HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED
STOMACH BITTERS

Invalids who are recovering vital stamina, declare in grateful terms their appreciation of the merits as a tonic, of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only does it impart strength to the weak, but it also corrects an irregular acid state of the stomach, makes the bowels act at proper intervals, gives ease to those who suffer from Rheumatic and kidney troubles, and conquers as well as prevents fever and ague.

DEFERRED ITEMS.

LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY BY FIRE.—Hartford, Conn., March 15.—The house of two maiden ladies named Judson, in East Hartford, was burned this morning. Both ladies perished in the flames.

NEW YORK, March 16.—The business failures of last week, reported to R. G. Dunn & Co., are 225 against 252 the previous week. The New England States, had 22; Middle 37; Western 70; Southern 46; Pacific 8; New York city 11; Canada 31.

Atlanta Journal. South Georgia farmers are now paying 16 cents for bacon on time. For the use of 11 cents worth of bacon from March until September they pay four cents about 25 per cent above the cash price. If farmers can do this and come out even, then tilling the soil is the most money-making occupation a man can go into.

Just think of it! In the large market gardens outside of Charleston, the peach and plum trees and strawberry vines are in beautiful bloom, and the crop of spring peas is a foot high. In the adjacent country the fly hums, the frog croaks, and the colored youth suns himself on a pine log, and this too within twenty-four hours by rail of where we are.—Exchange.

If John Sherman runs for Governor of Ohio the confidence of certain persons who have predicted an overwhelming Democratic victory in that State will be "badly shook up," for John retains a very healthy grip upon the people of that Commonwealth, and can make a rattling campaign among the Buckeyes.—Char. Journal.

Wilmington Star: The receipts of cotton at this port during the last week ending yesterday footed up 1,830 bales, as against 2,484 bales up to March 18th, 1882, showing a decrease of 654 bales. The receipts during the crop year commencing Sept. 1st foot up 120,505 bales, as against 129,064 bales up to March 18th, 1882, a decrease of 8,559 bales.

Skobelev was done to death in the very prime of life by a poisoned chalice of wine and even in extreme old age it appears, the titled Russian finds no certainty of dying a natural death. There seems to be a general belief that Prince Gortschakoff at 85 years of age was made the victim of some unknown poison. Chemical analysis is to determine whether there has been an untimely taking off of the great Chancellor.

An elder of the Kirk having found a little boy and his sister playing marbles on Sunday put his reproach in this form, not a judicious one for a child: "Boy, do you know where children go who play marbles on the Sabbath day?" "Aye," said the boy, "they gang down to the field by the water below the brig." "No, roared out the elder, "they go to hell and are burned." The little fellow, realy shocked, called to his sister: "Come awa, Jennie, here's a man swearing awfully."—Dean Ramsey.

Here are some of the features of Northern civilization as presented in a glance at one page of the Philadelphia Times for Wednesday: A scoundrel named Duke ruined a girl and then refused to marry her; a disheveled father named Evans (daughter ruined) takes his own life, and escaped murderer is arrested in Wyoming; burgulars use chloroform at New Castle, Delaware; a defaulter—a treasurer of a saving bank—convicted in Boston; U. S. Senator Tabor's marriage pronounced invalid. He had another wife.—Cincinnati Times.

Raleigh News Observer: The companies in all parts of the State are full of vigor since the passage of the new law giving aid to the State Guard.—What we saw yesterday was a set of twelve cups, saucers and custard glasses, all of delicate cream colored China made in New Jersey of kaolin from North Carolina; all in morocco cases. Each of this exquisite set is hand-painted, the designs being marvels of delicacy and grace. Birds are poised above flowers; typical products of the South are depicted, and bits of charming foliage are made realistic. This beautiful set is the property of Mrs. Governor Jarvis, being presented her by Mr. Marshall Parks, of Norfolk.

Many a man would not have been cast out of the Church had his minister first consulted his Master. "Nay," the Lord said, "lest ye root up the wheat." This is often done. Many a bruised reed has been broken. Many a sickly blade of wheat that might have been nursed, and strengthened, and saved, has been rooted out and cast away forever. Better let ten blades of tares grown than one of wheat perish. Excommunication is a dreadful thing, a fearful responsibility. It is taking away a soul's heavenly citizenship. Yet some men rush in where angels dare not tread, through ours is the more merciful work of seedsmen and there are readers.—Rev. R. S. Barrett in Southern Pulpit.

SNAKES IN MORGAN.—Mr. Isaac Lowe, a gentleman of undoubted veracity, tells us the following snake story: In Morgan county a negro killed a very large rattlesnake and gave it to a doctor, who tied the reptile behind his buggy and dragged it ten miles, leaving the snake that might tied behind his buggy. The next morning he found the mate of the rattlesnake lying beside the dead snake, having followed its trail for ten miles. The live snake was of the size of the dead reptile, which was a very large specimen, and was dispatched without trouble.—Crane-fort, Ga., Weekly.

Atlanta Star: The indications are plain that our farmers are preparing for a heavy crop of cotton in Georgia this year. Dealers in cotton report large sales, and the farmers are preparing their best land for cotton. The area in wheat and oats is much less than has been estimated, and the indications now are that provisions will be high in the fall.

A correspondent of the News & Courier writes that paper a brief history of a giant who is a native of Greenville, S. C., but now resides in Texas. The letter states that Henry Clay Thurston is seven feet, seven and a half inches in height, has a foot thirteen inches long, wears No. 15 shoes, and yet whose head is small enough to only require a hat 7 1/2 in size. He has one son who measures six feet, seven inches in height.

Under the new postal laws postmasters can issue postal notes in denominations of $5, and the fee is three cents. This bill authorizes the issue of money orders in denominations of $100 or less, but none for more than $100 can be issued. The following fees are fixed to be charged for money orders: For orders not exceeding $10, 8 cents; from $10 to $15, 10 cents; $15 to $30, 15 cents; $30 to $40, 20 cents; $40 to $50, 25 cents; $50 to $60, 30 cents; $60 to $70, 35 cents; $70 to $80, 40 cents; $80 to $100, 45 cents.

During a recent wet spell in Georgia, a body of earth one hundred and fifty feet long and forty-eight feet wide slid from Wilkes into McDuffie county, or rather, it slid into the river and changed the current entirely. The most of this slide is intact now and the entire river is on this side of, whereas it was before on the other side. This slide parted from a field that was planted in corn last year, and it took off twelve corn rows and eight or ten good sized trees, one of the trees measuring two feet in diameter. Most of the trees are now standing erect, but they are in McDuffie county. Such is the statement in the Atlanta Constitution.

When men talk about standing on the platform with Washington, Jefferson and Madison in favor of a Protective tariff, they fail in their historic information. The tariff favored by these patriots was positively the lowest tariff ever levied in the United States. The duties barely averaged 7 per cent. The present tariff averages, we think, about 46 per cent. Some difference! The Louisville Courier Journal is doubtless correct in this statement:

"Since the Walker tariff of 1846, the Democratic party has stood squarely on the doctrine of 'revenue only,' going in 1856 so far as to declare in its national platform for 'progressive free trade.'"

A Bad Record.

In its recent report the committee of Tennessee Legislature appointed to investigate the office of State treasurer calls attention to the fact "that out of five State treasurers since 1865, a period of seventeen years, during the administration of four of them the State has suffered heavy loss by defalcations and otherwise. R. L. Stanford was first treasurer after the war, and during his term of office the State was plundered of the remnants of her public school fund which had been preserved through the war. He was succeeded by J. R. Henry, and he by J. R. Rust, and with neither of these officials was the State ever able to secure a settlement and suffered heavy loss from her treasury. J. E. Rust was succeeded by Morrow, and in 1877 Morrow was succeeded by M. T. Polk, and the treasury was again robbed and plundered of nearly a million dollars by one in whom the people had implicit confidence. There must be some radical error in the working machinery of the treasury department that permits such continued robbing of our revenues by public officials. Some material and well considered changes should be made in the laws governing the same.

Man's Image in the Veins of the Earth.

Daniel Reese yesterday exhibited at the Register office the image of a human face alluded to in the Academy of science report Thursday morning, but which was not exhibited there. It was found at a distance of one hundred and five feet below the surface of the earth in a coal mine at Angus, more commonly known as Coaltown, in Dilas county, in September, 1881. It is about half the size of an ordinary human head, the shape of the nose, mouth and forehead being almost perfect in formation and evidently was the work of human hands and not a mere freak of nature. The image has no ears—whether it ever had is not known as the back part of the head from a line running parallel with the front of the ear is missing, nothing remaining but the front part of the head.

HOW LONG CEDAR LASTS.—Pliny states that the cedar woodwork of the temple of Apollo, at Utica, was in a perfect state of preservation after two thousand years. The statue of Diana of the Ephesians was formed of cedar, and endured for many centuries. The ancient Egyptians extracted an oil from cedar, which they rubbed over the leaves of the papyrus to preserve them from worms, and which was also used for preserving their mummies.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's Chamber.

The chamber was bathed in a soft, rosy light that burned in a perfumed censer. The bed, raised upon a sort of dais, was canopied and curtained with lace-edged pink satin. The lady was supported in a half-sitting position, among lace-trimmed pillows, and was partly covered with downy blankets of rose pink. Her pink silk night robe was garnished with miles of Valenciennes lace, and a maid sat lowly at her side performing the office of a manicure. Mrs. Vanderbilt is a small woman of delicate features, dark hair and complexion, grey eyes and exquisite figure, that in attire was not lost upon here visitor, who sat down at the foot of the bed in her dapper water-proof, feeling in the surrounding splendor like a tramp. And she had known the occupant of that princely bed, mind you when their relative positions were reversed, not that she ever received in like-manner, although this is not an unusual occurrence in New York. It is the setting of this that makes it remarkable. The visitor had been in many of the places of Europe but never saw such magnificence in any of them.

His Last Court.

Arkansas Traveller.
Old Judge Grepson, a justice of the peace, was never known to smile. He came to Arkansas years ago, before the "carpet baggers" began their reckless sway, and after year after, by the will of the voters, held his place as magistrate. The lawyers who were tried in his court never joined with him, because every one soon learned that the old man never engaged in levity. Every morning, no matter how bad the weather might be, the old man took his place behind the bar, which, with his own hands, he had made, and every evening, just at a certain time he closed his books and went home. No one ever engaged him in private conversation, because he would talk to no one. No one ever went to his home, a little cottage among the trees in the city's outskirts, because he had never shown a disposition to make welcome the visits of those who even lived in the immediate vicinity. His office was not given him through the influence of "electioneering" because he never asked any man for his vote. He was first elected because, having through the influence of "electioneering" because he never asked any man for his vote. He was first elected because, having through the influence of "electioneering" because he never asked any man for his vote.

Marvels of the Human Body.

While the gastric juice has a mild, bland, sweetish taste, it possesses the power of dissolving the hardest food that can be swallowed. It has no influence whatever on the soft and delicate fibres of the living stomach, but upon the living hand; but at the moment of death it begins to eat them away with the power of the strongest acids.

There is dust on sea, on land, in the valley and on the mountain-top; there is dust always and everywhere; the atmosphere is full of it; it penetrates the noisome dungeon, and visits the deepest, darkest caves of the earth, no palace-door can shut it out, no drawer so secret as to escape its presence; every breath of wind dashes it upon the open eye, yet the eye is not blinded, because under the eyelid there is incessantly emptying itself a fountain of the blandest fluid in nature, which spreads itself over the surface of the eye at every winking and washes every atom of dust away. But this liquid, so mild and so well adapted to the eye, itself has some acidity, which, under certain circumstances becomes so decided as to be scalding to the skin, and would rot away the eyelids, were it not that along the edges of them are little oil manufactory, which spread over their surface a coating which is as impervious to the liquids necessary for keeping the eyelids washed clean as the best varnish is impervious to water.

The breath which leaves the lungs has been so perfectly divested of its life-giving properties, that to rebreathe it unmixed with other air, the moment it escapes from the mouth, would cause immediate death by suffocation; while if it hovered about us, more or less destructive influence over health and life would be occasioned. But it is made of a nature so much lighter than the common air, that the instant that it escapes the lips and nostrils it ascends to the higher regions above the breathing point, there to be rectified, renovated, and sent back again, replete with purity and life.—How rapidly it ascends is fully exhibited every frosty morning.

But, foul and deadly as the expired air is, nature, wisely economical in all her works and ways, turns it to good account, in its outward passage through the organs of the voice, making of it the whippers of love, the soft words of affection, the tender tones of human sympathy, the sweetest strains of ravishing music, the persuasive eloquence of the finished orator.

How I longed to see him; how I yearned to put my head on his breast. My husband became addicted to drink. He abused me. I wrote to my father asking him to let me come home, but the answer that came was "I do not know you!" My husband died—yes, cursed God and died! Homeless and wretched and with my little boy, I went out into the world. My child died and I bowed down and wept over a pauper's grave. I wrote to my father again, but he answered: "I know not those who disobey my commandments." I turned away from the letter hardened. I embraced sin. I rushed madly into vice. I spurned my teachings. I was time and again arrested. Now I am here.

Several lawyers rushed forward. A crimson tide flowed from her lips. They leaned her lifeless head back against the chair. The old magistrate had not raised his eyes. "Great God!" said a lawyer, "he is dead." The woman was his daughter.

Vanderbilt's Wealth.

Popular estimates of Vanderbilt's wealth range all the way from three hundred to six hundred millions. There can be no exaggeration in the lowest of these figures, and may be but little in the highest. Speaking to a Times reporter the other day as to reported retention of bonds by the New York Central, Mr. Vanderbilt stated incidentally that he himself held between sixty and seventy millions of the stock of the New York Central, which pays regular dividends of 1 per cent a month; that there was about one hundred millions in the Vanderbilt family, and that besides this he was a large holder in the bonded debt of the company, which ranks at over par. Add this to the sixty odd millions of registered United States bonds that stand in his name, and the enormous interest he is known to hold in other railroads, his real estate and properties of various kinds, and the aggregates must be something enormous, making him beyond doubt the richest man in the world. Nor is there probably in the whole country a man who lives on a smaller proportion of his income than does this millionaire. For a man of his wealth he is exceedingly economical, and irrespective of stock speculations, in which with his immense command of capital, he is always winner, and the growing appreciation of all his properties, he must, out of sheer saving from his income, be adding millions every year to his already enormous fortune.

with the body, a circle making the navel its centre will just take in the head, the finger ends and the feet. The distance from top to toe is precisely the same as that between the tips of the fingers when the arms are extended. The length of the body is just six times that of the foot, while the distance from the edge of the hair on the forehead to the edge of the chin is one-tenth the length of the whole stature.

Of the sixty-two primary elements known in nature, only eighteen are known in the human body, and of these seven are metallic. Iron is found in the blood, phosphorus in the brain, limestone in the bones and dust and ashes in all! Not only these eighteen human elements, but the whole sixty-two of which the universe is made, have their essential basis in the four substances of oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen, and carbon, representing the more familiar names of fire, water, saltpetre, and charcoal. And such is man, the lord of earth—a spark of fire, a drop of water, a grain of powder, an atom of charcoal!—Frank Leslie's Magazine.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR

For Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Chronic Biliary Rheumatism, General Debility, Dropsy, Jaundice, Enlargement of the Liver, Biliousness, Ague, Malaria, and all Diseases caused by Derangement of Liver, Stomach and Kidneys.

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.
Bad Breath; Pain in the Side, sometimes the seat is felt under the Shoulder-blade, mistaken for Rheumatism; general loss of appetite; Bowels generally constive, sometimes alternating with lax; with considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of leaving unimpaired speech which ought to have been done; a slight, dry cough and flushed face is sometimes an attendant, often mistaken for consumption; the patient complains of weakness and debility; nervous, easily startled; feet cold or burning; sometimes a prickling sensation of the skin exists; spirits are low and despondent, and, although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet they can hardly summon up fortitude to try it—in fact, distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms are usually present, and have occurred when but few of them existed, yet examination after death has shown the Liver to have been extensively diseased.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms appear.

Persons Travelling or Living in Unhealthy Localities, by taking a dose occasionally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will avoid all Malaria, Bilious attacks, Dizziness, Nausea, Dropsical, Depression of Spirits, etc. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage.

If you have eaten anything hard of digestion, or feel heavy after meals, or sleepless at night, take a dose and you will be relieved.

Time and Doctors' Bills will be saved by always keeping the Regulator in the House!

For whatever the patient may be, a thoroughly safe purgative, alternative and tonic can never be out of place. The remedy is harmless and does not interfere with business or pleasure.

IT IS PURELY VEGETABLE.

And has all the power and efficacy of Senna or Quinine, without any of the injurious effects of a Government's Testimony.

Simmons' Liver Regulator has been used in my family for some time, and I am satisfied it is a valuable addition to the medical science.

J. G. SWEETMAN, Governor of Ala.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Ga., says: "Have derived some benefit from the use of Simmons' Liver Regulator, and wish to give it a further trial."

"The only thing that never fails to relieve me," says a sufferer from Dyspepsia, Liver Affection and Debility, "but never have found anything to benefit me so much as Simmons' Liver Regulator. I sent from Minnesota to Georgia for it, and would send it to any other part of the world, as it has cured me of a disease which never fails to return."

F. M. JANSKY, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dr. T. W. Mason says: "From actual experience in the use of Simmons' Liver Regulator in my practice I am satisfied and am satisfied to use and prescribe it as a purgative medicine."

Take only the Genuine, which always has on the wrapper the name of Dr. J. C. Simmons and Signature of Dr. H. K. ZELMAN & CO.
