great many people have an that Russia is the abode of barof life that obtain in "civilized coun-tries" have no foothold there. No doubt some of the great manufac-turers of New England who employ little children to work for a mere nce fourteen hours a day in heir factories share in this view of Russia, and yet a law has just gone into operation in that benighted country that might put to the blush the owners and managers of great workshops not only in New Englaw regulates the employment of minors in factories by providing that children under twelve must not be hired under any pretence, and that children between the ages of twelve and fifteen must not work of twelve and fifteen must not work more than eight hours a day; and it further provides that these children must attend school at least three hours a day. There are thousands of little children even in this city who would gladly exchange places with the little children in Russia. We are regaled every day with stories of the horrors of Rus-sian existence, most of them written to order to suit the English market; but a government that has such a watchful eye for the welfare of the children of the working classes cannot be the worst in the world.

All the people have not learned the art of leaving a place in an ap-propriate manner. When you are ready to depart do so at once-gracefully and politely, and with no dallying. Don't say, "it's about time I was going," and settle back and talk on aimlessly for another ten minutes. Some people have just such a tiresome habit. They will even rise and stand about the room in various attitudes, keeping their host standing, and then by an effort succeed in getting as far as the hall, when a new thought strikes them. They then brighten up visibly, and stand some minutes longer, saving nothing of importance, but keeping everybody in a restless, nervous state. After the door is ened the prolonged leave-taking begins, and everybody in general and particular is invited to call. Very likely a last thought strikes the departing visitor, which his friend must risk a cold to hear in the end. What a relief when the door is finally closed. There is no need of being offensively abrupt; but when you are reedy to go-go!
