Class Tours Plant

On Wednesday, October 29, the Home Economics Class from Franklinton High School took a plant tour of the Burlington Men's Wear Plant at Franklinton, North Carolina. The group was shown the entire plant operation by Mr. W. J. Sigmon, Jr., Plant Personnel Manager. Mr. Sigmon pointed out that Franklinton management is always delighted to highlight their plant facilities to interested local civic and school groups. Mrs. Ialeen Mode, Home Economics Instructor, accompanied the class on the tour.

When it comes to making gifts for Christmas, you don't have to be the most talented seamstress on the block. If you can stitch a straight seam and do simple sewing by hand or machine, you can turn out gifts that are both appealing and useful.

According to the National Cotton Council, the trick is to make simple items... then apply cotton rick rack in imaginative new ways.

Take placemats, for example. Cut simple rectangle shapes from bold-striped cotton denim or sailcloth, allowing a half-yard of fabric for each mat. Play up the stripes by stitching on rows of rick rack in varying sizes and contrasting colors.

Apply the rick rack rows directly to the stripes, using jumbo size trim on the widest stripes and medium-size on smaller stripes.

Another item that's easy to sew and costs only pennies is a decorative apron. Choose a half-yard of any dainty floral-printed cotton. Then make a simple apron by gathering it to a waistband and ties cut from a contrasting solid strip.

To add interest and color, cut a diamond-shaped hem and outline with medium size rick rack in the same color as the waistband. Complete the design with another diamond pattern in baby rick rack... overlapping the larger motif.

Gifts for a tiny baby are always fun to make, and one of the simplest is a reversible bassinet cover. All you need is a yard of quilted cotton gingham with solid color backing, jumbo and baby-size rick rack, and 2-inch wide bias hem facing.

On the gingham side, attach jumbo rick rack to the quilting stitches to form diamond-shaped motifs. Then apply baby rick rack in another diamond pattern overlapping the first.

Ports Of Call

By Edward H. Sims

This is the time of year to visit battlefields and study U. S. history-if vacationing. Fall weather is delightful for driving if the rainy spells can be avoided. In this connection, fall months are drier than spring months-so chances are good.

Beginning with the Revolutionary War, one can visit many historic sites from Boston and surroundings into New York and Pennsylvania and New Jersey, etc. The early history of the war is concentrated in New England and these areas to a great extent, though the climax came at Yorktown, Virginia October 19th, 1781.

If seeking warmer climates, Virginia and the Carolinas can be profitably included. It was from Charleston that General Cornwallis began his last campaign and the one which led to the surrender at Yorktown, and this campaign is little known to many Americans. The British won most of the early battles but were finally worn down and then trapped by American and French land forces and a big French fleet on the peninsula at Yorktown.

The war of 1812 is not so glamorous for many reasons but Washington was occupied and burned in this war, and the famous battle sight at New Orleans can be visited. There were ill-fated campaigns into Canada in both wars, also, which can be retraced.

Coming into the Mexican War, there is not much interest to be revived here, both because of the nature of the war and the fact that the battles took place in Mexico.

The Civil War brings one to the South, for except for a few battles in Pennsylvania and Maryland, etc., the struggle was waged on southern territory. The state with more important battlefield sites, historic markers and other designated sites of interest is, of course, Virginia.

Speaking of Virginia, since it is the site of Yorktown and also Colonial Williamsburg, plus so many Civil War battlefields, it's probably the number one state for tourists interested in the nation's past. Nor is it logical, as some modernists argue, to turn our backs on the heroes of our wars in the cause of non-violence or peace.

(One can be for non-violence and peace and yet recognize that history cannot be changed. Maniknd has decided its fate through armed conflict, unfortunately, for centuries and there have been heroes in these contests, doing their duty, and often battles and leadership have determined the fate of nations and great causes.

Civil War history can be traced down the Mississippi too, in Kentucky and Tennessee, and in Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas. But in recalling the nation's decisive battles, the great Midwest and West, fortunately, have not witnessed such events.

Modest men of merit have no chance in competition with modern, know-all and tell-all types.
