NEWS OF A WEEK.

WHAT IS HAPP .ING IN THE WORLD AROUND US.

A Condensed Report of the News as Gathered From the Columns of our Contemporaries, State and National.

The Mayor of Boston gets a salary of $15,000.

Wilmington raised $900, and Charlotte $500 for the Pennsylvnia sufferers.

A Lutheran Seminary is to be built in Charlotte, N. C., to cost fifty thousand dollars.

A crayon portrait of Judge Walter Clark has been placed in the North Carolina Supreme Court library.

A negro by the name of Poe, we see from the Reidsville Times has written some poetry—which is said to be good and will shortly publish a book of his productions.

We learn from the Charlotte Chronicle that Mrs. Jackson, a native of North Carolina, is preparing a life of her great husband. She will be at work on it for six months to come.

The colored people of Wilmington are at work endeavoring to organize a Building and Loan Association. If that race will devote themselves to securing homes for themselves they will take a long step in the march of progress.

The old coal mine at Egypt, Chatham county, N. C., is to be reopened and worked; a contract has been made with the Mecklenburg Iron Works at Charlotte for $7,000 worth of new machinery. The company will lay off a town at Egypt.

Gas must be as dangerous as mules in Durham. Just listen at the Sun: Mr. Sites, proprietor of Hotel Claiborn, at Durham had the buttons knocked off his vest by the explosion of a gas machine the workman in the hotel were repairing.

We see from an exchange that Receiver Dowd has sold the last piece of property of the defunct State National Bank, of Raleigh. That Bank and the circumstances connected with its failure will long be remembered by the people of North Carolina.

We see it stated that the Elowah property in Barstow county, Ga. has been sold to a Pennsylvania company for $190,000. The Bethlehem Iron Works is understood to be the purchaser. We learn from the Atlanta Constitution that the iron ore on the purchase has for years been recognized as the finest in America, and but for the civil war the Colts would have established their famous armory on the property. The South needs capital and push—and these only—to make it the centre of business of this country.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Political Chat at The National Capital by Our Regular Reporter.

WASHINGTON, June, 7th, 1889.

Politics have this week been pushed to the wall by that "one touch of nature that makes the whole world kin." Democrats and Republicans have vied with each other to provide succor for the thousands of people made homeless by the great floods in Pennsylvania. Washington has shown the world that however heartless she seems to be in her dealings with political and social doings, she in reality has a a great big human heart, throbbing, just now in sympathetic accord with her suffering brothers and sisters of the Comemaugh Valley upon whom such a terrible calamity has fallen. A public meeting was held to provide organized methods of collecting money and clothing and was attended by an immense crowd and was presided over by the President who make a strong appeal for subscriptions, About $50,000 in cash has been raised besides an enormous quantity of blankets, clothing, disenfectants, etc. Everybody seemed disposed to give something; poor people who were not able to give money gave a blanket or a cast off garment, boot blacks and news boys handed in their nickles alongside the millionaires thousand dollar checks, end the children emptied the pennies out of their little banks in order to turn them over to the Committee. For the first week nothing was talked about or seemingly thought about but the awful news from Johnstown. Washington's flood had done a damage to property public and private of several millions of dollars but that was entirely forgotten in the face of the great loss of life by the Pennsylvania horror.

Already the Republican acting Commissioner of the General Land office has begun to undo the good work of the Democratic administration. He has given notice that he intends abolishing the Board of Review and the Division of Contests, both established under Mr. Cleveland's administration, and both recognized as being in the interests of the homsteader and against the land-grabber. But as the last named class have for many years, with the exception of from 1885 to 1889, controlled that office the change can hardly be surprising.

The Civil Service Commission is busily engaged in discovering "mare's nests." It has just reported a large one in the New York custom house, and is now in Troy, N. Y., hoping to find one in the postoffice. Next week it is to start West on a grand tour of discovery which will embrabe a dozen cities.

Bad luck is simply a man with his hands in his pockets and a pipe in his mouth looking on to see how it is coming out. Good luck is a man of pluck with his sleeves rolled up and working to make it come out all right.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

Is Not This What You Would Call a Faith Cure?

LADY LAKE, FLA., May 28, 1889.

MR. ———:

DEAR SIR.—In accordance with promise, I will try to give you a statement of the facts in the case of the extraordinary cure or restoration to health of a resident of this place, referred to in your letter of some week's since.

On Thursday, November 29th, 1888, being Thanksgiving Day, the greater portion of the people of the little village of Lady Lake, Fla., numbering perhaps less than one hundred, assembled for a Thanksgiving service in the village schoolhouse, which was and is commonly used for religious services, principally by Methodists and Baptists, the prevailing denominations of the place, who chiefly made up the congregration on this occasion. Mr R. H. Thompson, a member, I think, of the Northern M. E. Church, moved to Florida from Iowa or some part of the North-west with his wife and one child, about five years ago, being threatened at that time with pulmonary consumption (I think he is now about fifty years of age). He settled at Lady Lake, February 1st, 1884. In the fall of that year, while at work as a carpenter, engaged in building a house, he fell down in a fit, insensible. From this time he was in bed about six weeks. When able to get from or be moved from his bed, he could not walk without assistance, except when holding himself up by a fence, in which way he moved very slowly. A year after the attack mentioned, about three years or more ago, he became unable to walk, even by holding up to a fence as he had done, and after that, until last Thanksgiving Day, was able to move only on his hands, except when he had the assistance of one or more stout persons, together with a pair of crutches, and even in this way he made very slow and difficult progress, and on that account rarely moved about except on his hands, in a sitting posture, keeping nearly always at home near his dwelling house.

The cause of Mr. Thompson's lameness is understood to have been a spinal disease, considered by educated physicians of experience in the business of their profession, to be incurable. At any rate, several such physicians in this section of country are said to have exercised their medical skill upon him, having been known by the public to visit Mr. Thompson. It is generally believed that the physicians tried and failed to improve his condition. I have lived for several years since moving to Florida, about one mile from Mr. Thompson's residence, and know the facts as stated partly from my own observation and partly from information received directly from reliable persons, who have been living within one or two hundred yards of Mr. Thompson and have seen him often—nearly every day during the four years mentioned.

On Thanksgiving Day of 1888, I was one of the congregation present at the service held at Lady Lake, as above stated. Mr. Thompson was carried from his residence to and into the house where the service was to be held. At the conclusion of a plain sermon appropriate to the occasion and free from any attempt to create excitement, Mr. Thompson, having sent a message from his seat to the officiating minister, was helped by him and another gentleman to the rostrum in front of the people. He there stated to the congregation that he had, when alone in bed in the absence of his family before bed time the preceding night, heard a voice saying to him, in substance, that if he would go to that place where Thanksgiving service was to be held and get the people to come up around him and pray for his recovery, he should be cured or relieved of his lameness. Mr. T. said that on account of that promise he was present. He asked the people to come forward and kneel with him in prayer. By his request, the officiating minister began to lead in prayer for him, but Mr. Thompson himself very soon took the lead, his voice rising above all others, praying to God and the Lord Jesus Christ. His prayers increased, if possible, in earnestness and intensity as he proceeded, until he reached what to some appeared to be a climax of daring, by asking that God would either command him to rise and walk home, or let him die and be carried from the house a corpse. Soon after reaching this point of his prayer, when there was a feeling amongst at least a portion of the audience that "something would happen," he cried out:—"It is done." "Allelujah!" and rose from a reclining or kneeling position to walk. Several gentlemen of the congregation started to take hold of him, fearing he would fall, but he waived them off, saying:—"Don't touch me"—and went towards the door, walking nearly the length of the house and down the steps to his dwelling three hundred or four hundred yards distant, bare-headed, without touching a crutch or stick of any kind or being touched or aided in any way by another person. After reaching home he continued to praise and thank God, getting on his knees and up again as readily as any one of his age, frequently kicking out the foot and leg that had been paralyzed to show what he could do with it. He only prayed to recover from his lameness, and in that respect he has seemed quite well since to this time. His health in some other particulars is not very good but I hardly think he has been confined to his house any since that time more than other people who enjoy ordinary health. I have seen him very frequently walking about the village, untill quite recently and I am informed that he is still well.

I believe I have stated the principal or most material facts in the case, so far as I know them. I do not think from expressions I afterwards heard that many of the congregation were very hopeful of a favorable answer to the prayer for Mr. Thompson, or that they were strong in belief or expectation that he would be enabled to walk. The full spirit and leadership of the occasion seemed to be in him. At the time when he prayed to be enabled to walk from that house to his home or be struck dead and carried as a corpse from the house—the apparent absence of an humble spirit of submission to the will of God, which there seemed to be in such a prayer, it was a shock to some—it was to me; I afterwards heard a lady who was present say she was afraid he would or expected he would die then and there, or words to that effect. In view of what took place however, in his restoration, it might seem that God was not displeased with his prayer in omitting to express a spirit of submission to His will, that he was justified or pardoned for omitting because he believed the will of God as to his cure was already revealed to him in the promise he believed to have been made to him when on his bed the night before as related.

I have heard Mr. Thompsom say that he had been thinking a long time about having a meeting specially to pray for his recovery. He had thought more or less about it for several years perhaps and had spoken to friends of holding such a meeting but had received little encouragement from others. He had been greatly impressed by the writings of a man in Boston who is constantly engaged in work of that kind, that is holding meetings at times appointed to pray for the recovery of any "afflicted" person who solicits prayers, which latter is expected to have a meeting of his friends at the same time for the same purpose. While Mr. Thompson had been impressed by the writings of this person, there was no understanding between them on this occasion, and it is only mentioned here to show the previous tendency of his mind.

I do not think there has been anything in the life and conduct of Mr. Thompson since he has lived here to justify anyone in thinking he would be guilty of the hypocrisy of trying to deceive people in a case like this. It would require a degree of wickedness that one of good moral and religious character, so far as known, could not reasonobly be supposed to be guilty of. No one has so far as I have heard undertaken to allege anything in his life and conduct previous to or since coming here that would justify such a suspicion. People are apt to view such cases with doubt or suspicion of some kind. It has been intimated that Mr. Thompson's lameness was a deception by which he expected to make money, but as I know no facts to sustain the charge it does not seem best to give particulars as to the nature of suspicion. The opinion has also been expressed that his restoration was the result in a natural way of the extraordinary excitement in its effect upon his nervous system. I do not really know the amount of weight to which such an opinion is entitled, but mention it for your consideration.

I will say in conclusion for myself even if it should hereafter appear to me that Mr. Thompson's recovery was the result of regular natural causes, or it should be proven that he was guilty of deception in this case. I do not feel or think it would decrease the strength of my belief that God does hear the prayers of his creatures and answers in such ways as are best for them, though I cannot feel sure, even after a witness of what I have just written, that we should even pray without a "thy will be done," acknowledging the superior wisdom of our Father in Heaven, and trusting fully to His mercy and goodness. I just believe that God hears and answers prayers. It seems to be the most reasonable view from the very nature of things—to be indeed an overwhelming necessity, to a man conscious of his weakness and dependence, that provision should be made whereby he may ask for what he needs with reasonable assurance that his petitions will be heard and well considered. This is what I suppose would be called internal evidence, and I do not feel that it can be materially weakened by positive knowledge of deception in the case referred to, or by any other proof of the sinfulness of a poor, weak fellow creature. The fatherhood of God seems to me to imply that we His children may hopefully ask of Him, feeling that the measure or degree of our success in receiving a favorable answer to prayer will not be determined altogether by fixed physical or material laws, but that when occasion requires these will yield to or be modified by the higher principles and powers of moral and spiritual laws, to which the physical must be subordinate, thus both kinds working together, the will of God.

Please excuse me for adding unsolicited these thoughts of my own in connection with the facts you asked for, but I have done so partly at least because I do not wish any mistaken inferences as to my opinions to be down from any statement of facts I make.

Yours respectfully
R. W. SINGELTARY.

WRITING MACHINE CABINET and OFFICE DESK

For Remington, Hammond, and Crandall Type Writer.

The advantages of this Type-writer and Office Desk over all other so-called Combination Cabinets, are:

First.—The ease and simplicity with which the desk is changed from a Library or Office Desk to a Type-writer Table. This change is effected by pushing the lid covering the machine back in the rear of cabinet—it being a roller top—removing it entirely from sight, thus overcoming the objectionable board and sounder in front of the operator. The movable top is perfectly flat, is baize covered, and forms a complete writing desk when the machine is not in use. The table on which the machine rests is so evenly balanced by our patent adjustments that it needs but a slight touch to bring the machine in position.

Second.—The advantages of the swinging table are: The table is so balanced near its center on patent maleable iron arms, that when the machine brought in place for use, it does not depend on ropes or hangers at rear of platform for support, but is held rigidly in place by its own weight, making it impossible for the machine to be tumbled down an incline in back of desk by the breaking of a rear support. The machine rests on patent slides which keeps the machine in place, and can be drawn out beyond the desk, well under the operator's hand.

Third.—The construction of the lid closing machine space makes it air tight, and the table having felt around its boarders thoroughly protects the machine from dust.

Fourth.—The foot rest and the construction of the table adjustments makes the desk as ridged as though the top was one solid board, which is a matter of great importance where a solid type-writing table is required. No operator can do good work on a shaky table.

Lastly.—The cabinet is a splendid piece of cabinet work. We manufacture them in Walnut, Antique Oak, Natural Oak, Natural Cherry, Cherry imitation, Mahogany and Ash.

Agents wanted to sell these cabinets, and where we have no agencies established we will sell direct from our works at wholesale prices.
