

It is said President Arthur will veto the Fitz John Porter bill should it pass the House. There is very little doubt of its passage in the House, but the veto is doubtful.

The floods in Germany have been awfully destructive to property, rendering thousands of families homeless. Liberal contributions have been made for the relief of the sufferers by the Germans of this country.

Dr. Mudd, to whose house J. Wilkes Booth fled after the assassination of President Lincoln, and obtained his professional aid in setting a broken leg, has just died.

The combined wealth of the members of the Carolina Legislature is set down at $20,000,000, and it is sufficiently explained by the fact that there are four editors among them.

The late Democratic victories brought a rainy day for rings at Washington. The presence of a majority of Democrats in Congress is the signal for the lobbyists and rings to get out.

The doctors who were out the unfortunate man Garfield, thought they had merited a hundred or two thousand dollars by their attentions; but finding they could not get it, have concluded to accept the amount offered them.

The Planter's Hotel, in St. Louis, was burned January 15th, in which four lives were lost. The inmates were narrowly escaped in their night clothes. It was intensely cold, which hindered the firemen in their attempts to arrest the flames.

R. DON WILSON, Esq., of Marion, N.C., committed suicide at Raleigh, Saturday morning, by shooting himself through the ear with a pistol, dying an hour or two afterwards. He was a great sufferer from neuralgia, one of his eyes bursting out from that cause. He was a brother of Frank I. Wilson, who once lived in this place and published the "Banner," a popular political journal. R. Don Wilson stood high in the estimation of the McDowell people.

That splendid comet of last year which attracted so much watchful attention during September, October and November, will not return this year, according to Professor Frisley, of the Naval Observatory, Washington, D. C., who has just concluded a very careful calculation of its orbit. He gives its period at 793 years, and identifies it as the comet of 371 B.C., and 863 A. D.; and gives its perihelion at 700,000 and its aphelion at about ninety times the distance of the sun from the earth.

Billy Mahone couldn't vote on the Fitz John Porter bill "because it was a question between brother officers on the same side in the army." It was a question of right and justice before the Senators in which it was his duty to vote his honest convictions. It involved also a certain amount of the people's money, and he was sent to Congress to attend to the people's business.

Ransom Elected.

RALEIGH, January 16.—At noon to-day the Legislature balloted for United States Senator. The Senate vote was as follows: M. W. Ransom, 33. Wm. Johnston, 12. Two Senators paired—three were absent. The vote in the House stood: Ransom, 75; Johnston, 33. Two members had paired and two Representatives were excused from voting. In the House four Republicans voted for Ransom. The total vote for Ransom was 108; for Johnston, 47.

HOAR LEADS IN MASSACHUSETTS.—Boston, Jan. 16.—The Legislature to-day, voting separately for United States Senator took five ballots. On the fifth ballot in the Senate Hoar received 21 votes, Hoar 16 and Crapo 2. In the House there was no choice. Hoar led the poll. The Legislature meets in joint session to-morrow.

REPEAL OF THE INTERNAL REVENUE TAX.—The resolution to instruct our Representatives in Congress to support the repeal of internal revenue taxes came up in the Senate at Raleigh Monday and elicited interesting discussion. The resolutions were then adopted, years ago, says Mr. Geart, Republican, voting with the Democrats.

MR. SHACKLEFORD'S CONDITION.—Washington, Jan. 17.—The condition of Representative Shackelford of N. C., is improving. Physicians say he may linger through the day and the crises come to night.

The stealing of the egg of gold at Panama, which had been sent out to pay off the United States debt in the Pacific seems to have been a neat job. There were two eggs, containing $50,000 each, in American coin, and after their delivery and storage in the Panama railroad company's vault, one egg disappeared, although no locks were broken, and up to last advice no traces of the missing coin had been found. Several persons were arrested, but nothing satisfactory was discovered.

We are indebted to the Superintendent of the N. C. Insane Asylum for a copy of the Annual Report of the Board of Directors and Superintendent of that Institution for the year ending Dec. 31, 1882.

TENNESSEE ELECTS HARRIS.—Nashville January 16.—Hon. Isham G. Harris was elected United States Senator on the first ballot. The vote stood 17 majority in the Senate and 58 in the House.

Sensible Governors.

Governors Cleveland, of New York; Thompson of South Carolina, and Pattison of Pennsylvania, were all quietly inaugurated without fuss, feathers or martial parade. This is an improvement. There is no reason why there should be flag flying, drum-beating, soldier marching or any other kind of tomfoolery at the inauguration of our public officials of any grade from President down. These things are part of the pompous nonsense which crowned heads resort to to impress the populace with the idea of royal dignity, but does not comport with correct ideas of Republican simplicity, and should have no recognition in a land where the private citizen is as much of a sovereign, and more if there be any distinction, as the servants elected to transact the public business. There are too many States and there have been too many Governors to make the brief incumbent of a gubernatorial chair any mighty magnate. In fact the majority of them are very small, common-place individuals, and the closer one draws to them the smaller they become.—Charlotte Observer.

Marshall T. Polk.

Notwithstanding the denials in the press Col. Marshall T. Polk, the defaulting Treasurer of Tennessee, is a nephew of the late President James K. Polk, and a son of the late Marshall T. Polk and Miss Wilson, daughter of the celebrated Solicitor, Joseph Wilson, of this city. He was the only son of his father, and was adopted by his uncle James K. Polk, and educated by him at West Point. He was born in Charlotte, and was here at the anniversary of King's Mountain in October 1881, at which time he was treated with distinguished consideration. He has numerous relatives and friends in this part of the country who have been greatly shocked at his most painful fall from the position of a highly respected and honored gentleman, to that of an arrested public thief in the hands of an officer, and on the way to the penitentiary amidst the execrations of the people, who had honored and confided in him. If his terrible disgrace does not prove a warning and an example, it would be hard to find a case that would have that effect.—Char. Journal.

Wages Under a High Tariff.

Wilmington Star. The New York Herald has been throwing light upon a subject made dark by the reiterated assertions of the protectionists. They have claimed all along that a high tariff made high wages. This was the delusive cry in 1880, and this was what defeated Gen. Hancock. Even the millions of money expended in corrupting the voters would not have answered if there had been no alarm created that their wages were imperilled by the Democratic cry of a tariff for revenue. The Herald has been comparing the census of 1870 and 1880, and with some annoying and startling results to the interested monopolists. It was shown most conclusively that wages are lowest where the tariff is highest. This fact, for such it is, has been known for a long time, and many writers on the side of low tariff or free trade have insisted upon the correctness of the statement. But it remained for the publication of the last census to make good all that had been claimed by the anti-protectionists and anti-high tariff advocates.

The Herald goes into New England for its proof. It shows that in that rich section so much favored by the high tariff that "the wages of operatives are 24 per cent, less than the general average of wages throughout the country, which is itself 8 per cent, less than it was three years ago." This will surprise that large class of operatives whose fears have been so often worked upon by designing mill-owners and selfish monopolists. The following is of sufficient interest to deserve copying: "An examination of the wages paid in 1870 in the leading protected industries discloses the fact that 190,983 operatives in wool manufacturing industries received $47,180,019 in wages, averaging but $243.05 per hand; in cotton manufacturing $172,544 hands were engaged, receiving $42,040,510 in wages, averaging $240.17 per hand; in the silk industry 31,440 operatives, receiving $1,077,835 in wages, or average wages per annum of $246.45. As the general average wage rate for all manufacturing industries, the lightly protected as well as the heavily protected, is $264.08 per hand employed, it will be seen that each of these protected industries mentioned pays wages very considerably smaller than the general average. In fact, it appears that whatever the high tariff, it is not felt by wage earners and is felt least where the operative is supposed to be 'protected' most."

The Philadelphia Record says it is related that the lobbies of the Capitol at Washington are crowded with the agents of the interests that are concerned in keeping up taxes upon the consumers. Representatives of iron, and coffee, wire lances, tin plates, lucifer matches, quinine, bituminous coal, blankets, flannels, hoop skirts, red lead, salt, sugar, and rice swarm the lobbies and hotels. But there are among them no representatives of the consumers, and very few on the floor of either House.

How A North Carolina Straddler Does Business in Washington.

Washington Cor. Charlotte Journal. Col. Francis E. Shober, the acting secretary of the Senate, and a former member of the House of Representatives from North Carolina, is exceedingly anxious to retain his present position, and as the control of the Senate, after the 4th of March next, will be in the hands of the Republicans, it is said that he is trying to trim his sails so as to catch a Republican breeze. In other words, he is endeavoring to carry out the scriptural injunction, "Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness; that when ye fail they may receive you into everlasting habitations." The latest of his acts in this direction, and one which has received much adverse criticism from Democratic Senators, was the removal of Mr. E. P. Ferris, a Southern man who served three years in the Confederate army, from a small position he held in the Senate library, and the appointment of a negro Republican in his place. This was done at the request of Mr. John Sherman, who was displeased with an article written by Mr. Ferris, in which he gave some of the facts brought out by the investigation into the expenditure of the contingent fund of the treasury department during the time Mr. Sherman was Secretary of the Treasury. It will be recollected that several of the employees of the treasury department testified before the investigating committee that they were detailed to work on Mr. Sherman's private residence, and Mr. Ferris, who is a newspaper man, stated this in a letter for publication, which has just cost him his official head.

It is said by those who profess to be well informed on the subject, that Col. Shober has great faith in his being able to retain his position under the Republicans, or failing in that, to get something nearly as good. I have been informed by a prominent North Carolina politician that the course pursued by Col. Shober in the canvass that preceded the last election was far from being satisfactory to the Democrats of that State, and now his evident disposition to carry favor with the Republicans by turning out Democratic officials, and putting Republicans in their places, shows very plainly the animus of this act. It is but just to say that I have not the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with Col. Shober, and my only object in writing what I have is to give items of North Carolina news as talked around the capitol.

A Terrible Recognition.

An Erring Son Finds His Long Lost Father in a Convict Companion at the Jeffersonville Prison South.

A sensational and sad reunion between a father and son took place yesterday afternoon at the State Prison South in Jeffersonville. Several years ago Patrick Gleason, who lived in Wayne county, Ind., left home and never returned. His absence was not thought strange, however as he had some family trouble which annoyed him considerably, and he had several times threatened to leave. He had one son, named Thomas Gleason, who was then about eighteen years of age. Years passed away, and not a word was heard from the missing father by the mother or son, and he was considered as dead. The young man, as he grew older, developed a very wild disposition and was frequently in trouble, but managed to escape justice until a few months ago, when he was arrested for grand larceny. He was tried in the Circuit Court of Wayne county, was sentenced to the penitentiary, and was at once arrayed in his striped suit and had his hair and beard shaved closely. He was then conducted through the workshops, and in passing a line of convicts, to his surprise and shame, he discovered his missing father among the group. The recognition was a mutual one, and the meeting affected those present almost to tears. The father was serving out a sentence for the same crime that had brought his son within the walls.—Louisville Courier Journal.

A REMARKABLE ACCIDENT.—A sale of the personal effects of Dr. Columbus Mills took place at his late residence in Cabarrus county, on Thursday the 11th inst. The sale was a large one and was largely attended by farmers from all parts of the county. For the accommodation of those who were without dinner, a large table was set in the dining room, and at one o'clock sharp, about twenty half farmers were seated around it. Only one chair was vacant and that of huge dimension, awaited the 280 pounds avoirdupois of Mr. Jim Long the auctioneer. Just as Jim was in the act of taking his seat the floor beams or sleepers gave way, and the table and its contents, Jim and the twenty farmers, together with cooking stove and side boards,—all went down to the ground beneath, a distance of about eight feet. No one was seriously hurt, but all were more or less frightened, and the dinner "badly mixed." It was not the first time Jim had "brought down" a house.—Charlotte Journal.

Indifference to Grant.

Harford Times N. Y. Letter. A few nights ago I witnessed a striking manifestation of indifference with which the great Grant is now regarded by the public. It was in Booth's Theatre and a good many comments were made upon it in the course of the evening. Grant and a family party occupied a second tier box, and seemed a good deal interested in Modjeska as Fran-Fran. Grant himself had the most conspicuous seat, the outside one nearest the stage, and in full view of the audience. Almost every eye in the house could see him as plainly as if he had not been twenty feet away, and it looked very much as if he occupied that particular seat because he wanted to be seen. Did the audience pay attention to him? Not a bit. He was recognized the moment he entered, but no one seemed to think of him a second time. His box attracted hardly any more notice than if its chief occupant was Tom Smith, the successful butcher, or Dick Brown the oil man. As he made his way out with the crowd after the performance a few heads were turned for a closer look at him, but the looks were of mere curiosity. Not a soul seemed to feel that there was the least honor in being in the same crowd with the once mighty Ulysses. It was the first time I had seen him in a theatre since one night when he and President Lincoln were together in Ford's Theatre, in Washington. What greatness he has seen, and yet how unimportant he is to-day. When he rides up and down on the Elevated road to and from his office, those who travel in the same train hardly notice him. A sotto voce remark now and then, "That's Grant," is about the only tribute he receives from his grateful countrymen. But he is "well fixed," as the saying goes, and no doubt he feels that it is all right.

A Nice of an Ex-Vice-President on the Stage.

SELMA, ALA., Jan. 13.—The new dramatic star, Alice Marguerite King, grand-niece of the late Wm. R. King, of this State, who was elected Vice-President of the United States in 1852, appeared here last night in "Mary Stuart," and made a great success. Her object is to raise funds for the erection of a monument to her uncle's memory. She gave evidence of a long and careful study, and possesses unmistakably strong dramatic power along with a strong expressive face, and a fine stage presence. She goes on an extended Southern tour.
