Public Schools.

Governor Butler, of Massachusetts, in his recent inaugural criticises the school system of that ancient commonwealth, whose so-called higher education has long been its pride and boast. As evidence of the deficiency of its school system, he adverts to the fact that the percentage of illiteracy in Iowa, is less than in the old Bay State. In the midst of their many fine universities and academies, the people seem to have paid little attention to the intermediate primary schools, and apparently to have regarded them as of little importance. President Chadbourne also, has recently declared, that primary education in Massachusetts is very deficient; that too small salaries are paid, and as a consequence in many localities inferior and unfit teachers are often employed. The Boston Traveller calls upon the Legislature to "speedily devise a remedy for this serious defect in the much-vaunted educational system of our commonwealth."

Many people will be inclined to wonder why it should have remained for Gen. Butler, of this late day, to introduce educational reform in "cultured" Massachusetts. Some will be encouraged to think that the advanced civilization of New England about which we have heard so much, is a good deal of a show, and that an alarming amount of illiteracy exists elsewhere besides in the South. We freely confess to our share of the ignorance, and half with pleasure every effort to render our common schools more efficient. The prospect however we regret to say, according to the recent message of Gov. Jarvis, does not seem to be very encouraging. Five hundred and fifty thousand dollars, seems to be the whole available fund, for educting four hundred and ninety thousand children, with the school age. That this sum is totally inadequate must be apparent to all. The important question which the present legislature is invited to solve, is how the necessary amount is to be raised. The Governor very properly says, that money is as necessary to carry on our common school system, as blood is to impart vigor to our physical system.

The Legislature with commendable zeal, seems to be eating about for the means, with which to accomplish this great public work. The great importance seems to be fully realized, and even constitutional scruples have not been permitted to stand in the way of asking aid from the general government. While it may militate against our notions of State rights, and indirectly countenance the political heresy of a centralized government, it must be admitted, that no better disposition could be made of its surplus funds, than to aid in wiping out our national stigma of illiteracy.

Hasty Legislation.

Hasty and inconsiderate legislation is one of the greatest evils a legislative body can inflict upon the people. The temptation, especially to new members, to embark in unnecessary legislation, has been productive of no little trouble to the courts of justice, and to succeeding legislators. To the former, in reconciling conflicting statutes, and to the latter, in amending and repealing them. A large proportion of the laws passed every session, are of the latter class, and still the work goes on with unabated zeal.

The present Legislature promises to be not behind its predecessors, in passing new laws and in amending and repealing those already in existence. It was generally supposed that the Code Commissioners would revise and complete all the laws in force, and that when their work was completed, but little additional legislation would be needed at the present session. But this example set by the Legislature of 1872 and 1873, when Battle's Revisal was reported to that body, seems likely to be followed by the Legislature of 1883.

This "amiable weakness" which seems to possess the average legislator, needs the imposition of all the restraint which public opinion can impose. It will be remembered how Battle's Revisal was altered, amended and repealed, by the Legislature to which it was submitted, and it is to be found from present indications, that the new Code of Messrs. Dortch, Manning and Henderson, will share a similar fate at the hands of the present legislature. The proverbial uncertainty of the law cannot be remedied, however desirable it may be, until the tendency to excessive and unnecessary legislation is checked. The Code to be presumed has been considered and carefully prepared, by gentlemen of acknowledge ability, and for many actively engaged in the practice of the legal profession is but justice to the Commissioners, to pass it in the form it is presented, and give it a fair trial, and avoid the delays and uncertainties which have greatly impaired the value and usefulness, of the last revisal of our laws.

The New York Sun is ready for a fight when paupers speakers in this country refer to "working class." Really, what is right about it. All of these people in this country are workers of one sort or the other. In fact a man who handles an axe is more of a worker than the merchant, the preacher, the teacher, the editor?

Tax on Dogs.

As might have been expected legislators havn't the nerve to pass a bill taxing dogs. In the House Wednesday the following petitions were had:

Bill for the better protection of sheep husbandry in North Carolina was put upon its second reading and provoked considerable discussion.

Mr. Scott, of New Hanover, introduced by myself, a bill for the levying and collection of a special tax of $2.00 on every dog in the State, and if passed will tend to the protection of sheep husbandry in the State; as there are many dogs sheep husbandry cannot prosper. In my county one man lost twenty-seven sheep by dogs one night not long since. This tax upon the dogs and then the collar and tag about their necks will show that the tax is paid.

Mr. Morehead—Speaking of the dogs of the State wearing collars and tags reminds me of a gentleman who lived west of here. He had become tired of the troubles and misfortunes of this life, and one evening he quietly took the bridle from his old mare and adjusted it about his neck, and at the time he was ready to swing from a joist in the barn some of his friends detected his suicidal intentions and prevented him from doing further injury to himself. He complained very much that he was disturbed and said that a few minutes more he would have been a happy land. His friend asked him "Yes, you would have been in a fine looking thing waltzing up and down the streets of the New Jerusalem wearing a blind bridle."

Mr. Costner sent to the Clerk's desk an amendment making the tax $2.00 on every dog, instead of $1.00.

Mr. Battle: I am surprised at the amendment coming from the Senator from Lincoln. As he comes from the "pine barrens" of the Southern region, should be the value of dogs to such a degree as to wish a tax so low?

Mr. Costner: It is true that possums in my section, and it is also true that there are as many sheep there as dogs, which are not protected against dogs. For this reason I suggest this small tax, because I see no chance for the passage of a bill which provides a tax sufficiently high to make the amendment offered by me, that it is a very reasonable tax that I think it should pass.

Mr. Clarke—There are as many possums in my section as there are dogs, for that very reason I desire a tax on dogs taxed. Many of our people make their Christmas money by catching 'possums, and if they are unable to pay the tax on dogs, what pecuniary benefit are dogs in our section and of what good dog?

Mr Clike—About one dog to every man.

Mr. Arehead sent up an amendment making dogs subject to the same subject of taxation as property.

Mr. Alexander stated that there was a law already in force requiring sheep-killing dogs.

Mr. Clark moved the previous question on the whole matter and called the ayes and nays. The vote was taken, and resulted in the ayes 46, to table, 17 against it.

Fees of Justices of the Peace.

Among the bills introduced in the legislature was one by Mr. Bailey, of Mecklenburg, to abolish the fees of Justices of the Peace.

Until 1868 Justices of the Peace received no compensation, and no copy of the laws was furnished them. For services, unless they happened to be members of the Legislature, when they received $5 per day during the session, the Justices of Pease and Commissioners of their respective counties, for they were elected to hold. Since the adoption of the Code of Civil Procedure in 1868, they have been allowed the fees therein specified, and others incidental to the extension of their jurisdiction, which has been greatly increased until the office from being one without remmeration, has become in some localities one to be sought for its pecuniary advantages, as well as the honor with which Shakespeare has invested his model Justice,

"With brow severe and beard of formal cut,
And fair round body, with fat capon lined,
Full of wise saws and modern instances."

Now there are we suppose, making a rough estimate, about four thousand Justices of the peace in North Carolina, a large majority of whom, will hardly look with favor upon the proposition to deprive them of their fees by the bill to which we have referred. They no doubt would prefer that economy in the administration of Justice should commence somewhere else.

Revolutions it is said never go backwards, and it is equally true we think, that rights and privileges once granted are never willingly relinquished. Dissatisfaction there fore among a large majority of the Justices, may be reasonably anticipated, if this bill becomes a law. The Legislature may however safely and wisely repeal the laws passed since 1868, extending the jurisdiction of Justices of the peace, and thus withdraw from confessedly incompetent tribunals, the determination of many important matters, affecting the rights of the citizen, the public morals, and the peace and good order of society.

Every intelligent Justice who has given the matter thoughtful consid[illegible] with us, in connection with the [illegible] of their jurisdiction is checked. The Code to be presumed has been [illegible] simulated considered and carefully [illegible] execution pared, by gentlemen of ac[illegible] State in ledge ability, and for many [illegible] enders actively engaged in the [illegible] and tice of the legal professi[illegible] rally is but justice to the Co[illegible] Let sioners, to pass it in the [illegible] fees, it is presented, and giv[illegible] con- fair trial, and avoid the [illegible] by and uncertainties which [illegible] been greatly impaired the valu[illegible] usefulness, of the last rev[illegible] our laws.

ly bearing, [illegible] Bayard, stands today in the fromt ranks of American statesmen. and wields an influence in the councils of the nation second to that of no other Senator.

His ardent love for his native State, and his great devotion to public duty, command the admiration of every true son and daughter of our beloved commonwealth. He possesses in an unusual degree the qualities of the polished gentleman, the brilliant orator, the brave soldier and profound, sagacious statesman.

In many respects he is to North Carolina what Gambetta was to France. But while France weeps to-day at the tomb of her hero, North Carolina rejoices at the elevation of her favorite son. His fame and usefulness are not confined to the limits of his State, but extended to the uttermost confines of this great country.

He has filled the position to which this day nominate him, for nearly five years, with great distinction and satisfaction. He is a fit successor of the peerless Mangum and of the immortal Badger.

Mr. President: I nominate the gentleman, the orator, the soldier, the statesman, Matthew W. Ransom, of Northampton county.

Mr. Purnell nominated Col. William Johnson as the Republican candidate.

Upon call of roll the vote stood Ransom 33; Johnson 12 Loftin and Womack were paired and Messrs. King of Pitt and Lyon were absent and Mr. Mebane did not vote.

At 12 M. Tuesday the House proceeded to ballot for U. S. Senator, Senator Ransom was placed in nomination by Col. D. Worthington and Mr. Wilcox nominated Col. Wm. Johnson.

The Chair appointed Messrs. Worthington and Wilcox tellers Upon taking a ballot Ransom had 75 and Johnson 35 votes, several republican voting for Ransom.

Mr. Frazier said that he was a life-long Republican, and represented Republicans, who never follow a doubtful leader, therefore he voted for Mr. W. Ranson.

The whole vote cast was 108 for Ransom and 47 for Johnson three Republicans present and not voting; two others present but paired with absent Democrats.

At 12 M. Wednesday both houses met in joint convention and formally announced the result.

Talbott's Patent Spark Arrester
The Invention of the Age.

It does not destroy the draft.
It does not interfere with fanning the tubes.
It does not choke up and requires cleaning.
It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow the sparks to escape.)
It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft, besides when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.
It is simple and durable and can be relied upon.
It can be attached to any boiler.
No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbert Engines and Spark Arrester are used at same rate as charged for water or horse power.
Send for illustrated circulars and price list.
