

Garden Time

By M. E. Gardner

Recently I received a letter from a prominent nurseryman in the Greensboro area requesting information about the "Marine" pine.

I was not familiar with this species so I consulted a friend and co-worker, Professor Walter M. Keller, in the School of Forestry. He very kindly supplies rather complete information and I am passing it along to my readers because I found it interesting, too.

Somewhere along the line the nurseryman has confused the names. What he referred to was Maritime pine, Pinus pinaster, instead of "Marine" pine. The Maritime pine is sometimes also referred to as "cluster pine."

The Maritime pine is a native of the Mediterranean region. It is distinguished from other species by thick, deeply fissured, reddish bark and by long stout leaves, persistent cones and long, stout, winter buds. The cones are securely attached and may remain on the tree for several years before dropping.

The needles are in pairs, stout, slightly curved and five to six inches long. They have sharp points on the tips of the needles. In appearance, the Maritime pine most closely resembles Scotch and Austrian pines.

The wood of the tree is quite hard, coarse grained and highly resinous. It is tapped for resin just as the Longleaf and Slash pines are tapped for this product in South Georgia and Northern Florida.

In Western Europe this species is the one on which the navel store's industry is dependent.

The Maritime pine thrives best on light sandy soils which are deep. Few trees give better results on beach sands and dunes. Another important characteristic of this tree is the fact that it is highly resistant to salt spray. For this reason it is receiving consideration for planting in the coastal areas of North Carolina.

The tree is not too hardy and will not succeed in colder regions. It is reported not to be adapted to clay soils. However, no information is available on how far inland the tree might be planted and still be expected to thrive and do well.

Within the natural range for this species, the tree will grow to a height of 90 to 120 feet except when exposed to heavy salt spray. Under such conditions it is usually much shorter, sometimes approaching shrub-like growth.

Thanks

Many thanks for the cards, gifts and kindnesses shown me while I was a patient in Franklin Memorial Hospital and Park View Hospital in Rocky Mount.

(04FR004901) DANANG, VIETNAM (FHTNC) Aug. 5 - Engineman Third Class Connie B. Moss, USN, son of Mrs. Magnolia R. Wilder of Route 4, Louisburg, N. C., and husband of Mrs. Jane W. Moss of Route 2, Spring Hope, N. C., is serving at the U. S. Naval Support Activity, Danang, Vietnam.

NSA Danang is the Navy's largest overseas shore command, providing logistic support to more than 190,000 U. S. and Allied troops throughout the five northernmost provinces of the republic.

In keeping with their motto "They Shall Not Want" the men at NSA Danang move thousands of tons of cargo each month, working two shifts, seven days a week, to keep cargo moving 24 hours a day.

The activity supplies troops with everything from mortar shells and amphibious tractors to aviation gasoline and dog food for sentry dogs.

Thanks

We are very grateful to the many friends who extended so many kindnesses in the form of cards, telegrams, flowers, transportation, and various other expressions of concern during our period of grief.

Little Boy: Just by an hour. I got up at seven, and he got up at eight.

A Toss Up

Pat was engaged putting a water main into the poorhouse. Saturday came and the boss saw Pat dolefully examining his pay packet. "Mistake in your wages, Pat?" he asked.

"Oh no," said Pat, "but I was just wondering whether me or the water would be in the poorhouse first."
