T. & C. Garden Club Has December Meeting

Mrs. Richard R. Smith and Mrs. William H. O'Neal were co-hostesses for the December meeting of the Town and Country Garden Club Wednesday night.

The meeting was held at the Smith home on Edward Lane. On the front door was a Southern magnolia leaf wreath which was showered with red apples and featured a large velvet red bow. On a table in the living room where the meeting was held was an impressive Nativity scene with the Bible turned to the Christmas story placed in the foreground.

On the piano was an oblong arrangement of Southern magnolia leaves and Chinese holly surrounding three red candles. On either end was a Santa Clause and red satin balls were placed in the greenery.

The meeting was presided over by the President, Mrs. O'Neal. Each member answered the roll with the scientific name of a plant in her yard. Each member also made her gift contribution to the Operation Santa Claus Program.

Mrs. Conrad B. Sturges, Jr., chairman of the Civic Committee, reported on three projects of her committee: the Louisburg Christmas Parade float, the Christmas Decoration display at First Citizens Bank and the Litter Barrels.

The list of plants informatively presented were English ivy, holly, mistletoe, fir, poinsettia, Christmas rose, juniper, trailing cedar, magnolia, boxwood and galax.

Following the program the hostesses invited the members into the dining room for refreshments. The Magic of Christmas

The happy anticipation you feel when a friend or relative opens that gift you so carefully chose is part of the magic of Christmas. The pleasure is even greater when you know the gift is just right.

But shopping for something that sets off that "just right" spark can be frustrating and tiring — especially during the busy holiday season.

Shopping early is the best way to beat the "what will I get for so and so" blues. Unfortunately, it's too late for that now, but there are some tips to make it easier.

- Take an hour or so to write out a complete shopping list.
- An estimate of how much you want to spend for each person on the list saves time and trouble of looking over a myriad of products either over or under your price range.
- Scan magazines, catalogs, newspapers and pay attention to radio and TV ads for gift ideas or suggestions that might give you an idea.
- Keep in mind, usually, it's the simple, useful, non-gimmicky gifts suited to the individual, that give the most pleasure.

- Don't spend all your shopping time in the traditional gift sections of stores. A visit to the housewares department, or hardware store, for example, might prove most worthwhile.

Two inexpensive gifts from the not-so-mundane world of housewares that are fun to give and great to receive are the Rubbermaid Tool Caddy and Sewing Susan.

The two-tiered Tool Caddy revolves on a turntable base and holds a hammer, pliers, screwdrivers, files, and drills — the bottom tray is compartmentalized for nuts, bolts, nails, tape — all the odds and ends that accumulate in a tool box. A Tool Caddy for Dad, uncle or grandfather is sure to please — and that young man on your list who is turning into quite a handy man will be thrilled with a caddy filled with shiny new tools.

The Rubbermaid Sewing Susan will spin joy into the heart of any lady from nine to ninety. Taking a cue from its lazy namesake, the Sewing Susan revolves on a turntable base to bring all contents within easy reach. The bottom tray of the two-tiered Susan has compartments for pins, buttons, measuring tapes, gauges, tracing wheels, chalk and even sewing machine attachments.

Both items, available at housewares stores everywhere, will fit anyone's budget — and may be the "just right" gift for someone on your list.

Afraid

"My wife says that if I died she would remain a widow."

"Evidently she thinks there's not another man like you."

"No, she's afraid there is."
