POLITICAL JEALOUSIES.

The greatest danger to the continued success of the democratic party in this State, we apprehend, to be found in the petty jealousies and unfriendly criticisms of leading democrats. We indulge a gratified smile at the personal bickerings of our political opponents, and welcome every evidence of their Kilkenny proclivities. But are we not drifting into the same unseemly and disastrous practices?

All cannot be Senators, Governors, members of Congress or even members of the Legislature, but that constitutes no reason why an aspirant for any of these honors, should be suspected, much less accused of contemplating treachery to his party. We have seen the name of one prominent democrat after another, paraded before the public, and insinuations affecting his political honesty published to the world, upon the most flimsy pretenses and unwarranted suspicions. And scarcely was the indignant denial made, before another victim of hasty criticism or personal jealousy, was found.

Can we hope for the continued success of the democratic party in this State, if prominent democrats are to be subjected to this perpetual "fire in the rear"? Is it less true than when the divine precept was uttered "a house divided against itself cannot stand." Above all considerations it seems to us, it is important at this time to preserve the unity and harmony of the party.

We have therefore observed with no little concern, the unfriendly spirit in which much of the hasty criticism of leading democrats, has been indulged, by some of the wide-awake and enterprising sentinels of the party. It would seem to have become a foregone conclusion with them, that some one of our prominent democratic politicians, has made up his mind to play the role of MAHONEY, in the coming campaign. We think they have been singularly unsuccessful so far in designating the individual, and we doubt whether there can be found a respectable democrat in the State, who ever contemplated leading in such a movement.

The last "suspect" was Governor JARVIS, who says that he has permitted many things which have been published about him in the papers, in which gross injustice has been done to him, to pass by unnoticed, but this charge he regards as "a fighting matter." He says he is not a candidate for the United States Senate, and it is well known that he is ineligible to the office of Governor for a second term, why then should the friends of any aspirant for either of these positions, attempt to detract from his well earned reputation as a sound consistent, level-headed democratic Governor.

His administration has been beset with difficulties ever since his entrance into office. Questions of the gravest importance have demanded his attention, but he has shown himself at all times equal to the occasion. And the straight forward, honest and manly course, which he has pursued under the most trying circumstances, has won the respect and confidence even of those who differed with him. His administration, illustrated by patriotism, integrity and unswerving fidelity to the best interests of the people, will occupy an enviable position in the history of his native State.

His agency in the sale and completion of the Western North Carolina railroad, notwithstanding the embarrassing complications which subsequently intervened, will be one of the proudest monuments to his wisdom, sound judgment and far seeing statesmanship. To him, and the Richmond & Danville Railroad Company, the people of North Carolina owe a debt of gratitude, which the present and future generation cannot too highly appreciate.

WISE LAWS AND MODERN INSTANCES.

A correspondent of the American Register discusses the old maxim "speak of the dead only good" and intimates that along with many a similar one, it should be dismissed to that limbo of follies and absurdities, to which so much of the legendary lore and philosophical teaching, and so many of the now hoary-headed proverbs of the youthful world, have been lately packed off. The true meaning of the maxim being "if you cannot speak good of the dead be silent," which, if it were not for the indiscreet friendly eulogist, and gushing biographer the world would be content to observe.

But he says if the warrior has needlessly and wantonly sacrificed human life, or prolonged or increased the horrors of war for the purpose of enlarging his greatness, or spreading his fame or enlarging his perquisites; if the alleged statesman has contaminated his hands with bribes, if he has betrayed his friends, if he has bartered his political place for gold—then if foolish friends propose to hold him up as a type of the Christian statesman, or as an unselfish defender of his country, it is due to humanity and christianity, that the pillory rather than the pedestal shall be the place where the public shall stand and gaze.

Shall such men go not only unwhipped of justice, but in a triumphal chariot? Will the young man love true virtue and follow her, when he sees her forsaken and neglected, and the pinchbeck pretender lifted upon the shoulders of the people? It is the very sublimity of impudence to insist that the world shall look with respect and awe upon a character wanting in those very qualities we are called upon to admire. So, when a man "has stolen the liver of heaven to serve the devil in" if he flaunts the robe in the face of saints and sinners, let history pronounce the withering sentence. We have had enough of shams and pretences. For a quarter of a century we have had sham statesmen, sham reformers and sham christians. HAYES was pronounced by CONKLING "a pious sneak," and COLEMAN and HOWARD were of the same stamp. Others might be mentioned, to whose shortcomings the gushing eulogies of indiscreet friends, have directed public attention.

THE PRESIDENT'S VETO. The Chinese bill has proved a bombshell of no small magnitude in the republican camp. The President's veto of the bill, has displeased his party West of the Rocky Mountains and on the Pacific coast, to the extent of causing him to be burnt in effigy, while in the East he has been applauded by his stalwart admirers. The chief objection of the President to the bill, and the one relied on with gravest consideration, is that the limitation on Chinese immigration is for twenty years instead of ten. While the reasons of the President are entitled to respectful consideration, it must be admitted that it is difficult to conceive how a ten year limitation would be less a violation of national faith than a twenty year limitation. If a treaty stipulation stands in the way, Congress should first abrogate the objectionable clause in the treaty, then the most important questions of homogeneity and capacity to understand and appreciate our institutions could be settled.

TOWN MEETING.

A democratic convention will be held in the Court House next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock for the purpose of nominating town officers for the town of Wilson for the ensuing year. All democratic citizens are invited to attend. By order of the Committee, JNO. E. WOODARD Ch'm, April 14, 1882.

THE
Edgecombe Cotton Planter,

Patented in 1879.

Will Plant Seed Without Preparation.
IS VERY DURABLE,
STRONG AND EASILY ADJUSTED.

Is an Economical Machine, the quantity of Seed to be sowed can be regulated by the screws under the bottom.

It can be run as near to the ends of the rows and as near stumps as the plow can go.

As there is about 1500 of the Edgecombe Cotton Planters in use in Wilson and adjoining counties we do not think it necessary to publish any of the many flattering testimonials we have received. We respectfully refer to nearly all of the practical farmers in this section as to its being the simplest, best, and most practical Planter on the market.

POCOMOKE
EXCELLED BY NONE FOR COTTON.

WHAT LEADING PLANTERS SAY:
I row no Fertilizer, 10lbs Cotton; I row 200 lbs Pocomoke per acre 35lbs Cotton.
NEWBERNE, N. C., December 17, 1881.

I made an experiment with POCOMOKE, applying it to Cotton on old land. In one row not fertilized I made ten pounds of seed cotton, on the other row of the same length, and under similar cultivation, but manured with POCOMOKE at the rate of 200 pounds per acre, I made 35 pounds of seed cotton. On similar rows manured with POCOMOKE at the rate of 400 pounds per acre, I made 46 pounds of seed cotton. I let Mr. Geo. Lewis have a few bags, and he made 12 pounds of seed cotton to the row, against 31 pounds on the ground not manured.
J. THOMAS WETHINGTON.

It sold your POCOMOKE to about seventy-five planters, and it has given universal satisfaction the best evidence of which is that they all want it again. I can report 625 pounds of lint cotton to an acre, manured with POCOMOKE. It can get you many certificates.
C. A. YOUNG.

Used POCOMOKE on swamp land, and am satisfied that its application doubled the yield of cotton. I give POCOMOKE preference over any fertilizer I have ever used. It opens and matures all the bolls on the stalk.
THOMAS L. TOLSON.
Recommended to Cotton Planters.

I have used three kinds of Guano this Spring, and POCOMOKE is my choice. I expect to use no other next year, and can recommend it to all Cotton planters.
J. H. MOORE.
Cotton bolls better and matures earlier where Pocomoke is used.
BEAUFORT COUNTY, N. C., November 1st, 1881.

The ton of POCOMOKE purchased of you was used on about nine acres of land in cotton, and am satisfied it paid well. The cotton matured earlier and bowered better than where other fertilizers were used. I got from 10 rows, where POCOMOKE was applied, 500 pounds seed cotton at first picking and from 15 rows alongside of it unmanured, I got only 400 pounds.
W. H. SWANNER.

It sustains the plant during Drouth.
BRANCHVILLE, VA., November 10th, 1881.
Am pleased to report most favorable results from the use of your POCOMOKE fertilizer, under my crops this season. I like it better than any other that I have used. It sustains the plant during drouth better than any other used. Prefer it to any Guano, and will use it again next season.
J. SIM VICK.

Fully equal to Peruvian, and will double the quantity he used last season.
WILSON, N. C., December 13th, 1881.
During this year I have used five tons of POCOMOKE, and I consider it the best, fully equal to Peruvian. I have used manufactured Guano ever since the war, and next season will use ten tons of POCOMOKE. JAMES J. TAYLOR.

Analysis by Dr. C. W. DABNEY, State Chemist of North Carolina.
