Two years ago you could hardly read a paper without running up with an appeal to pass a calf law. The members of the legislature, mistaking the newspaper arguments for the voice of the people proceeded to pass such a law. Now, since it is learned the calf law was not wanted and those who were interested in passing it have been criticized, these same newspapers have not offered the least defense of their mislead statements. We now have a somewhat similar situation in regard to the extension of the city limits, and two of the candidates, before the primaries and convention, have declared their, not the people's, nor the party's intention, to force (that is what it means, force) the extension. Would it not be better to have these gentlemen instructed as to the wants of the people and include some of our don't wants.

A WISE BOY

His Father—I thought I gave you a nickel to stay in the parlor last night with Sis and her beau. You were only in there half an hour. Willie—Sir' beau gave me a dime to get out.

No Financier. "Pat," shouted an officer to his Irish servant, "here's a shilling to get me some cheese, and a shilling for some biscuits."

Pat started on his errand, and, after a long delay, returned, fumbling with the coins in his hand apparently in great distress.

"Well, Pat, what's wrong?" said the officer.

"Shure, sir, Of've got the shillings mixed, and don't know which is for cheese and which is for biscuits!"

Sufficient Unto the Day. "I tell you, sir, each new day confronts us with a problem that has to be solved. Take your case, for instance—you have two daughters just growing into womanhood. I call this a problem that you must face at once, don't you?"

"I understand you thoroughly. Right now the problem with my wife and me is to keep Maud and Ella from buying matinee tickets to the problem plays."—St. Louis Republic.

Getting at the Facts. "The train struck the man, did it not?" asked the lawyer of the engineer at the trial.

"It did, sir," said the engineer. "Was the man on the track, sir?" thundered the lawyer.

"On the track?" asked the engineer. "Of course he was. No engineer worthy of his job would run his train into the woods after a man, sir."—Ladies' Home Journal.

In the Anteroom. Creditor—May I go in and see the baron? Father—Oh, yes; certainly! Creditor—Say, my friend, how is it that you admit me so easily today, when at other times you usually send me away with one excuse or another? Butler—Well, today the baron scolded me. I am angry at him.—Borssevan Janko (Budapest).

Thought It Was a Waterbury. An officer of a liner which sails from New York vouchers for the following story: "On a recent trip I was on deck talking with a passenger when eight bells sounded. 'There goes eight bells,' I said, excusing myself. 'I must take my watch below.' 'Caution!' she exclaimed. 'Fancy having a watch that strikes so loud.'"—New York Tribune.

Paid Back. "Has Owens ever paid back that $10 you loaned him a year ago?" "Oh, yes; he borrowed twenty-five more from me last week and only took fifty cent."

FAITH

April 28 — Rev. and Mrs. Jordan and family have gone to visit Mrs. Jordan's parents and will be gone for a few weeks.

Venus spent Sunday night with Daniel Eagle's. They have five children: Clifford, Callie, Lee, Mamie and Allie. They own a large farm; have live stock and fine rifflin in the heart of the granite belt. There are large granite boulders all about the barn and house. They are good livers and have plenty of every thing about them.

A young gentleman at George Peeler's April 26th.

A. B. McSwain with his motor or Coca Cola turnout, was out on the granite belt. And put off a big load of Coca Cola to the merchant. He is one of the best motor engineers we ever saw. He runs at a moderate gate and is very careful not to run over the geese, chickens and little ones.

We visited J. W. Frick and Sons factory at Granite Quarry recently. They are as busy as bees putting up grain cradles.

Three more Italian block makers just arrived in Faith and are stopping at the Brenton boarding house.

ROCKWELL.

April 28 — The farmers are very busy now preparing land and planting their crops. The rain has put us all a little back with our work.

The mumps have abated out in our community we are glad to note.

D. S. Lentz has finished sawing at Bill Bimor's and is now at James Boat's.

Our public roads in the lower edge of Litaaker township have gotten into a horrible condition. Our mail carrier says if there isn't something done he will have to report them impassible.

Our last Sunday as Mrs. Conwell was driving along the Smith farm she ran into a mud hole, she and two children were pitched out over the dash of the buggy under the horse's feet. They came out bruised and scared, and you can imagine how they looked from the mud. But for the timely action of her brother more serious results might have taken place.

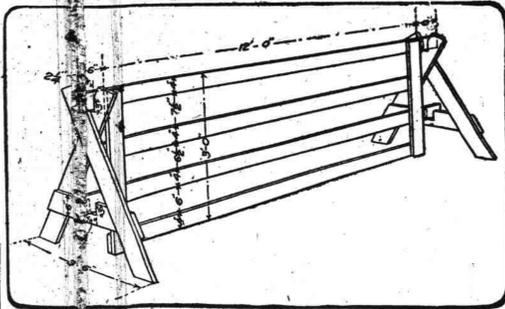

V. M. Clark of Salisbury, was down at Organ Church last Sunday in his automobile and in going from the church to his father's a distance of 1 1/2 miles, his machine stuck in the mud three times. We hope something will be done for our roads soon.

Wheat and oats are looking fine. G. L. Yost and wife visited their daughter at Kennesapolis last Sunday. A Subscriber.

The split log drag used occasionally on these roads would work wonders.

The old Confederate soldiers of Rowan County will hold their annual reunion at the graded school building on Wednesday morning, May 13th. The ladies will furnish a splendid dinner as usual, the Baraca band is expected to furnish music and several speakers are expected to make addresses of interest. Salisbury is always glad to entertain the old soldiers and it is hoped that every one will make it a point to attend. A good time is in store for all.

MORE SHEEP SHOULD BE RAISED ON FARMS

Panel and Braces for Making a Portable Sheep Fence. Wire Fencing is Also Frequently Used in the Construction of Panels.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. Sheep husbandry should receive more attention from the farmer of this country than it does at the present time. It is unquestionably sheep raising could profitably be fitted into the general management of thousands of farms which are idle at the present time. Many other farms the size of the flock could be increased and more attention given to this branch of farming with resulting profit to the owner, according to the department of agriculture.

It has been estimated that sheep will eat 90 per cent. of all troublesome weeds. They are, in fact, commonly used for cleaning up weeds from fields, fence rows, roadsides, stubble fields and other fields. The common belief among farmers is that weeds eaten by sheep are so broken up in the digestive processes that the seeds will not germinate after passing through the body as in the case of other live stock. However, weeds are rarely permitted to go to seed if enough sheep are kept in the field while the seeds are young and tender. In some investigations carried on by the Canadian government among a considerable number of sheep to determine the seeds of weeds eaten by them, it was generally agreed that sheep would consume all but a very few extremely unpalatable ones, such as mullein, black thistle, etc. Upon inquiry as to the specific kinds eaten, one farmer stated that he could not give any definite information on the subject, as the sheep kept his farm so free from weeds that he could not see what kind they actually ate.

Where sheep have been kept, but where for some reason they have been disposed of, a striking difference has usually occurred in the appearance of the field. Weeds have sprung up and grown to such a height that they had formerly been kept in check. There is no better solution to the weed problem than a flock of sheep.

The farmer's sheep should be a wool and mutton sheep, with emphasis upon mutton. This "dual purpose" sheep, if the same be permissible, is a proved success, and it is already represented by some of the breeds.

Much of the sheepy flavor of mutton comes from the generation of gases in the stomach after the sheep is killed. For this reason sheep should be dressed as rapidly as possible. A platform six or eight inches high is a convenient thing to work on and aids in keeping the blood away from the body, insuring a cleaner carcass.

After dressing, the carcass should be cooled to 40 degrees, or as near that as possible, in the summer it will be necessary to have ice for this purpose. Where there is a farm refrigerator the carcass can be placed in it, provided there is a circulation of dry air and no objectionable odors are present. Mutton can be kept for a week or ten days under these conditions.

In the majority of cases, however, ice is not available on the farm. Under these conditions the sheep or lamb, as the case may be, should be slaughtered in the evening, the carcass allowed to hang out overnight (where nothing will disturb it), and taken to a cool dry room or cellar in the morning, before the flies are about. If the carcass is split it will cool out more rapidly. Under these conditions it is a good plan for two or more farmers to club together, each taking a part of the carcass, so that there will be no danger of the meat spoiling before it can be used.

In the winter there is little difficulty about keeping the meat. A good way to keep mutton at this time is to allow it to freeze up and to cut off enough for use from time to time with a saw. A single freezing does not injure the quality, but alternate freezing and thawing is harmful and should be avoided.

Lamb and mutton should never be used for food until it is thoroughly cooled out. Lamb is as good as it ever will be as soon as it is thoroughly cooled, but mutton improves with ripening for a week at 40 to 45 degrees F. Mutton can be corned, but it is not as palatable nor is it as nutritious as the fresh meat. The hams are sometimes spiced and are considered by many to be a delicacy when prepared in this way.

Select Vigorous Birds. If you are working for eggs be careful to select the most vigorous birds for winter layers. Market all the rest as broilers. Weaklings are no account as egg producers.

GIRAFFE SURELY COULD BITE

"Fiercest Lion in Captivity" Captured by Darky With Piece of Rope—Was Right Smart Rambunctious.

"Did you'll lose a giraffe?" he inquired. "Yep," returned the owner; "I sure did. Have you found him?" "Yes, sah; I done found him."

"Got him with you?" "No, sah; I reckoned I better inquire first, sah, before I fetched him over."

"All right; you fetch him here and I'll give you a dollar for your trouble."

"Yes, sah; but I reckon de trouble am wuff mo' dan a dollar. Dat ole giraffe am right smart rambunctious. He done tried to bite me."

"What are you talking about, nigger? Giraffes don't bite! They kick. But you bring him along and I'll give you $2."

"All right, boss; I reckon you am mo' familar wid dat giraffe dan I be; but he sure made signs like he would bite me."

The darky departed, and about a half hour later there was a sudden commotion on the front porch of the store, the door was thrust open and in came the darky, pulling and wild-eyed and pulling a rope. At the other end of the rope, squirming and snarling, was an enormous Nubian lion—the fiercest lion in captivity, according to show bills.

"Dar, Mistah White Man," exclaimed the captor, throwing down the rope and pointing to the lion—"dat's your ole giraffe; and I tell you he do bite!"—Lippincott's.

Amnesia. A case described as "The Twilight State and Subsequent Amnesia After Slight Contusion of the Brain," is reported in a German medical journal. A woman, thirty-one years old, murdered her four children by drowning. The deed was committed after she had sustained from her husband some twenty blows on the head. The immediate effects of the crime and of her future caused not the least disturbance in her mind. There was entire absence of any recollection of the murder, in fact total amnesia.

Seek Radium in Colorado. State authorities of Colorado are making a thorough study of minerals having or supposed to have radio activity, and authorities now assert that every curative mineral spring in Europe can be duplicated in that state. It is said there are fifteen springs in Colorado having radio activity. Over two hundred springs have been tested. An effort is now being made to secure the services of the highest authority on such subjects in Germany.
