The trial of Parker for the assassination of Gen. Grimes, commenced in Washington Beaufort county before Judge Schook, last Monday.

Preparations upon a grand scale have already commenced, it is said, in Washington City, for the inauguration of the newly elected President, Mr. Garfield. It is not expected to imitate the example of Jefferson—ride on horse back to the Capitol—hitch his horse to the White House. We had a republic then—we have a Nation now—“Tempora mutantur,” &c.

President Hayes, in his late Message to Congress, proposes to create a new office, Captain-general of the army, and bestow it upon Gen. Grant. The hero of Appomattox, it seems, is to be well provided for in one way or another. Now the $250,000 has been raised, and the Senatorship from New York secured, no further provision for Gen. Grant for the present at least, would seem to be necessary.

The Hancock sympathizers among the officials in Washington City, are beginning to quake and tremble for their fate. They have been weighed in the republican balance and found wanting. The black list has been made out and only awaits the action of the incoming administration. “Honesty, capability and faithfulness to the constitution” the old Jeffersonian test, will hardly avail anything against the clamorous host of greedy office-seekers who helped to save the Union and give permanence to the Nation.

The man who was in the gibbet at Chicago—the repeaters—bribers and bulldozers all expect something.

CABINET-MAKING.

Republican politicians have been busy since the election, constructing a cabinet for Gen. Garfield. All sorts of rumors are afloat as to who will compose that important body. But little is known however, as Gen. Garfield appears unwilling to disclose his preferences. That he will surround himself with constitutional advisers of eminent ability, and liberal statesmen-like views upon national questions, is greatly to be desired, but from his antecedents and late surroundings, hardly to be expected. Just now there appears to be a pressure upon him from his colored supporters, to confer upon one of their race, a cabinet position, as a suitable recognition of their unwavering support of the republican party. The names of Ex Senator Bruce, now a resident of Ohio, Fred Douglas and others have been suggested, but without eliciting any favorable response from Gen. Garfield or the leaders of the republican party.

Without the negro vote neither Hayes nor Garfield would have been elected, and the party would have long since been in a hopeless minority, but whether there will be any departure from what appears to be the settled policy of the party, to ignore their colored friends except when they want their votes, remains to be seen. From present indications, there appears to be some prospect of trouble in the republican camp, unless the policy of the party in this respect is changed. We do not advocate the elevation of negroes to offices which they are not qualified to fill, and we should deplore the selection of either of the aspirants whose names have been mentioned, as a cabinet officer. Neither as a Congressman nor a legislator has the negro proved a success, and we think it is time that the negro should understand that notwithstanding he may vote for the republican party that party, as well as the democratic party recognizes the fact that this is a white man's government, to be administered by white men.

CONGRESS.

This body reassembled on Monday last and will continue in session until the 4th of March next, when the term of the members of the House of Representatives and many of the Senators will expire. The present Congress has a good working democratic majority and it is to be hoped, now the presidential election is over, that the political maneuvering of last session will be abandoned. 1881. Harper's Magazine. ILLUSTRATED.

Studying the subject objectively, and from the national point of view—seeking to provide that which, taken altogether, will be the most service to the best number—I long ago concluded that, if I could have but one work for a public library, I would select a complete set of Harper's Monthly. Charles Francis Adams, Jr.
Its contents are contributed by the most eminent authors and artists of Europe and America, and its illustrations are the work of the best artists of the world, which are well illustrated by the most eminent artists of the world, which are well illustrated by the most eminent artists of the world.
