

THE SYNOD OF ATLANTIC.

The Synod of Atlantic will meet in the Second Presbyterian Church, Greensboro, N. C., on the first Wednesday in December, 1880, at 7:30 o'clock p. m. LUKK DORLAND, Stated Clerk.

Respecting reduced rate on Railroads, Rev. L. R. Johnson who has the matter in hand sends the following:

On the R. & D. N. C. and N. W. N. C. R. Rds, in North Carolina delegates can purchase tickets (round trip) at three (3) cents a mile each way.

The tickets will be on sale on Nov. 29th, 30th and Dec. 1st and will be good to return until Dec. 8th.

It will be seen that this arrangement for reduced fare is very incomplete as there is nothing said of the roads leading through South Carolina and terminating at Charlotte, over which the delegates from Florida, Georgia and South Carolina must pass in order to reach Synod. As there is yet ample time to do so it is hoped that the Committee of Arrangements will endeavor to secure reduced fare on the roads indicated and inform delegates who require to pass over them by card as to the result.

To delegates residing along the line of the Carolina Central Railway we take the responsibility of saying. Let the Elders obtain credentials from the Church session of which they are members, and then let both the ministers and elders show these reductions to the ticket agents at the stations where they take the train and return tickets at reduced rates can be had.

Judging from present indications the attendance upon the approaching meeting of Synod will be very large. As there is much important business to come before the meeting its sessions are likely to be full of interest.

We suppose Dr. Allen the new Corresponding Secretary of the Freedmen's Committee will be on hand.

The good people of the Greensboro church and their friends seem to be making full preparation to give Synod a splendid entertainment.

WOMEN.

God gave women unto man to be his companion and helpmeet. By women came the fall but through women came the Messiah also, and ever since the days of Adam, this God-given associate has been either the temptress or the restorer of man. The Sampsons of the world and their Delilahs mark some of the saddest portions of its history; The Mary's and Salome's, some of the noblest and most hallowed. Among the most favored of those who ministered to our Lord on earth, were the faithful women. They were last at the cross and first at the tomb; and the words of Jesus first recorded after he had risen, were spoken to that Mary whose utterance of meeting pathos will never lose its power to thrill. "They have taken away my Lord and I know not where they have laid him."

Take from history, both church and secular, its noble women and what remains would be flat and prosy comparatively speaking, but there is no hope for a people whose women are not to be trusted. Let these words "be graven with an iron pen and lead in the rock of power." There is no hope for a people whose women are not to be trusted. It is the mothers who make and mould the characters of men. It is the maidens who stimulate young manhood to noble deeds or to wretched, trifling and deeds of shame. It is the wife who makes or mars the happiness of a man's life. It is a woman, the mother, maiden, or wife who makes of that place where the family daily assemble, home with all its endearing and hallowing influences, or a mere tarrying place to which one is drawn by convenience and force of habit, rather than by any high and holy affections.

Slavery has left its mark in many places, but its deepest blight rests upon the women of the colored race. It is a sad fact; it is a deplorable one; it is one to be wept over and prayed, but it is one to be faced. True it is that there are pure and noble minded women of this people, those with a deep scorn of all wrong doing, Madonnas in the sacredness with which they have guarded themselves from every approach of evil; but their number is less than it should be. And from such must redemption come to the people if it come at all.

Then what becomes the duty of those who are working for the upbuilding of the race? It is to guard with the utmost jealousy the honor of its women. Let our fathers and mothers see to it that their daughters and mothers be to the leaders be on the alert. Let the young men stand for right and purity. Let the boys remember that they have a share in this world of being and all the streams of blessing from it must partake of their purity.

Let the girls and women remember that the dress is the foulest deformity, if it is a heart polluted in the sight of God. Remember that a careless word or a careless smile may give license to an insulting speech. Let them learn how inestimable a thing is modesty and self-respect. Let them withdraw themselves in wounded resentment from the smallest liberties with their persons. A foreigner who came to a New England town not long ago, made this remark: "If a young man happens to put his arm around a girl, she feels herself insulted." And I was proud of the girls of my own New England and know that the prosperity of that portion of our land is due as much to the excellence and industry of its women as to any other cause.

I have written plainly because I feel strongly and because I wish to stir all to make this their rallying point. No matter what advances may be made in education, wealth, taste and the improvement of native talent, if this citadel be not gained from the enemy, all is lost. There is a way that leadeth to hell, but the pure in heart shall see God. LOUISE S. DORR.
