly points for swine such as stock yards and buying stations. Large herds had become infected because infected or exposed animals had been marketed. Many states have placed restrictions on the entry of swine from North Carolina. These restrictions vary in severity from a complete ban on the entry of all swine to the requirement for a permit for each shipment. The embargo of our feeder pigs from Ohio and the severe restrictions imposed by Virginia are very costly. Information is available whereby federal quarantine may be imposed on the movement of swine to areas where hog cholera represents a threat to other states. Such quarantine has already been applied in portions of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia. The proclamation issued by the Commissioner of Agriculture in this state permits the following:

1. It permits the orderly marketing of hogs as at present.
2. It permits the movement of swine for exhibition purpose on a permit basis.

3. It suspends until further notice sales of all swine, except for immediate slaughter at livestock markets.
4. It suspends until further notice all feeder pig sales.
5. It permits the sale of purebred breeding stock on a permit basis.
Mr. Graham further states that the restriction on the movement will be lifted in whole or in part as the situation improves.
